50,000 MARGIN FOR PINCHOT IS CALLED LIKELY

Bolting Two Days Earlier Would Have Beaten Him, Is Belief.

OPROSING FACTORS MENACE PREDICTION

Big Business May Make Its Fight So That He Will Trail.

HIS POWER IN STATE REPORTED WEAKER

National G. O. P. Leaders Anxious About Safety of Representatives.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—If the Philadelphia crowd had made up its mind to bolt Gifford Pinchot about two days sooner than it did, the indications are that the gentleman would have been defeated.

So stunned was the crowd at the failure of its candidate, Francis Shunk Brown, to be nominated that it was inarticulate and incapable of thought until the registration period had only two or three days more to go. As a result the total city registration now is 513,000, or about 200,000 off. These 200,000 additional votes, about 3 to 1 against Mr. Pinchot, one has reason to believe, would have completely ruined him.

As the situation stands, there are so many factors at work and so many cross-currents that any one of three things may happen to him Tuesday. The most likely one now is that he will win by around 50,000.

Fight Against Him Strong.

Yet so intense is the fight on him by the State's big business, so to speak, that it is not at all impossible for him to lose. The fountain head of the opposition to him here in Philadelphia has ramifications all over the State and feverish efforts are being made to give them effect.

Observers who have been out over the State report considerable inroads in the Pinchot strength, even in the mining sections, where the mine bosses have joined most heartily in the opposition movement. And these observers report that in several places where the organization heads are supporting him they are not doing everything within their power to hold their forces in line. In other words, the pressure being exerted from Philadelphia by Mr. Atterbury and the public utilities through everybody who deals with them, is having some effect.

Of course, to partly offset this situation are the bolting Democrats, the Democratic drys and those who see Mr. Hemphill as no longer the Democratic but the Republican candidate. They constitute, however, only a small offset.

Hemphill Appeal Is Wet.

The Hemphill appeal to Pinchot's strength among the workers or the "masses," so to speak, is that he is wet. The moving force back of Hemphill is the hatred for Pinchot, but it must go before the rank and file in the guise of a wet crusade.

The utter absurdity of it, of course, as pointed out by the Philadelphia record in a front page editorial, is that no fight is being made on "Jimmy" Davis at all, though he is a dry and headed unimpeded for the Senate where wets are needed.

The Record called upon the voters to vote a straight ticket, not the double cross. If you are wet, the paper said, you should vote for both the Democratic and the gubernatorial candidates; if dry, for the dry Pinchot and Davis. The Record had a Pinchot method in its appeal, but its logic seems inescapable.

Pinchot Carried 61 Counties.

In the primary Pinchot carried 61 counties of the 67 in the State, so it is seen what an uphill job it is to hammer into his strength out in the State. As a matter of fact, Pinchot ran so well in Allegheny County that the Philadelphia crowd will always think Allegheny double-crossed them. But Hemphill is reported to be making some headway in this wet center, notwithstanding the fact that the organization leaders and W. L. Mellon seem to be giving Pinchot wholehearted support.

The observers traveling over the State and reporting on the inroads into the Pinchot strength noted, however, an expectancy among the boys who are doing the work that plenty of money will be available before Tuesday. There is no doubt that there will be keen disappointment among them if it does not show up. And there are no signs yet that it will.

Therein is seen the third possible outcome of this race. It is possible that the opposition may crack up in the last day or so before the campaign, not that the industrial leaders or the Philadelphia crowd will have

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Our people own a very large supply of cotton, copper, wheat, petroleum and other raw materials. They have heavy deposits of money in the banks, and many billions invested in foreign countries. Their automobiles number twenty-five millions. And so they are feeling very poor.

Although we have been developing our country at a very rapid rate, erecting buildings, constructing highways, improving rivers and harbors, providing transportation by land, water and air, putting in great power systems, installing elaborate transmission lines for electricity, and laying down pipe lines for gas and oil, these great works are not finished but just begun. They can not be considered completed until all our people have all these services that they care to use.

That development has not ceased, but has only been retarded. The time can not be far distant when the inherent demand of the people for improvement will appear. The creative genius and faith of the people of the United States will bring that demand and the present supply into conjunction. The raw materials are at hand for an era of unprecedented prosperity. They only wait for the people to come forward to utilize them.

ENVOYS ACT TO AID ROME-PARIS ACCORD

Countries' Problems Viewed as Obstacle to Work of Geneva.

GENERAL PARLEY LATER

Paris, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Diplomats of two countries friendly to France and Italy are striving to bring those two countries into accord on the problem of Franco-Italian naval strength, the Associated Press learned today.

With preliminary disarmament discussions to be renewed next week at Geneva, there is a belief here that the Franco-Italian naval difficulty may be the principal obstacle to progress of preparatory work to permit convocation of the international conference at which actual limitation or reduction figures will be fixed.

The American position, it is understood, is that selection of a date for the conference should be left to the Council of the League of Nations.

International circles meantime are considering two reports which, if they are true, are destined to exert a profound influence on the future of armament limitation. The first of these is that France is ready to confer with Great Britain, in particular preparatory to making a statement of her building program up to 1936 in the domain of cruisers, destroyers and submarines, thus coming in as a fourth party to the London treaty without waiting for Italy. Hitherto France had preferred to withhold her hand, and there is no official confirmation for this report that she has changed her mind.

The second report, also unconfirmed, is that Germany will insist that any failure to secure what she calls the "leveling of armaments" will automatically release her from disarmament stipulations imposed by the treaty of Versailles. The report is that the German delegation will argue that violations of Article 8 of the league covenant by any signatory restores armament freedom to Germany. Article 8 stipulates that members of the league recognize that maintenance of peace requires the reduction of armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety.

Conversations in Paris confirm willingness of France to negotiate a treaty for limitation of land armaments on the basis of the status quo of the French army, provided there is no revision of the treaty of Versailles. France contends that the "geographical situation and the situation of each state" mentioned in the league covenant makes it impossible for her to go further than this.

Information gathered today from international sources indicates that the hope for the immediate future is to obtain an agreement to limit ar-

CANNON'S CONDITION IS BECOMING WORSE

Bishop Suffers Severe Pain as Arthritis Spreads to Arms and Legs.

RECOVERY IS EXPECTED

(Associated Press.)

Dr. B. Lyman Sexton said last night that Bishop James Cannon, jr., had become somewhat worse after suffering a slight relapse earlier in the day.

The physician said the Southern Methodist churchman, who went to Sibley Hospital last week for treatment, is suffering severe pain and that inflammatory arthritis has spread to both arms, elbows and legs.

Dr. Sexton said he called in Dr. J. Duerson Stout, a specialist, for a consultation yesterday and that he probably would consult with other physicians within the next few days if no improvement is shown.

"We don't think his illness jeopardizes his life," Dr. Sexton said, "and we think he will recover."

The arthritis was reported earlier in the day to have spread from the bishop's right foot to his right hand and left foot and knee.

Girl Pleads Guilty In Jones Act Case

Charges Against Dancing Teacher Referred to Probation Office.

Barbara Walker, 25-year-old dancing teacher, of Fourteenth street northwest near H street, forestalled her scheduled trial on a Jones act charge when she entered a plea of guilty yesterday before Justice Oscar P. Luhring in District Supreme Court. The case was referred to the probation office for consideration.

Miss Walker was indicted shortly after she had been arraigned in Police Court on an assault charge in connection with the shooting of Russell Prince, 23 years old. The assault charge later was dropped when Prince, following his recovery, told the court he had shot himself.

The liquor charge against the woman resulted from a police raid on her apartment last June. She was indicted on September 9, being one of the few white women to be indicted here on a Jones act charge. Her trial was scheduled for next week.

Woman Sues District For $10,000 Damages

Claiming she stepped into a hole in the sidewalk and fractured her ankle, Elsie M. Long, of Cherrydale, Va., yesterday filed suit in District Supreme Court against the District of Columbia, seeking to recover $10,000 damages.

The woman states that the accident occurred last January 23 on Kennedy street northwest between Eighth and Ninth streets. Attorneys Peyser, Edelin and Peyser appear for the plaintiff.

G. O. P. LAUDED BY COOLIDGE IN RADIO ADDRESS

EFFORTS TO COMBAT DEPRESSION STATED

Urges All, Regardless of Party, to Assist in Movement.

EXPERIENCE CALLED REPUBLICAN ASSET

Plea for Bay State Ticket Also Included in Talk at Springfield.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Calvin Coolidge emerged from obscurity or private life for fifteen minutes tonight and defended, in a radio address, efforts of the Republican administration to cope with the recent business depression. In his address, designed chiefly for Massachusetts voters, he urged election of the Republican candidates in this State for governor and United States senator.

Speaking from Stations WBZ-WBZA under the auspices of the State Republican committee, the former President urged reelection of Gov. Frank G. Allen and election to the United States Senate of his former campaign manager, William M. Butler.

"No Time for Experiments."

"It is no time for rash experiments in men or measures," he said. Commenting upon criticism of President Hoover, he declared that "if there was one action that could have been taken by the Government of the United States which would have prevented the trouble that has arisen all over the world, no one has convincingly stated it."

He referred to efforts of President Hoover to relieve unemployment and declared that it was the duty of all citizens and "particularly all public officers, without respect to party, not only to cooperate, but to refrain from groundless and reckless statements which can only retard return of that public confidence so necessary to increased prosperity."

The address of the former President in behalf of the Republican candidates followed by two nights the personal appearance at a Democratic rally in Boston of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, who advocated in a speech that also was broadcast the election of Democratic opponents of Messrs. Allen and Butler, Joseph E. Ely and Marcus A. Coolidge.

Refrains From Discussing Issues.

"I am not going to discuss issues with you," Mr. Coolidge said. "It already has been possible to learn about them from candidates and the press. Besides, issues have a way of disappearing after a campaign and never coming up again for a decision.

"There will be new problems arising that have not now been thought of nor discussed. * * *

"The more I have seen of public office, the more I am inclined to rely on experience. Conduct of an important governmental position can not be intrusted to inspiration of the moment. * * * The great success that has marked the conduct of affairs of this Commonwealth by the Republican party over a long series of years has been due to its rigid adherence to this principle.

Training Is Stressed.

"It has trained its important officeholders through various stages of experience until they have become experts in public administration. By this same process it has tested ability and character. Those who are deficient in intelligence and discretion do not meet this severe trial year after year and therefore are discarded. Those who remain we can very safely conclude by reason of their experience and proven ability and character are worthy of our confidence and support.

"We have had a world-wide recession in trade. It has been due to a

BACK LEAGUE TO WIN PEACE, WALES URGES

Prince, in Radio Talk, Asserts No Other Means Exists.

COUNSELS SKEPTICS TO DROP PREJUDICES

AVERS EMPIRE SETS BROTHERHOOD STYLE

Declares Prevention of War Can Only Be Gradual, Never Violent.

London, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—A plea to the English people for support of the League of Nations union in its "crusade for world peace" was made tonight by the Prince of Wales in his transoceanic radio address before the delegates to the British imperial conference.

The prince pointed to the unguarded frontier between the United States and Canada as an example of what good feeling could do in the relations between nations. He called upon those who doubt the efficacy of the league to think a little deeper and to consider what possible alternative can be offered to establish world peace and rebuild world prosperity. He said the British Empire represents an organization such as the League of Nations is attempting to perfect.

"We meet," the prince declared, "at a particularly fitting moment, when the near approach of Armistice Day recalls that period still so vivid to most of us present when the British Empire demonstrated to the world two outstanding facts. First of all, its own complete solidarity of the greatest brotherhood the world has ever known, and, secondly, its readiness to help in the building of a similar brotherhood among all nations.

"These facts must increase in reality and in importance. They are interdependent, and they both find expression through the united policy of the British Empire in membership in the League of Nations.

Some Still Skeptical.

"I realize that there are still in all countries some people who profess to have no belief in the efficacy of the League of Nations to prevent another devastating World War. I would ask those people to think a little deeper, to reflect first that the way to prevent war is not by some sudden and violent action at the eleventh hour, but by the gradual and steady formation of habits of international cooperation and mutual trust.

"Secondly, I would suggest to those people that they ask themselves if they mistrust the league, what possible alternative they have to offer for establishing peace and rebuilding world prosperity.

"Tonight's gathering is in itself one of the most convincing proofs of the possibility of international cooperation on a very extensive basis. Here is represented one-quarter of the entire human race, comprising men of different races, languages and conditions, but united under the crown of our common tradition of loyalty.

"They enjoy complete civil and political liberty. They maintain their separate nationalities. They pursue their own methods of development. They have passed beyond the state at which it is the duty of a nation to assert its independence. Differences are settled not by a resort to arms, nor even by formal arbitration but by friendly meetings and conversations around the table.

Canada Sets Example.

"Canada, we are all proud to remember, has set us an especially great example. Her whole vast frontier, facing the United States is devoid of armed forces. Surely civilization has now reached a point at which we can believe that these facts

CAMPBELL'S EXPERT RAKED BY COLLINS AS TRIAL NEARS ITS END

Hamilton Says Goddard Photographs Are "Phoney."

JURY WILL GET CASE TODAY OR TOMORROW

Accused Recants Charge That Gloth Shifted Test Bullets.

ATTORNEYS PREPARE CLOSING ADDRESSES

Clashes Between Defense Ace and Prosecution Feature Session.

The fate of Herbert M. Campbell, accused of the murder of Mary Baker, will be placed in the hands of twelve jurors either late today or early tomorrow, according to defense and Government lawyers.

If Col. Calvin Goddard, who has undertaken to demonstrate the exactitude of ballistics by identifying ten test bullets, has not completed his examinations today, the case will go to the jury.

If Col. Goddard finishes his test today, attorneys believe that his cross-examination and demonstration of his findings will carry the case over until tomorrow.

Closing Addresses Today.

Part of today's proceedings will be devoted to closing addresses of the attorneys and arguments on the nature of the instructions to be given to the jury by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, relative to the testimony.

Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins said last night that Col. Goddard has not completed his examination of the test bullets.

The crowded courtroom yesterday witnessed the most spirited cross-examination of the eight day old trial when Mr. Collins savagely attacked the competency of Albert H. Hamilton as a ballistics expert.

Reliability of Expert Questioned.

Mr. Hamilton had charged that photographs of the bullets shown to the jury by Col. Goddard and Dr. Wilmer Souder were "phony photography." Mr. Collins also read into the record a report of a New York justice which said that the defense expert's reliability was questionable.

Earlier in the day the defendant had recanted his accusation that Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloss, of Arlington County, had substituted bullets fired from his pistol for the death bullets when they were submitted to experts for examination.

After Mr. Collins had raked the past of the defense expert in his effort to demolish his qualifications as a ballistic expert, defense attorneys rested their case, subject to a cross-examination of Col. Goddard.

Decision to Expedite Case.

Mr. Collins had not decided last night whether he will call any rebuttal witnesses. There is a possibility, he said, that one witness will be called in rebuttal. Lucien Vandoren and Charles Henry Smith, of defense counsel, said that they would not call any further witnesses.

The decision to submit the case to the jury regardless of whether Col. Goddard ends his examination, was caused by an agreement between opposing attorneys to end the trial as quickly as possible.

Mr. Collins capped his cross-examination of Mr. Hamilton with the introduction of advertising material relative to a concoction of Mr. Hamilton, known as "Cleopatra's Secret," which was described as a secret to health and beauty.

Admits Making Medicine.

Mr. Hamilton admitted that he had made such a medicine. Mr. Collins then read an advertisement of the "Cleopatra's Secret." For the first time in the day, the court room was in an uproar of laughter. Mr. Col-

Lawton, Okla., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, was severely injured today in an automobile collision as he was leaving Lawton after a political speech for Waurika, Okla., where he was to speak again tonight. It was said at a Lawton hospital that his condition was not critical.

Senator McKellar suffered severe cuts about the face and head. Knox Garvin, of Duncan, Okla., who was driving the car, was slightly injured.

CHICAGO POLICEMAN, TRIAL WITNESS, SHOT

RECEIVES BROKEN JAW

Chicago, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Killers went gunning by daylight today, sprayed a Maywood street car with shotgun slugs and felled but failed to silence their quarry, a policeman, whose testimony was needed to send his comrade's murderer to the gallows.

A hail of bullets and slugs broke the jaw of Sergt. James McBride and imperiled and stampeded a dozen fellow passengers as guns cracked and car windows crashed.

Barring a fatal infection, surgeons said McBride would live to tell a jury of the gun battle five years ago in which "Three Fingered" Jack White shot to death another policeman and wounded McBride. Once sentenced to life imprisonment for the crime, White won a reversal in the State Supreme Court and was never brought to trial again. Only a fortnight ago, picked up on a vagrancy warrant, he was sent to the county jail without bond and Chief Justice John P. McGoorty, of the Criminal Court, reinstated the old murder charge, the State announcing it meant to have the gallows snatch "Three Fingered" Jack from the city's roster of gunmen.

Harry Ditchburne, assistant State's attorney, questioned passengers on the street car and announced he was certain of the identity of the trio of assassins. Their plot was carefully laid. McBride had returned only last night from a trip to Wisconsin with two fellow investigators seeking evidence for White's murder trial. This morning he started on the suburban street car to keep an appointment with State's Attorney John A. Swanson at the criminal court building.

A sedan swept up on the wrong side of the car. Abreast of McBride's

PANGALOS ARRESTED AS GREEKS NIP PLOT

MEETING IS SURPRISED

Athens, Greece, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The Greek government today arrested Gen. Theodorus Pangalos, dictator of the country in 1926, and rounded up 27 army officers and civilians in suppressing what it charged was a conspiracy to reinstate Gen. Pangalos in his former powers.

The general was arrested at Eleusis, but said he was unaware of the existence of any seditious movement. He was brought back to Athens and placed in solitary confinement.

Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, against whom the conspiracy is alleged to have been directed, is at present in Turkey, visiting Mustapha Kemal at Angora.

Police last night surprised a meeting of army men and civilians who were accused of plotting to reestablish the dictatorship of Pangalos.

Many other conspirators are believed to have escaped. They were warned by the accidental discharge of a rifle by a soldier among the forces surrounding the house of the director of the telegraph office, where the arrests were made.

Paris, Oct. 30 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Revolution has broken out again in Greece, according to dispatches reaching Paris today from Athens. Restoration of the monarchy is believed to be the aim of the insurgents, although the movement appears to be led by men pledged to set up another military dictatorship under Gen. Theodore Pangalos.

Former Minister Grigarakis, collaborating with Gen. Pangalos, is head of the revolution.

Tunney Admits Offering $25,000 for Title Chance

Retired Champion, Defending Mara's $500,000 Suit, Appears Affable Before Crowd in Court; Share of Earnings Sought by Politician.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Back into the fawning gaze of the crowds, the public attention he abhors, came Gene Tunney today to lift his fists in legal defense against Tim Mara's suit for $500,000 for alleged breach of contract back in the budding heyday of the retired heavyweight champion's fistic career.

Hundreds lined the long stairs leading up to the supreme court, flashlights popped, the almost forgotten whisper—"there goes Tunney" ran through the building. It looked more like a weighing-in day before one of his title fights than the opening of a legal battle that may pry from Gentleman Gene a fourth of the $2,000,000 fortune he amassed in the ring.

The retired champion, affable and proud of the fact that he weighs only a pound more than he did the night he slaughtered Tom Heeney in his ring valedictory back in 1928, was more of an attraction than the trial itself and the imposing array of legal talent and boxing celebrities involved in the case. He sat at the table of his counsel, Emory A. Buckner, former United States district attorney and followed intensly the opening arguments of both sides. Presentation of evidence begins with the opening of court at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The suit revolves about the contention of Mara, prominent politician

Saving and Spending

We have all been saving; now it is time to spend! What you have will depend upon what you DO. Every dollar kept out of circulation lessens the demand for some manufacturer's product—causes him to curtail labor and wages and thus decreases the sales opportunities for your product . . . If you follow this system you will have "hard times;" if you spend, within your capacity of course, you will stimulate business and employment and secure the "good times" that mean greater happiness and security for all . . . It is wise to save, but at the present time it is wisest to spend.

Mechanic Confesses Part In Kidnaping of Bank Head

Vernon Ahlgren Tells Police He and Three Others Chloroformed Galva, Ill., Capitalist, But Were Duped of $100,000 Promised Ransom.

Kewanee, Ill., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Vernon Ahlgren, Galva, Ill., mechanic, confessed today that he and three other Henry County men kidnaped Earl Yocum, Galva bank president, and held him three days for ransom. He implicated Floyd Winslow, a former convict, and Orville and Harry Whiskers. The last named is in custody. The kidnapers were thwarted in their efforts to obtain ransom. Yocum was released yesterday morning near Atkinson, Ill. The gang, Ahlgren stated, went on to Leland, Ill., where they were confident a package containing $100,000 had been left for them. The package contained a wooden block. Its location was marked by a white flag at the roadside.

Finding themselves duped, the alleged kidnapers called Mrs. Yocum on the phone and threatened to bomb the banker's home.

Andrew Anderson, cashier of Yocum's bank, then was sent to meet the gang at Princeton early today. He agreed to pay $50,000 to have the bombing called off. The money was not paid.

Following the meeting with Anderson, Ahlgren confessed, he and Orville Whiskers and Winslow were chased by policemen, causing them to wreck their machine and abandon it. One tina inflected the words with bitter irony.

"The secret of beauty and attractiveness—Cleopatra's secret. It is sufficient to say that Chemist Hamilton recommends it as reliable cure, has no equal, from an old prescription, not a patent medicine. By this you can cure yourself • • • It makes the life of a woman enjoyable and pleasant in every way.

"Purchase it at once. A single trial will convince you. Ask and insist upon having Cleopatra's secret. The remedy costs more than any other, but it is far cheaper in the end Price $2.

"Some of your friends may have used it. That is the secret of their beauty and health. A lady's remedy. The discovery of a lady. A queen's secret."

Hamilton Becomes Angry.

Mr. Hamilton became angered at this and charged that what Collins had read had been read before for the purpose of throwing a smoke screen in front of the jury. He declared that it had been prepared by a former convict whom he had convicted. Under further examination, he admitted that the advertisement bore the address of his drug store in Auburn, N. Y.

Mr. Collins plied the defense expert with a rapid succession of questions after he had charged that the Souder and Goddard pictures were "phoney."

The white-haired 70-year-old witness accused Goddard of manipulating a comparison miscroscope so that the test bullets appeared to match the bullets taken from Miss Baker's body.

He explained that he believed that the Goddard photographs were made by taking separate pictures through a microscope of the bullets and then slicing the pictures and rephotographing them so as to make it appear that they were original photographs.

"Would it surprise you to know that no microscopes were used in making these pictures?" thundered Mr. Collins.

"I wouldn't be surprised at anything."

Souder Negatives Shown.

Mr. Collins then showed negatives of Dr. Souder's photographs and told him to point out where the two separate pictures had been placed together.

By means of an extension light and a magnifying glass he pointed out "fibrous edges" where the two pictures were brought together. Dr. Souder testified that his photographs were made directly through a microscope, while Col. Goddard said that his pictures were originals of direct photography of the bullets.

"Are these photographs by Col. Goddard and Dr. Souder honest or crooked work?" asked Mr. Collins.

"I call them crooked. These photographs speak for themselves. They show the intent of the makers."

When Mr. Collins informed him that Goddard's photographs were not made through a microscope, which Hamilton characterized as "a vicious instrument," he replied: "I still say they are phoney. They are manufactured and forged photographs."

Graduate of Pharmacy.

The Government attorney ironically addressed Mr. Hamilton as "Doctor" until he developed that Mr. Hamilton was not a doctor, but a graduate of pharmacy.

"You are an expert on chemistry; is that it?"

"Yes."

"Microscopy?"

"Ink?"

"Yes."

"Fingerprints?"

"Yes."

"Gun powder? Dynamite? Blood? Embalming? Guns? Bullets? Cartridges?"

"Yes."

"Fish?" asked Mr. Collins with a grin.

"Fish?" exclaimed the witness, "I never heard of that."

"What You never heard of fish," said Mr. Collins in feigned amazement.

"Oh, yes; I've heard of fish."

Fee Set at $250.

"By the way, Mr. Hamilton, how much are you being paid?"

"I was employed for $250 to make an examination."

"That was just for the examination?"

"Yes."

"Are you being paid by the day or the hour?"

"When I am finished I will submit a bill."

"Will there be a cut rate in this case?"

"There ought to be."

"When did you get the $250?"

"In New York."

"They took a chance. Is that it?"

"Yes, they took a chance."

Mr. Collins then transformed the courtroom into something resembling a lecture room in mathematics, pointing to graphs and diagrams Mr. Hamilton had shown to the jury to demonstrate that the Campbell gun could not have fired the death bullets.

Mr. Collins might have been a peevish and arrogant student the way he plied Mr. Hamilton with questions relative to minute measurements of the gun.

When the questions were not answered to his satisfaction he shouted: "I want definite answers You are called a ballistic expert, aren't you?"

"I've been called so many things that I don't mind another name," he responded.

New York Citation Read.

"Tell me definitely the diameter of Campbell's gun. I want it in thousandths of an inch."

"I will have to measure it."

"Haven't you measured it?"

"Yes."

"Well, tell me what it is. You're a ballistics expert, aren't you?"

"Yes, I am. But I am not a walking encyclopedia."

Then Mr. Collins queried Mr. Hamilton on the cases in which he had testified. He read from a decision of a New York court wherein Mr. Hamilton had been characterized as a "discredited witness," whose testimony "leads to the suspicion that his so-called opinions are merely speculative opinions."

The statement also quoted witnesses in the case as having testified that they would not believe Hamilton under oath.

Hamilton interpolated the comment that the four witnesses were lawyers from Auburn, N. Y., one of whom is now district attorney.

"Auburn is your home town, is it not?"

Hamilton nodded in the affirmative.

Mr. Collins then asked Mr. Hamilton if it was not a fact that a man who had been convicted on his testimony, one Charles Stello, had not been pardoned by the Governor of New York, because Hamilton's testimony had been fabricated.

"Politics was mixed up in that," he answered.

Methods Are Described.

"Do you recall that your testimony in the Frank Carneal case in New York was rejected?"

"My testimony has never been rejected."

The prosecutor mentioned that Carneal had been convicted.

Under direct examination by Mr. Smith, Mr. Hamilton testified that he had been a criminologist for 45 years, had testified in 279 cases, and that 80 per cent of the cases were for the prosecution.

During that period, he said, he had visited numerous munitions plants in pursuit of his work. He then described the different methods of ballistics identification.

COLLINS TARGET

"The older method," he said, "dates back 40 or 50 years. This consists of making a microscopic examination of the bullets and explaining what one observes, so that the so-called expert can point out to a layman or jury the salient points. All that is needed to apply that method is a good eye and a good brain.

"The other is by microphotography. This means that the layman is bound to accept the position of the expert because he says it."

"To what school does Col. Goddard belong?" asked Mr. Smith.

"His own."

"Has he ever asked instruction from you?"

"Yes, by mail and in person in 1924."

Jury Examines Bullets.

Mr. Hamilton pointed to a chart, under further examination, and pointed out a defect in the bore of the pistol as demonstrated by the chart. He also pointed out ten test bullets he had fired from Campbell's pistol, of the same ammunition as that turned over by defendant to authorities.

He said that the test bullets were old and corroded, while the mortal bullets were new. A difference in widths of scratches on the test and mortal bullets was also pointed out to the jury by Mr. Hamilton, who held them under an extension light while the jury examined them through a magnifying glass.

"From the measurements that you made of the two mortal bullets and the 10 test bullets you fired from Campbell's gun, is it possible that the mortal bullets could have been fired from the Campbell revolver?" asked Mr. Smith.

"It's a certainty that they can not. If I fired 1,000 times, it would be impossible to obtain marks found on the fatal bullets. There is absolutely no comparison between the death and test bullets.

Campbell Retracts Charge.

Campbell took the stand early in the day and retracted his assertion, made the day before, that he believed that Mr. Gloth had switched bullets from his gun for the mortal bullets before the examination by experts.

Mr. Collins took the witness and said: "You made a statement yesterday that Mr. Gloth had switched the bullets because of political ambition, didn't you?"

"I would like to modify that statement," said the defendant.

Campbell sought to qualify the statement, but the Court ruled that it should be answered yes or no.

Mr. Collins repeated the question. "Yes, that was my opinion at first," Campbell answered.

"Is it your opinion now?"

"No."

"Is it a fact that you made that statement because you did not like the testimony of Mr. Gloth and Mr. Fields?"

"Yes," he answered.

126,000 Berlin Metal Workers to End Strike

Berlin, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Metal workers balloted today overwhelmingly to return to work October 31, ending a strike of 126,000 men which had lasted more than three weeks.

The strikers, of whom more than 35 per cent already had resumed their jobs, favored resumption of work on the basis of an agreement reached by union representatives and employers on Tuesday.

Eight Pushed Into Vault Of Bank; Take $20,000

Toman, Wis., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Four men held up the Bank of Toman shortly after it opened today and obtained between $20,000 and $25,000 in currency. Cashier Frank Drew said the money was on hand to cash checks given by creamery companies to farmers.

Four employes and four patrons of the bank were herded into a vault before the robbers left the building. The cashier telephoned the authorities frmo an instrument which had been installed in the vault for such an emergency.

Brown University Dean Dies of Brief Illness

Providence, R. I., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Kenneth Oliver Mason, dean of freshmen and director of admissions at Brown University, died today at the Jane Frances Brown Memorial Hospital after less than two days' illness. Death was ascribed to inflammation of the brain lining. He was 37 years old.

As an exponent of the system of selective admission to colleges and universities, Dean Mason had a wide reputation.

Baker Case Reflected In New Order to Army

The Mary Baker murder case in its far-reaching influence has brought about an order to protect the honor of the Army uniform.

Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, has ordered that enlisted men incarcerated pending investigation or trial shall be provided with civilian clothes, according to the Associated Press.

It is understood that the decree resulted from publication of photographs of Howard L. Brewster, one of the earlier suspects, who was a private in the headquarters company. Newspaper pictures, it is said, came to the attention of the chief of staff.

ITALIAN QUAKE KILLS 25, HURTS HUNDREDS

Scores of Towns Struck; Thousands Homeless; Soldiers on Guard.

ADRIATIC BOILS IN FURY

Ancona, Italy, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—An earthquake today brought death and destruction to scores of towns on central Italy's Adriatic coast, unofficial estimates tonight placing the number of dead at 25 and the injured at many hundred. The property damage was very heavy.

An increase in the death list is feared, since many of the injured are in a serious condition and hundreds of mountain villages are still to be heard from.

Official and unofficial estimates agreed in stating that three were dead here and at least 50 injured. At Senigallia, however, the official figures of 10 dead were contradicted by reliable unofficial estimates that there were 20.

Two more deaths have been reported from outlying districts, making an official total of 15 and an unofficial total of 25. More than a score of those injured at Senigallia were gravely hurt and some are expected to die.

Not a wall in the City of Ancona, important seaport and ship-building center, with a population well above 50,000, was without a crack tonight, and many homes and other buildings were in ruins.

About 10,000 persons were homeless and went to bed under army tents hastily assembled by military authorities. Whole families, numbering from four to seven persons, were in many cases crowded under a "pup" tent intended for two soldiers. Most of them dragged out their mattresses and blankets from the ruins of their homes.

Many others took refuge aboard trains that happened to be in the railroad yard of in the station and other public buildings. The small city of tents rose in open squares and parks, out of the way of buildings, or in the suburbs.

The death list of three covered only the city proper.

Senigallia Hardest Hit.

Senigallia was the hardest hit of any towns from which reports have been received. Of those killed there, eight were in the church of Santa Maria when the earthquake occurred, and the roof fell upon them. The priest celebrating the mass was among the many injured. Two other priests also were injured.

The town was completely dark tonight and armed soldiers patrolled the streets and guarded property while their comrades searched the ruins for the bodies of dead or injured.

The entire populace slept in the open air outside the town limits, leaving the streets and ruined homes practically deserted. A ring of sentinels stretched all the way around the outskirts to prevent looters from entering and pillaging.

Three Shocks Felt.

Senigallia, Italy, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Three earthquake shocks struck numerous cities along the upper Adriatic Coast today, taking at least fifteen lives and injuring several hundred persons.

Property damage was enormous, but it was considered remarkable that the toll of lives was not greater, for scarcely a building in the cities of Ancona and Senigallia escaped damage. The quake struck terror to a score of towns and villages across 1,000 square miles of northeastern Italy.

The first shock came shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and lasted 20 minutes. There was a tremendous booming from the sea before Senigallia's chimney-pots rattled into the streets. At Ancona the marble front of the provincial headquarters palace toppled into the Piazza Roma and a wall of the Church of the Holy Sacrament collapsed.

Airplanes Sent Out.

Airplanes were sent to reconnoiter the isolated sections and determine the extent of damage, but railway service northward from Ancona was not interrupted, and trains ran slowly between Ancona and Monte Marchiano.

The epicenter of the quake was in the Adriatic Sea off Senigallia, and its area extended for many miles along the coast, across the upper portion of the peninsula, through the Imbrian and Picenum hills, the northern range of the Apennines and on to the northward of last July's quake zone, where 1,500 perished.

Among the towns which reported damage were Arezzo, Ravenna, Fano, Frabriano, Marberata, Mondalfa, Morozzo, Grottmare Faenza and Borazzo. Smaller villages also were hard hit, and detachments of soldiers were sent to each.

People Huddle in Streets.

In every city and town the people dread to return to the buildings from which they had fled at the first shock, lest a second convulsion bring the walls toppling upon them. In Ancona one of the dead was a child buried under the collapsing facade of a church. Another was Alfredo Moresi, a customs agent, the father of six children. At Cassero a 2-year-old boy was killed.

Work was suspended with the first wave of panic and crowds gathered in the public squares. They were there as planes swung low over the stricken districts and when two slight tremors followed the first quake.

It was as if some gargantuan hand had seized the earth to shake it like a carpet. The ground heaved and billowed; walls of ancient buildings caved in upon themselves and the people ran to safety in the open.

Felt in Wide Area.

The three shocks were felt in a wide area from Trieste to Naples and Rome, but the heaviest damage was in a 25-mile semicircle. The Adriatic boiled, but there was no tidal wave.

Military relief parties, profiting from the experiences of last summer's disaster, lost no time in searching homes and buildings for refugees trapped by fallen walls. Occasionally they found them. Women rushed frantically about the streets searching for their children; some knelt in the squares and prayed, others conquered their fear of crumbling walls and entered the churches.

Relief was heading into the mountains, where villages have been silent since the first shock, but it probably will be days before the real situation there is known.

HOOVER'S SON GOES SOUTH FOR HEALTH

Stricken Member of Family Departs for Asheville by Train Tonight.

WIFE IS ALREADY THERE

(Associated Press.)

Improved physically, after six weeks at President Hoover's lodge in the Virginia mountains, Herbert Hoover, jr., is to leave the White House tonight for Asheville, N. C., to convalesce from his illness.

He was brought from the lodge to the Capital late Wednesday by Capt. Joel T. Boone, White House physician, who will accompany him to Asheville on the train.

The physician said that the President's 27-year-old son had shown splendid improvement and had returned to Washington heavier and with a deep coat of tan. Nothing had occurred, Dr. Boone said, to change his previous statement that an early and complete recovery from the localized tubercular infection was probable.

Mrs. Hoover, Jr., in Asheville.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., and Mrs. Stark McMullin, of Palo Alto, Calif., an intimate friend of the family, have preceded the patient and are preparing the house he has leased on Sunset Mountain, overlooking Asheville, for his arrival.

Two rooms have been remodeled and converted into a solarium, and other remodeling has been done. The home was leased for six months, with an option on a six-month extension.

The President's son was stricken early in September and was compelled to take an indefinite leave of absence from his duties with the Western Air Express.

President Halts Lodge Trips.

With his son no longer there, President Hoover was said to plan no more trips to his mountain lodge until next spring.

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., was in Asheville today arranging to open Blue Briar Cottage, on Sunset Mountain, where she and her husband will make their home during the winter months.

Mrs. Hoover, accompanied by a friend, Mrs. Stark MacMullin, of California, arrived in Asheville yesterday afternoon, going to Overlook, the home of Fred L. Seely. Blue Briar Cottage is located about a quarter of a mile southwest of the Seely home.

Dr. Hickey, Noted X-Ray Specialist, Succumbs

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Dr. Preston M. Hickey, 65, professor of roentgenology at the University of Michigan and an authority on X-ray, died today at the University Hospital here.

Dr. Hickey had been head of the university's department of roentgenology since 1922. He was a pioneer in X-ray work and had served as president of the American Roentgen Rays Society and as editor of the American Journal of Roentgenology.

Victim of Cave-In Nearing Recovery

Driver of Ambulance That Killed Boy Will Face Charges Tomorrow.

Louis Barrett, 19 years old, who was imprisoned nearly five hours in a well cave-in at his home on the Glenmont-Colesville pike, was reported in a satisfactory condition last night at the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring. An X-ray examination yesterday showed no broken bones and no mark of internal injuries.

He will remain at the hospital several days, however. Danger of pneumonia which follows such shocks makes necessary special precautions.

In the meantime, James Carlisle, driver of an ambulance, which struck and fatally injured 9-year-old William Nicholas, jr., near Garrett Park on the Rockville pike, will face charges of manslaughter and operating a business car without a chauffeur's license tomorrow morning in Rockville Police Court. The warrants were sworn out by Montgomery County Policeman Harry Mercon, of Rockville. The ambulance, owned by William Reuben Pumphrey, jr., Rockville undertaker, was speding to the scene of the cave-in when it struck the Nicholas boy.

MECHANIC RELATES KIDNAP PLOT PART

DUPED OUT OF RANSOM

shot was fired by each, the police and the gang.

Ahlgren was seized shortly before noon by Chief of Police John D. Krumtinger and J. A. Newell, of the Illinois Bankers Association, as he hid in a farmhouse near Kewanee. He made a verbal confession to Krumtinger and later signed a statement.

Harry Whiskers was arrested Tuesday, the day before Yocum's release, on a warrant based on information from Edward McKee, a farmer, who said Orville Whiskers offered him $100 a day to hold Yocum prisoner on his farm. Sheriff Charles Nash obtained warrants for all four men on Monday.

Yocum was detained in a hunting lodge at Lacon, Ill., on the Illinois River.

Ahlgren said he and the others had plotted the kidnaping for two months. Harry Whiskers, he said, obtained a license as a milk peddler at Galva, so as to observe the banker. He learned from a milk wagon driver, it was set out in the confession, that Yocum attended the movies with his family every Saturday night.

Accordingly, Ahlgren said, the gang waited for him to return from the show last Saturday night. They asked him for directions and when he walked out on the road to show them the way, they clamped a rag soaked with chloroform over his face.

It was also revealed that during her husband's captivity, Mrs. Yocum worked with the Bankers Association in tracking the gang.

The first ransom demand, Ahlgren revealed, was for $200,000. Next the kidnapers agreed to accept $150,000 and finally determined on the $100,000 which turned out to be a wooden block.

While Mrs. Yocum was declaring to newspapermen that she was not and would not cooperate with authorities, the police revealed, she was actually turning every ransom letter over to Newell. She denied doing this, police said, because she feared her husband might be harmed.

As a heavy snow fell over the countryside, a posse searched the hill country about Galva tonight for Winslow and Orville Whiskers.

Five Held in Plot To Kidnap Doctor

Gang Meant to Hand Over Canadian to Thugs in U. S., Police Say.

Montreal, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Five men were arraigned in police court here today accused of conspiracy to kidnap a prominent Montreal physician and turn him over to gangsters in the United States, to be held for ransom.

Dr. Paul Lelanne informed police last night that he had been followed for several days and believed he was to be kidnaped.

Police secreted themselves in the physician's house and in adjoining buildings. About midnight an automobile occupied by five men drove up in front of the house. Two men got out and went to the door.

They were admitted and seized. Two others, in a few minutes, followed their companions. They also were arrested. The fifth man escaped, but was captured today.

Police said the group was to seize Dr. Lalanne and take him to a rendezvous near St. Johns, where they would be met by gangsters from across the border. Detectives waited at the spot all night, but no one appeared.

Letterman to Get Post As Roving Inspector

The roving assignment as night inspector of the Police Department will be given Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman, of the Sixth Precinct, it was announced yesterday. The order is effective November 1. This place has been filled by Lieut. Hugh H. Groves, but will be vacated by Groves when he succeeds Capt. Fred M. Cornwell as commander of the Eighth Precinct.

Due to the retirement of Cornwell, Sergt. J. H. Lee, of the Third Precinct, will be transferred to the Sixth Precinct as lieutenant in Letterman's place, and Private William Halalip, of the Traffic Bureau, will go to the Fifth Precinct as sergeant.

WIDOW DIES OF GAS AS GIRL IS RESCUED

Mother, Tired of Struggle for Existence, Takes Her Own Life.

NOTE PROVES PUZZLING

The arrival of a janitor yesterday prevented 15-year-old Phyllis Robbins, a Langley Junior High School student, from joining her mother in death by asphyxiation in their apartment on Fourth street near U street northeast.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Robbins, a widow, wearied by her struggles to provide for her little family, turned on three jets of a kitchen stove and was lying on the floor when her daughter came home from school. Police report that the girl, in her efforts to drag her mother's body from the gas-filled apartment, herself was overcome by the deadly fumes.

The Fire Department Rescue Squad, called to the apartment by Harrison Banks, Negro janitor, revived Phyllis after about fifteen minutes' work with an oxygen respirator. Mrs. Robbins failed to respond to treatment and was pronounced dead.

Thirteen-year-old Leroy Robbins, son of the dead woman and also a student at Langley Junior High School, came home late, after a rehearsal of a school play.

When he worked his way through the crowd that surrounded the apartment house and mounted the stairs he saw members of the Rescue Squad attempting to revive his mother, who was lying in the hallway. In a nearby apartment was his sister Phyllis, regaining consciousness under the ministrations of physicians.

A note left by Mrs. Robbins indicated that in her last moments her thoughts were of her family. It was scrawled on the reverse side of an invitation to a festivity at the Lincoln Road Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Robbins is thought to have been despondent because of unemployment. Until a week ago she had worked in a downtown hotel. Her position kept her away from home until 2 o'clock in the morning. She had been seeking work in the daytime without success.

Postscript on Note.

The suicide note read as follows: "Good-by. Don't blame anybody but me—Mother." A postscript, evidently added as death neared, expressed sorrow at leaving her loved ones:

"Oh, I am so sorry. Be good, and I love you. Tell Uncle Joe I am sorry." The difference in the handwriting of the two texts at first puzzled police investigating the tragedy. They were also perplexed by the fact that a chain on the apartment door was fastened.

When she had recovered sufficiently to talk, Phyllis told of her homecoming from school and finding her mother's body in the kitchen. She was unable to explain why she fastened the chain on the door as she entered the gas-filled rooms.

She described her efforts to drag her mother from the kitchen and said that she became weak and went to the bedroom to lie down, only half conscious. She quickly became unconscious, she said.

Canaries Found Dead.

The girl denied having written anything and Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt, who investigated, said that there was no indication of suicidal intent on the part of any one except Mrs. Robbins.

Four canaries, each in a separate cage, were found dead in another room, where they had apparently been placed by Mrs. Robbins, who hoped to save them from the gas fumes. The birds are highly sensitive to poisonous gases, being used in mines to locate deadly vapors and thus save human lives.

Leroy Robbins last night was in the care of relatives, while his sister was reported recovering at Emergency Hospital. Coroner Nevitt issued a suicide certificate in the name of Mrs. Robbins.

The little family had been living at the Fourth street address only about two weeks, according to neighbors.

Women's Club Uphold Webster Kindergarten

The Federation of Women's Clubs of the District of Columbia has sent to the District Board of Education a resolution it adopted emphatically protesting against abandonment of the teaching of aliens, both adults and children, at the kindergarten of Webster School.

The federation pointed out that the "preschool kindergarten of Webster School is doing invaluable service to the citizenry of America." It further declared that "we appeal to the committees in Congress having charge of school matters to retain and support the Webster School in all its departments."

Decision on Burke Expected Today

Medicine Could Have Made Policeman Act as One Drunk, Testimony.

Judge Gus A. Schuldt, of Police Court, is expected to hand down a decision today in the case of Policeman William C. Burke, Sixth Precinct, charged with being drunk. Burke, suspended by Capt. William G. Scott October 9, claimed as his defense that he had taken medicine which made him appear drunk when found by Capt. Scott and Lieut. O. J. Letterman.

Dr. J. Chester Fyles testified that if Burke had taken 12 ordinary doses of medicine, as claimed, it would have made him act drunk. Dr. Oscar H. Bassachen, druggist, told the court that he sold Burke the medicine on prescription, the night of October 8.

Policeman Robert Burgess, who patrolled Burke's beat with him prior to his arrest and suspension, testified Burke acted peculiarly but could not declare that Burke was under the influence of liquor because he did not smell alcohol. Judge Schuldt took the case under advisement.

MAYOR, LEWIS RAP RUTH M'CORMICK

Thompson Maintains He Had "Deal" With Her; Rival Scoffs at Sex Appeal.

WOMAN ANSWERS BOTH

Chicago, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial candidate, was attacked from two angles today—Mayor William Hale Thompson reiterating that he formerly had a "deal" with her, and James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee, asserting "you can not buy a landslide nor win an Illinois senatorship by sex appeal."

The Republican mayor, who recently stepped into the senatorial campaign with an announcement in favor of Col. Lewis, issued a lengthy statement pointing out that he had always been opposed to prohibition and adding that "hundreds of thousands will join with me in casting their votes against any one who indorses such vicious and insane legislation which has brought such terrific suffering on the people of the Nation." He said he had no understanding with the wet candidate, Col. Lewis, political or otherwise, "as Mrs. McCormick untruthfully indicated."

Thompson Charges Deal.

"When she said that the Thompson organization did not assist in her nomination she did not tell the truth," said the mayor's statement. "When she said she never had a deal with me she had a lapse of memory because she invited me to come to her rooms in Kansas City at the time of the Republican national convention and asked me to join with her in a pledge in which we consented that neither of us would cast our ballots as national delegates for Senator Deneen's candidate for national committeeman, Roy O. West.

"She broke her solemn pledge to me within three hours."

Mrs. McCormick answered with a counterattack on both her adversaries, charging the mayor hopes to be reelected by secretly accepting the support of the Democrats in return for his switch to their senatorial candidate.

"The Democratic leaders and the Democratic candidate have deliberately and with shameless hypocrisy sought to delude the people of Illinois into believing that I was working with Bill Thompson's gang when they themselves were secretly completing a deal with him," she said.

Lewis Makes Hot Attack.

Col. Lewis at his noonday rally said: "This contest can not be decided by any sex appeal, nor should an intelligent citizenship of a great Chicago think of casting a senatorship into the lap of a lady who wishes to coddle as a doll, to display to the wonder of the silly and the praise of the ridiculous the senatorship of Illinois."

The office, Col. Lewis said, is one for a "fighting champion in debate and knowledge, a defender of the State, one who can measure up to the demands and command respect of his colleagues from other States."

"Let it now be known that millions can not make up for absence of capacity or character," said the former senator. "This is not the day of kings and queens of dollars—those are in the discard.

"We say to the dollar princess of Illinois politics and her millionaire backers: 'You can not buy a landslide; and an avalanche is now coming from the people on those who would corrupt the State and defile the ballot by daring to buy the honor of Illinois with inherited or dishonored gold.'"

SIX SEATS IN SENATE SEEN AS WETS' GAIN

Repeal Leader Claims 60 to 70 Places in House Will Be Won.

SPECIFIC RACES GIVEN

(Associated Press.)

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, yesterday predicted a gain of at least six additional votes in the next Senate and between 60 and 70 in the House for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"This will all be clear gain," Curran said in a statement, "for we shall not lose, nor have we lost, a single seat for repeal in either House. The drys will gain no seats at all."

Curran said an additional senatorial vote for repeal already has been gained in Rhode Island, since Senator Metcalf, the Republican nominee, and former Senator Gerry, the Democratic candidate, both favored that action. He added:

"Coolidge in Massachusetts, Bayard in Delaware, Distler in Pennsylvania, Bulkley in Ohio, Lewis in Illinois, Steck in Iowa and Galen in Montana are making great fights for seats as repealers and we may win all seven, but are sure of five of them."

"The list of 60 or more seats in the House," Curran said, "included 42 repeal votes already won in the primaries and by the action of former modificationists in advancing to the point of declaring for outright repeal.

"The eighteen more additional repeal victories expected in Tuesday's election will come from Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Colorado and Oregon.

"I repeat my prediction of a year ago," he concluded, "that by 1935—at the latest—the eighteenth amendment will be only a memory."

Two Die in Labor Feud, Causing Spanish Strike

Jerusalem Gatherings Banned as Precaution

Jerusalem, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Ordinances prohibiting any gatherings in the streets were issued today by the district commissioner and the commander of police. The order also prohibits massed singing of songs and bearing of flags.

The measures were interpreted as precautions for Sunday, which is the anniversary of the Balfour declaration of Palestine.

CHICAGO POLICEMAN SHOT ON STREET CAR

seat it paused; two men leaned from the rear window and emptied sawed-off shotguns and the driver, guiding his wheel with one hand, fired a revolver at the policeman. McBride slumped in his seat. Passengers ducked the flying glass and ran for exits. The car, bearing a Wisconsin license, sped away.

On December 13, 1925, McBride and Policeman Edward Pflaume encountered White and a former convict companion, Jimmy Johnstone, in a tavern on the outskirts of the suburb. They shot it out, McBride killing Johnstone, and White, according to evidence at his trial; killing Pflaume. He was convicted, but the new trial ordered by the Supreme Court was never held.

Ditchburne intimated that Claude Maddox, notorious hoodlum, was among the suspects.

An associate of Maddox, Willie Jackson, was arrested for questioning. Jackson was once a suspect in the 1929 St. Valentine Day massacre of seven Moran gangsters.

M'BRIDE RIDICULES CURRAN'S WET POLL

Asserts Election Will Not Bear Out Antiprohibition Group's Optimism.

CITES "NOISE" STRATEGY

(Associated Press.)

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, said in a statement last night that Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, "is blowing bubbles which will burst next Tuesday when he implies that a majority of the candidates for Congress are for repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

The statement was issued in reply to Mr. Curran's announcement last Tuesday that 371 replies to 823 questionnaires sent out by the Association against the Prohibition Amendment to ascertain the prohibition views of congressional candidates showed 265 for and 99 against repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Claim Drys Didn't Answer.

"There are at least 883 candidates for the Senate and House," Mr. McBride said. "The wet questionnaire was sent to 823. Of these only 265 are claimed to have replied for repeal, while 99 answered dry and 452 did not reply.

"Naturally, every candidate seeking support from the well-financed wet organization rushed his answer back, while most of the drys paid no attention to this roll call of the wets."

Mr. McBride said "this latest statement designed to magnify wet strength is characteristic of liquor tactics in this campaign," adding that "the liquorites will wake up on the morning after election with less than one-third of the two-thirds vote necessary for Congress to merely submit repeal to the States."

Cites Steps Necessary.

"After that," he said, "ratification by thirty-six States would have to be secured to bring back booze. And all but fifteen of the States were dry before national prohibition came. • • • Undoubtedly the wets will get out their fullest possible strength on November 4. But if the voters who oppose repeal go to the polls it will be a revelation to all who estimated wet numbers by wet noise."

Mr. McBride charged that the anti-prohibitionists had sought "to create the illusion of a strong wet trend" by inducing as many as possible of those who always have been wet "to make a loud noise now."

"The yarns about brewers getting ready to make real beer and the endless rumors about this or that action by the Wickersham committee," he asserted, "were all a part of this strategy."

Quarantine on Parrots Lifted by Government

(Associated Press.)

The quarantine against parrots, in effect since January 24, was lifted yesterday by the Public Health Service. Under strict sanitary regulations, which, it is believed, will guard against further outbreaks of psittacosis, such as occurred last holiday season, the parrots again will be allowed to enter America's pet shops.

Shipments will be restricted to a maximum of 100 birds, in sanitary crates of not more than 10 birds each, allowing 1 cubic foot of space per bird.

PINCHOT DECLARED PROBABLE WINNER BY 50,000 BALLOTS

a last-minute change of heart and vote for him, but that they will just give up and lessen their pressure out in the State. A down-heartedness is apparent in some quarters of the opposition now.

Should the sponge be thrown up between now and Tuesday it can easily be seen how Pinchot will win by 150,000.

The Pinchot leaders are claiming 125,000 votes in Philadelphia. It is doubtful that they will get more than 75,000. The feeling against Pinchot here is not confined to the so-called gang. It is strong among the independent voters.

National Republican leaders have made anxious inquiries as to whether or not the confusion is not likely to result in several Republican representatives going down to defeat and as a result of their apprehension there has been an intensive educational campaign on for more than a week instructing the voters how to mark an "X" by Hemphill's name, but at the same time place one in the column next to "Republican," the effect of the two crosses being a vote for Hemphill, but the straight Republican ticket the rest of the way.

So far as Philadelphia is concerned the educational campaign should prevent any slip-ups, as with the exception of Hemphill the vote for Republican candidates will be so overwhelming that hundreds or even thousands of incompleted ballots would not affect the congressional result.

This is not true in two or three hotly contested districts out in the State, notably the Fourteenth, formerly held by Representative Esterly, and the Thirtieth, held by Representative Coyle. There are some other questionable districts, too, the Twelfth, Seventeenth, Twentieth districts. Indeed, it would not be surprising if the Republicans lose five or so House seats in the Keystone State.

On the other hand, the Pinchot row has helped them in that it has diverted attention from the congressional races. It, in fact, has taken the whole stage.

Man Who Treated Patients By Radio Convicted of Fraud

Judge Fails to Respond to Benefits of "Aetheronics," as Demonstrated in Courtroom and Jury Decides Doctor Obtained Money Under False Pretenses.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—A criminal court jury decided today that one who uses radio waves as an agency for the treatment of human ills is guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Treatments by radio were given from the office of Dr. J. E. Johnston, and even if there was no response in the case of Judge Samuel H. Gardner, who was party to an experiment in the courtroom, there was a large number of Dr. Johnston's patients to testify that his treatments were of benefit to them.

Paraphernalia was produced in court to better demonstrate the methods of treatment by "aetheronics," as the practice was termed, Dr. H. C. Bennett, of Lima, Ohio, a witness for the defense, demonstrated the methods. Johnston testified his method consisted of starting "waves" which became active when they clashed with waves emanated by the human body.

Judge Gardner, by Dr. Bennett's admission, did not respond to the experiment in which he voluntarily took a hand after watching Defense Attorney William D. Coleman in the part he played in a similar experiment.

Attorney Coleman had written figures on a bit of paper and showed them to Dr. Bennett. The paper was placed on a machine before the court. Dr. Bennett manipulated the machine and announced the figure was 52, and said he felt manifestations of copper. He explained the figure 52 corresponds in "aetheronics" to copper.

There were further demonstrations and then Judge Gardner wrote figures on paper. The paper was placed on the machine and there followed further manipulations of the paraphernalia on the part of Dr. Bennett. There was no reaction, Dr. Bennett said. It was, he explained, only one of many experiments, some of which had failed.

The false pretense charge was brought after Dr. Johnston had accepted a fee from a county detective for treatment of one whom he said was his sister. Detectives raided his office several months ago.

The case went to the jury late today and a verdict of guilty was returned in an hour. In his closing argument James Geltz, assistant district attorney, assailed Dr. Johnston, saying, "This man's methods are nothing but modern magic and constitute the lowest form of false pretense."

There were numerous defense witnesses, however, who had testified that good results were obtained from treatments administered by the defendant.

Dr. Johnston testified that he used electrical treatments now in common use 31 years ago and was ridiculed. He denied in cross-examination that he ever had promised a "cure" in his practice of "aetheronics."

The penalty as a result of the conviction is not more than three years' imprisonment nor more than $500 fine or both. Counsel for Dr. Johnston said a new trial would be asked.

HURLEY HITS BACK AT HOOVER CRITICS

Declares Democratic Party Has No Campaign Issue but Vilification.

SEES LACK OF LEADERS

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic party was charged last night by Secretary Hurley with having no campaign issue for the election next Tuesday "outside of its consistent and persistent attack upon the elected leader of the people."

The Secretary of War added in his address over the Columbia Broadcasting System that the "Democratic party is a party of obstruction, not a party of leadership."

He also replied to the recent radio address by Chairman Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, asserting that the record of the Hoover administration is "a complete answer to the Democratic compaign of vilification" and that the Republicans had favored a 5-day week for workmen.

Never Once Failed.

During the last 16 years, Hurley said, in "every major emergency that had confronted the Nation, Democratic and Republican Presidents, alike, had called upon Herbert Hoover to relieve sufferers and to bring about economic stability among the classes affected."

"In every instance he has succeeded," the Secretary of War asserted.

Referring to the prediction by Raskob that prosperity would return to the United States in three months, Hurley said: "I am not so confident as to the time of the return of prosperity because I am familiar with the conditions that confront the economic structure of the country, but I am confident that on the foundation laid by Herbert Hoover, prosperity and stability will return despite the efforts of the Democrats to exaggerate economic conditions and prolong the period of national instability, for political purposes."

Hurley referred to the six-point program proposed by Raskob if the Democrats were in power and asserted, "We find that the Hoover administration has already done the important and legal and reasonable things that he suggests."

Hired Others to Do It.

"Mr. Raskob said during the course of his address," Hurley continued, "that he has never spoken unkindly of the President. That statement, no doubt, it true. Mr. Raskob could also say that he has never built an automobile, but he certainly has had millions of them built by others. Who pays Charles Michelson (publicity director for the Democratic national committee) for doing what Mr. Raskob says he does not do personally?"

Discussing the five-day week proposed by Raskob, Hurley said: "Mr. William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, the Republican nominee for senator, has been running on that platform for months. The President's committee to promote employment has stated definitely that one of its fundamental policies is shorter working time and the employment of a greater number.

"Long before Mr. Raskob's statement appeared, industrialists, municipalities and State governments had been asked to consider the feasibility of shorter time and greater numbers of workers, to assist in giving employment to all."

Farm Prices Sink To Level of 1915

Five-Point Decline Since September 15 Is Put on Records.

(Associated Press.)

The lowest October level of farm prices since 1915 was reported yesterday by the Department of Agriculture in making known a 5-point decline from September 15 to October 15 to put prices 34 points below a year ago. The farm prices of virtually all commodities, except hay, veal calves, and eggs, declined. Hay prices were virtually unchanged, veal calves advanced slightly, egg prices showed considerably less than the usual seasonal advance.

Fruits and vegetables moved down 23 points; grain, 8; cotton and cotton seed, 7; dairy products, up 2; poultry and poultry products, up 4 points.

The average farm price of hogs declined from $9.44 per hundredweight on September 15 to $8.79 on October 15. A year ago the price was $9.10. The lower prices were attributed principally to a seasonal increase in supplies.

CARAWAY PREDICTS DEMOCRATIC GAINS

Akansas Senator Expects Victories in Kentucky and Oklahoma.

FINDS G. O. P. APATHETIC

(Associated Press.)

Decisive Democratic victories in Kentucky and Oklahoma next week were predicted yesterday by Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, who has been campaigning in these States.

In a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, the Arkansan expressed the opinion Oklahoma "will go Democratic from 50,000 to 75,000."

"My observation while engaged in the campaign in Oklahoma," he said, "is that the State Republican organization is putting forth very little effort to elect its candidate, Ira A. Hill, as governor. There seems to be no connection between the State organization and Senator Pine's organization to forward his reelection to the Senate.

"In fact, Senator Pine repudiates the entire Republican party. In his own language, he claims that the Democratic State platform, adopted at the recent State convention of Oklahoma, expresses the things for which he stands. In other words, he indorses everything the Democratic organization in Oklahoma represents except the selection of Senator Gore to succeed him.

"I was in Kentucky and I am impressed that the Democratic candidate, Judge Logan, will defeat Senator Robsion for the Senate by a very large majority. In fact, the Republican party seems to have no cohesion and no platform and to be without enthusiasm for its candidates or the present national administration."

Emery Fund 'Heirs' Dwindle to Three

Jersey Court Will Decide if Any Is Entitled to $325,000.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Only three claimants to the $325,000 trust fund left to a lost grandson by William E. Emery, of Flemington, were "in the running" when the case was closed today before Vice Chancellor John H. Backes.

Six did not appear during the four days of testimony. Counsel for three others withdrew their claims or said they had no evidence to offer. The vice chancellor will hear arguments on the testimony December 9, then decide if an heir exists.

Claimants who presented testimony were James E. Nicholson, of Baltimore; Leo Sova, of Milwaukee, and Albert Childers, of Los Angeles.

Each attempted to show he is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis F. Georger, alleged parents of the supposed grandson. In the event no heir is established, Vivian E. Cornelius, of Surrey, England, grandson of Emery by another daughter, will receive the fund.

The claims of Herbert Thomson, of Middleboro, Mass., and Howard M. Offutt, of Yonkers, N. Y., were withdrawn. Counsel for George Smith Bruce, of Memphis, Tenn., told the court he had no evidence to present.

West's Paper Describes Youth at Work and Play

(Associated Press.)

A composite picture of American youth as it works and plays was painted yesterday by James E. West, chairman of the committee on activities outside school and home, in a report prepared for the coming White House Child Conference.

Mr. West, in his daily life the national executive of the Boy Scouts, studied many phases of the youth problem, including radio, motion pictures, pool halls and dance halls, churches and clubs. His report made sweeping recommendations, ranging from keeping the bicycles of individual messenger boys off arterial highways to creating a great national clearing house for all boys and girls camps so they might serve more young citizens.

GOFF LAUDS HOOVER IN CAMPAIGN SPEECH

G. O. P. Solves All Problems, but Is Not to Blame for Slump, He Says.

DEPRESSIONS HELD RARE

Special to The Washington Post.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Senator Guy D. Goff delivered a campaign speech over the radio tonight, urging the election of all Republican candidates and paying tribute to President Hoover's success in counteracting depression and unemployment. Senator Goff said:

"The Republican party is and always has been a party of progress. It studies the problems of the hour and finds the ways and means to solve them. It is not responsible, however, for the results of betting, gambling, overspeculation and overproduction, and therefore should not be held accountable for the inevitable reaction which is sure to follow in the form of empty pocketbooks, business depression, unemployment and underconsumption.

"It is exceedingly rare that such a disturbance occurs under a Republican regime, but it is fortunate for the welfare of this Nation that if it had to happen, it occurred during a Republican administration.

Conferences Referred To.

"I have already cited what has been done to alleviate unemployment through the medium of tariff relief and restricted immigration. In addition to this, President Hoover called to the White House for conferences the leaders of business and industry and encouraged them to do their utmost to maintain established wages, and do everything possible to prevent unemployment. He is doing his best to solve this question of world-wide unemployment, and it is world-wide, because every nation has produced more than it can consume or sell. He is doing his best in service.

"President Hoover is a man of safety, balance and inspiration. He is kind, generous and always firmly independent. He knows our domestic and he knows our international conditions. He knows better than any one I know in or out of official life how to solve these problems. Obviously he is not responsible for unemployment in England, Belgium, Italy, Germany and Czechoslovakia, and neither he nor the policies of the Republican party are responsible for it here tonight. He knows the disease, its cauuse and its contagion, and he knows the remedy and the cure. If I did not think and believe this I should not stand here tonight and make this assertion. And if you wish him to continuue you must give him a Senate and a Congress in sympathy with him and which will work with him.

Recovery Near, Is Claim.

"The Department of Commerce has reported to President Hoover that public works and the construction of work by the railways and utilities in the last eight months has amounted to $4,500,000. In spite of pessimistic reports, which usually can be traced to Raskob and Al Smith and the publicity bureau of the Democratic headquarters in Washington, this country is now on the road to recovery.

"The representatives of the Democratic party are running true to form. They are crying wolf when they know there is no mastiff near. They have no constructive suggestions to offer and today are the greatest gloom-screamers and dispensers in all the world. They tell the people things are all wrong and that they therefore should be elected to office to correct them. How they would do it no one knows; they do not know, and no one will ever know. The fact is they can not do it, and they know it. The voters will have to decide between the definite constructive program of rehabilitation offered and pledged by the Republican administration and the calamity chorus of the Democratic party."

Conscience Drives Man to Surrender

Memphis Resident Tells Police He Absconded With $2,000.

Troubled, he said, by an uneasy conscience, a man who gave the name of Willis Helms, 43 years old, and said he was formerly a military instructor for the Board of Education in Memphis, Tenn., walked into the First Precinct station house yesterday and told police he had embezzled $2,000 while in Memphis.

Helms, according to police, said the embezzlement ocurred in 1921 and that he had been harassed by the thought of his act ever since. Inspector William S. Shelby, after questioning the man, wired police authorities in Memphis to determine whether or not he is wanted there. Helms, in the meantime, was held on the technical charge of investigation.

Associated Press dispatches from Memphis quoted Prof. R. L. Jones, superintendent of schools, as saying that Helms absconded in 1921 with $2,000 deposited by schoolboys for R. O. T. C. uniforms. Prof. Jones said if it was certain that Helms was the man wanted he will be returned to Memphis for trial.

combination of causes which no one yet comprehends. There has been chronic revolution in China, economic chaos and grave disturbances in India, so that one-half the population of the globe has been turned into a financial liability. South American States have been in revolt. These have had their influence. But probably we are going through that secondary reaction which has usually followed the first revival after great wars.

"No government worthy of confidence undertakes to guarantee prosperity. It can, however, through wise measures promoting security and peace accompanied by reasonable taxation, greatly encourage all kinds of business. Such a policy will make business better when times are good and prevent it from being worse when times are bad.

"If there was any action that could have been taken by the Government of the United States which would have prevented the trouble that has arisen all over the world, no one yet has convincingly stated it. Of course, during a political campaign, many claims are made, but I do not know of anything which the Federal or State governments have failed to do which either would have prevented the depression or now would cause a healthy revival of business."

He referred to efforts of President Hoover and Gov. Allen to relieve unemployment conditions and said:

"It is the duty of all our citizens and especially all our public officers without respect to party not only to cooperate with them to this end, but to refrain from groundless and reckless statements which can only retard the return of that public confidence so necessary to increased prosperity."

$475,000,000 BOND ISSUES UP FOR VOTE

Bulk of Sums in Several States Intended for Roads and Bridges.

POLLING DUE TUESDAY

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Next Tuesday about $475,000,000 in bond issues are to be voted on in a score of States.

Figures compiled by S. W. Straus & Co. showed today that $65,000,000 of this money is for projects such as Illinois' plan to enlarge her park area. The $410,000,000 will go for highway improvements, several public buildings, bridges and water-front improvements.

In Louisiana the voters will decide next Tuesday whether $100,000,000 is to be made available for the erection of a $5,000,000 State capitol, the building of a bridge at New Orleans and building of highways. All this work, S. W. Straus & Co. point out, could be started at once.

Improvements in West.

New Jersey will vote on a $100,000,000 bond issue for public improvements, mostly highways.

In California a $75,000,000 bond issue will be up, $35,000,000 for the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco, $10,000,000 for water-front improvements in San Francisco, $13,000,000 for an electric light and power plant in Los Angeles and the rest for smaller projects.

New York State voters will have up before them a $50,000,000 bond issue, the money to be spent in carrying out the State's hospital building program. Illinois will vote on a $25,000,000 bond issue. Most of this is for public improvements in Chicago.

Oklahoma is asking her voters for $15,000,000 for highways, Arizona has a $10,000,000 road-building project and Ohio wants $12,000,000 for a variety of public improvements.

Amounts in Other States.

Other States and the amounts they are asking for are:

Alabama, $525,000; Maryland, $1,000,000; Michigan, $500,000; Montana, $3,000,000; Nebraska, $4,500,000; Oregon, $1,405,000; Pennsylvania, $5,150,000; Rhode Island, $2,300,000; Texas, $100,000; Washington, $1,765,000; West Virginia, $800,000, and Wyoming $2,800,000.

"Most of this money, too, is for highways and other public improvements that could be started soon after election," said a statement from Straus & Co.

"Work could be provided for many thousands of unemployed. Not only would there be jobs for the men actually employed on these projects, but it should mean more work, too, for the steel mills, railroads, and so on. The ramifications are almost unlimited."

VOTER ACT LEGALITY TO BE ARGUED TODAY

Final Decision Expected on Repeal of Declaration of Intentions Clause.

TEST CASE IS BROUGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 30.—Whether the act passed by the Maryland Legislature in 1929 repealing the declaration of intention provisions regarding registration of voters in the State is unconstitutional as decreed by three judges in the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, as well as the presiding judge in the Calvert County Circuit Court, will be put up to the Court of Appeals for a final decision tomorrow.

Arguments will be heard by the appellate tribunal in a test case brought from Calvert County, the circumstances of which are similar in every respect to the situation in Anne Arundel wherein the right of 300 Washington residents to vote in this county was challenged by Republicans. A Washington resident also is involved in the Calvert County test case, decided by Judge William M. Loker, who ruled that the repealer law is unconstitutional, as did Chief Judge Francis C. Parke, of the Fifth Judicial Circuit Court, and two associates who heard testimony in the case of Ralph D. Keadle, of 5235 Georgia avenue, Washington, a few days ago.

In view of the similarity of the situations in both counties, the decision of the Court of Appeals, it is expected, will apply also to Anne Arundel. Meanwhile, however, former Attorney-General Isaac Lobe Straus, representing the Democratic State organization, is preparing test appeals involving 299 persons held to be ineligible to vote in this county. Judges in the local court today signed an order bearing upon that number of cases, and the names of the parties will be stricken from the registration lists if the highest court concurs on the ruling of the circuit judges. The original "suspect" lists in Anne Arundel County contained 325 names, but after further revision it was found that 26 of the parties are duly qualified voters.

MARKETING TASKS OF PACKERS CITED

G. F. Swift Tells of Problem at Hearing on Plea for Modification.

URGES WIDER DIVERSION

Statements that the present tendency of business is to carry goods from manufacturers directly to consumers featured testimony given by G. F. Swift, executive vice president of Swift & Co. at yesterday's session of the hearing on the packers' plea for modification of their consent decree which is being held before Justice Jennings Bailey in District of Columbia Supreme Court. Mr. Swift was the first official of that company to take the stand.

Like F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., who testified Wednesday, Mr. Swift delved deep into the packing industry and painted a comprehensive picture of the present merchandising condition which, packers believe, should result in a change in the court order signed in 1920 by which they were divorced from unallied lines. Mr. Swift stressed that other manufacturers of food products are not restricted as to merchandising methods as are the packers.

"If the packers, now restricted by the decree, were free to add other lines to those of meat," Mr. Swift said, "they would be enabled to cut the cost of handling products so that all concerned might benefit. By spreading the costs of sale, transportation and other overhead over a variety of products, the unit cost would be lowered to the benefit of the live stock producers, the packer, the retail dealer and the consumer."

Mr. Swift covered the method of buying live stock, its transformation into meat and the manner in which the product now reaches the retail dealer through branch houses and over car routes. He brought out the highly perishable nature of the product handled, the distance it is necessary to transport it, and said that there are grave dangers in handling without the constant supervision of some large-scale agency especially designed to perfect this service.

Testimony that if the consent decree were put into effect and the Armour's grape and pressing plant forced down, grape growers would suffer was given by Joseph A. McGinnis, of Ripley, N. Y., of the Chautauqua Grape Growers Co-op, Inc.; David K. Falvey, of Westdale, N. Y., and Charles H. Haya, of Northeast, Pa.

GARNER BARB DRAWS FAST MELLON REPLY

Secretary Defends Big Tax Refunds, Saying Larger Sums Came In.

COURTS ORDERED MANY

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mellon yesterday described as "simply preposterous" any suggestion that the Treasury could make tax refunds "for political or any other improper purpose."

This comment was made in reply to a statement issued yesterday by Representative Garner, Democrat, of Texas, who advocated an investigation of income tax refunds by the next Congress.

Mr. Mellon said it was significant that the Internal Revenue Bureau had collected far more in additional taxes than it had paid out in refunds. He also reviewed in detail the procedure for making refunds.

"During the past fourteen years," he said, "the total amount of additional assessments resulting from office audits and field investigations has been $5,345,202,277, while the amount paid out in refunds during the same period has been $1,254,317,890.

"During that period the total internal revenue receipts have been $44,033,371,357, so that the amount refunded by the bureau has been only approximately 2.8 per cent of the amount collected."

The Treasury Secretary added that the largest amount of refunds was due to court decisions or other causes over which the Treasury had no control.

"Furthermore," he continued, "the largest refunds in recent years have almost without exception been attributable to the years of the war. At that time the Government was under the necessity of collecting more than $4,000,000,000 annually. The statute was new and complicated and understood by few.

"There was no time to determine controversies and in the emergency taxpayers generally paid large amounts into the public treasury, the legality of which was in dispute. There was always, however, the assurance that ultimately these payments would be analyzed, that correct interpretations would be applied, that justice would be done and excessive payments refunded."

Mellon said Garner's suggestion that refunds be granted only upon court decisions "can not be intended seriously," adding that this would result in "such interminable delay as to break down the administration of our income tax system and would place an intolerable burden upon our already overworked Federal courts."

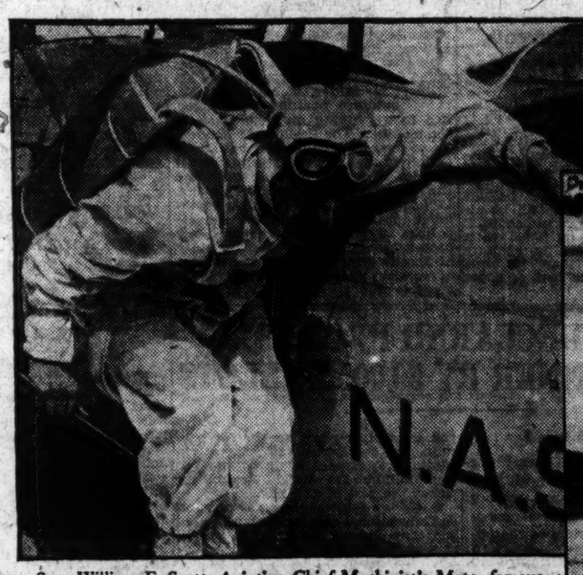
CLASSIFIED

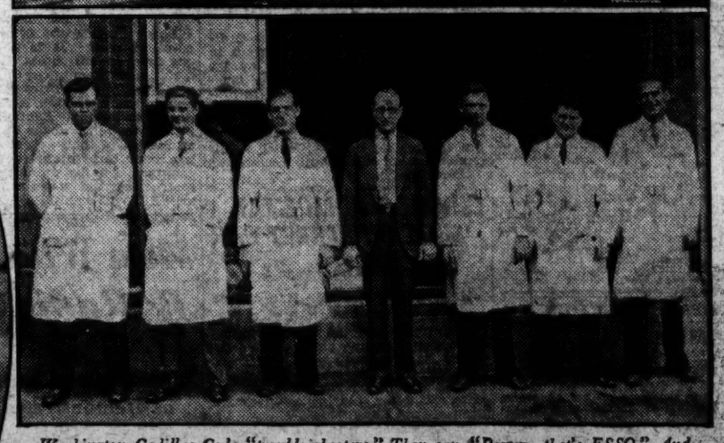
MOST POPULAR because it's MOST POWERFUL



Says William F. Scott, Aviation Chief Machinist's Mate, famous parachute jumper, "I don't get the knocks with ESSO that I get with all those other 'knockless' gasolines, and I get more power, quicker pickup and less carbon."

Says Miss Elizabeth Hume, Assistant Society Editor of one of Washington's leading newspapers, "I find it easier and safer to drive with ESSO in the city. And when I'm taking a spin in the country, I like the steady power it gives."

Says G. H. O'Connor, Vice President of the District Lawyers Washington Title Insurance Companies, "Power that's dependable, both in traffic and over the long run, that's what ESSO gives you."



Washington Cadillac Co.'s "trouble shooters." They say, "Power—that's ESSO." And half the other leading car dealers of Washington use ESSO, the Giant Power Fuel, because it gives better all 'round performance in the cars they demonstrate.

ALL over Washington it's the same story. Motor experts . . . car dealers . . . women drivers . . . owners of fours, sixes, eights, sixteens—they one and all agree, when they have given ESSO a fair trial with a tankful, that it's more powerful than any gasoline and does not knock.

That's why ESSO is so popular in Washington—it has made good by giving better all 'round performance. Try ESSO yourself. Fill up at the nearest "Standard" service station or "Standard" dealer's. The new thrill you get out of driving will make you say, "No wonder ESSO's so popular—it certainly has the power!"

ORPHANAGE OFFICER CONFESSED, CLAIM

Accountant Says Treasurer Told Him of Using Fund in Richmond Business.

$37,000, IN ALL, MISSING

Richmond, Va., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Two State's witnesses testified today that James P. Jones, former treasurer of the Methodist Orphanage, has admitted using $20,000 of the orphanage's funds in his Richmond furniture business.

The witnesses, F. L. Worcester, an accountant, and Dr. G. I. McAllen, superintendent of the orphanage, gave evidence in Jones' trial in Hustings Court on charges of embezzling $4,944.50. Jones, a member of the General Assembly, is also under indictment for larceny totaling $37,000.

The superintendent said Jones asked Dr. McAllen to meet him in the Medical Arts Building at Richmond one evening.

Dr. McAllen said he carried I. N. Vaughan, another member of the committee, with him, and that they met Jones, his brother, Dr. Thomas D. Jones, and his son-in-law, W. T. Stewart.

Conversation of Jones.

"Mr. J. P. Jones told us he had an embarrassing statement to make," said the witness. "He said his books were not in order for a meeting of the executive committee the next day, but if he was given until July 1 he and the others would make good the money."

"I asked J. P. Jones what he had done with the money," said the witness, "and he said he had used it in his business and had expected to sell the business and pay it back."

On about July 29, Dr. McAllen said, the auditing committee from the board of trustees met with Jones in his store, and Worcester, the auditor, produced the audit showing a balance due the orphanage by Jones of $23,011.78.

This, the witness said, was after Jones had made a settlement with the board in which $14,000 was paid over.

$3,000 Unaccounted for.

"Mr. Worcester asked what had become of the money," Dr. McAllen said. "Mr. Jones replied that he had used $20,000 in his business, but didn't know where the other $3,000 went."

F. L. Worcester, the accountant, who audited Jones' books, testified today that the treasurer was "slow" in giving up his books, and that he admitted using $20,000 of the orphanage funds in his business.

A check from the Methodist Church at Blackstone, payable to "James P. Jones, treasurer," and so indorsed, was introduced by the prosecution this afternoon. The check was for $112.20 and in the corner was written "for white Christmas." Worcester testified that the check was not entered on Jones' cash book and that it was deposited in his personal account. It bore a February date, this year.

REFORMER IS HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Arrested at Warrenton, She Accuses Mother of New York Frame-Up.

CAUGHT IN AUTO CHASE

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 30.—Mrs. Agnes M. Walker, social and political reformer, was arrested today and held for New York County authorities on a grand larceny bench warrant of general sessions court, charging that February 16, 1926, she "with force and arms took $300 from a certain Edward Irving Valentic," and that on that date she was agent, bailee and trustee of Valentic.

An indictment was returned against her by a grand jury October 14, 1926. Joseph Russo, a detective, reported to the court she could not be found in New York State. A new warrant for her arrest was issued in New York Tuesday after authorities had been told of her living here.

Police found her in a fashionable lingerie shop today, and on her plea to avoid attracting attention on the street, she was given permission to walk to the police station. Instead, she got into her automobile and drove off at top speed, pursued by half dozen police in other cars. She was overtaken in the suburbs.

Blames Her Mother.

She was indicted under the name of Agnes M. Waters, alias Mulligan, but admitted the warrant was intended for her. She told police she was "being framed" by her mother, Mrs. Agnes K. Murphy Mulligan, Palisade, N. J., because Mrs. Walker had employed counsel in New York the same day the new warrant was issued to prevent immediate distribution of the estate of her father, the late William G. Mulligan, lawyer and realtor, valued in excess of $1,000,000.

Mrs. Walker called her mother on the telephone at police headquarters, asking her to take charge of her two little daughters, but claimed her mother only told her to "go to hell."

She was endeavoring to persuade local friends tonight to keep her children until she can return from New York, a date which is indefinite. Meanwhile, she and the children were kept in a hotel room, guarded by police.

Mrs. Walker, whose estranged husband is said to live in California, came here several years ago from Washington and leased a suburban residence owned by Mayor F. A. Shryock, where she did much entertaining. Shortly after arriving she announced plans to organize all the dry Democratic women to oppose nomination of Alfred E. Smith "because he was wet."

Scheduled Speech Not Made

She announced that Mrs. Jesse W Nicholson, of Maryland, would be the keynote speaker, but Mrs. Nicholson failed to come, being in North Carolina at the time. Mrs. Walker later issued engraved announcements of a large sale of residential lots in a Washington suburb she claimed to be developing.

Some months ago she appeared before the city council, urging it to withhold an appropriation from the Red Cross on the ground that the organization's relief work locally was misdirected. She also issued circulars attackig the Red Cross.

She went to Baltimore recently and operated the St. James tea room on North Charles street.

The bride is a graduate of Bunker Hill High School and has attended Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, N. C. The groom is a graduate of Martinsburg High School and West Virginia University and is connected with the educational bureau of a New York firm.

ALEXANDRIA JEWS ESTABLISH CENTER

Group, Seeking New Members, Will Hold Meeting Next Wednesday.

MRS. C. G. SANBORN DIES

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
307 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Jewish Community Center for this city has been formed, with 60 persons arranging the preliminary plans for a meeting on Wednesday at 508 Wolfe street, where permanent headquarters will be established.

Those interested are the Rev. M. H. Levinson, Samuel Goldstein, H. Hoffman and Morris Loeb, from this city, and Mr. Minovick, David Schrott and Dr. Theodore Krakower, of Washington, all of whom are scheduled to talk on the project and its aims and purposes, which are to foster and engender spiritual welfare to its members, friendship, social, moral and physical, with fidelity to the community at large.

Tentative plans have been made for various activities in the way of athletics by the installation of a gymnasium and shower baths. Classes in Jewish literature will be formed, with current events and history given by the Rev. Mr. Levinson.

A membership committee is now working to enlarge the roster of the organization composed of Louis Sidenburg, Miss R. Hoffman, Miss Ethel Berkow and Miss Siegel, and they will call upon every Jewish young man and woman in the city.

A committee from the Chamber of Commerce will go to Winchester on Monday to attend a meeting to urge the changing of what is known as Route 50 to the George Washington highway. This route extends from Alexandria to Winchester and thence parallel with the Lincoln highway to the Pacific Coast. The local committee is composed of Fred C. Goodnow, L. H. Dudley, Doll Zirkle, John Barton Phillips, Floyd W. King, George F. Downham, A. M. Remschel, Charles T. Bowdoin and Robert G. Carter.

The Northern Virginia advisory committee of the American Automobile Association will hold a meeting on Friday, November 7, at 12:30 o'clock, at the George Mason Hotel, presided over by State Senator Frank L. Ball, chairman of the committee. Luncheon will precede the business meeting.

Mrs. Cynthia G. Sanborn, 84 years old, widow of E. Z. Sanborn, died on Wednesday at her home on Duke street road. She was a native of New York State, but had made her home in Virginia for the last 43 years. She is survived by a son, Merritt Sanborn, of Fairfax County, 17 grandchildren, and 24 great-grandchildren. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the home, conducted by the Rev. H. B. Brenner, pastor of the Free Methodist Church. Burial will be at Woodbridge, Va.

Miss Nellie Hammill, aged 75 years, a former resident of this city, died yesterday at her home in Washington. The funeral will be held at 1 o'clock tomorrow from Demaine's Chapel, conducted by the Rev. J. C. Copenhaver, of Washington, and burial will be in Union Cemetery.

Police Capt. W. W. Campbell has issued instructions to all policemen to patrol the streets tonight and prevent disorder during the Halloween revelry.

Charles A. White Dies.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 30 (Special).—Charles A. White, 72, died Tuesday at his home at Sweet Briar, Amherst County, death following a stroke of paralysis and an illness of nine months. He is survived by his widow and four children. Mr. White was a member of Ebenezer Baptist Church, Amherst County.

Junior League Elects Nancy Hoyt.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Miss Nancy Hoyt, of Jacksonville, Fla., was elected regional treasurer and Chattanooga, Tenn., was selected as next year's convention city at the closing meeting of the annual conference of Southeastern Region IV, Association of Junior Leagues of America, today.

GRAND JURY OPENS BUSH MURDER QUIZ

CONVERSATIONS FIGURE

Investigation of the murder of Louis Bush, proprietor of the Gray Line buses, was begun yesterday by the District of Columbia grand jury.

It is considering charges against William Carnell, his mother, Mrs. Sarah M. Sullivan; Frank Mahoney and William C. McKay. All were held for grand jury action last week by a coroner's jury, Carnell on a homicide charge and the others on accessory charges.

Seventeen witnesses paraded before the grand jury during the day, among them being Joseph H. Mills, of T street northwest near First street, and James T. Dolan, of Florida avenue northwest near First street, who were held for a time as material witnesses. Mills and Dolan are supposed to have testified regarding alleged conversations they are said to have overheard among the four defendants.

Mr. Bush was fatally wounded October 6 during an encounter with alleged holdup men in his garage. The bus operator was shot twice and, although not believed to be fatally injured, died several days later.

Police for several days made a futile hunt for the assailants until Mrs. Sullivan is said to have told them her son had killed the man. The son and Mahoney fled soon after the crime but the latter was apprehended in Pittsburgh and returned to Washington. Carnell, however, still is at liberty. Assistant United States Attorney Renah F. Camalier conducted the questioning of witnesses.

WIND-UP OF THE CAMPAIGN.

With the election only four days away, the campaigns of both the Republican and Democratic parties have reached the final stage. It is too late to introduce any new issues. All that can be said on either side has been repeated many times.

Former Gov. Smith's address is the best summary of the Democrats' case that has been given. With laudable fairness he exonerates the Republican party of blame for the economic depression and the consequent unemployment. He does, however, indict the party for claiming to be the sole proprietor of prosperity in 1928. Many overenthusiastic Republicans will have to plead guilty to that charge.

But when Gov. Smith charges the administration with "refusing to face the situation long after hard times had arrived," and with "doing nothing to relieve conditions," he is running counter to the facts. President Hoover acted so promptly in calling a conference of industrial and business leaders to head off a slack period that some other Democrats have accused him of taking the situation too seriously and thereby promoting lack of confidence. The administration went as far as the Government can go to fend off the depression, and is now succeeding in the effort to restore normal conditions.

A second charge is that the situation of the farmer is worse than before as a result of the administration's program of farm relief. Since Gov. Smith had already exonerated the administration of all blame for the depression, it is difficult to see any political force in this statement. Should the Democrats win a majority in Congress the experiment in farm relief probably would be disrupted and a futile attempt to introduce the debenture or equalization fee would be made. The farmer could gain nothing and might lose a good deal if the farm relief program of the administration were paralyzed.

Democratic spokesmen have attempted to make a party issue out of prohibition. The absurdity of their effort is merely emphasized by Gov. Smith when he calls attention to the fact that a number of wet Republicans are running against dry Democrats. The liquor issue cuts through both parties. It may be a turning point in several State campaigns. But when Gov. Smith makes a wet speech he is campaigning for some eminent Republicans as well as Democrats.

The 1930 tariff act has been denounced with a loud voice, but only weak and timid voices have proclaimed what the Democrats plan to do about it. They may well hesitate to prescribe an operation for a patient that is just beginning to recover from a serious disease. But the Democratic program includes just such an ordeal for business and industry, and no amount of camouflage will change the fact. Every one knows that it would be impossible to enact a Democratic tariff with a Republican President in the White House, and yet, if the Democrats should capture Congress, they would make the futile attempt to revise the tariff. Nothing but business confusion would result.

A Democratic Congress would tie the hands of President Hoover and obstruct the program now under way to aid business recovery. Under these circumstances only one conclusion is possible: It would be better for the country as a whole, even for the Democrats, to have a Republican majority in both houses of Congress during the coming two years.

THIEVES OF MOSCOW.

Details of a new dumping enterprise directed from Moscow are beginning to come to light. Apparently the Soviet government has not been able to secure sufficient capital to carry out its five-year plan of industrialization by exporting Russian products abroad, and is now engaged in buying foreign goods on credit and selling them at cut-rate prices to secure a supply of immediate cash and demoralize foreign markets. A dispatch from Paris says that millions of dollars lent to Russia for the purchase of goods in foreign markets have been used to undermine prices in the very markets in which the purchases were made.

Under ordinary conditions buying at prevailing prices and selling for 10 to 30 per cent less would be a ruinous business. But the Soviet government is purchasing supplies in the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France and other countries on credit. It is possible to sell goods at a 20 per cent paper loss and still have immense profits available for the Soviet industrial budget. The Soviet dictators are little concerned about repayment of these loans. A clause in the Soviet constitution gives the government authority to repudiate any obligation that becomes burdensome. The Communist regime has demonstrated on numerous occasions its utter lack of integrity.

An indication of the Soviet's new policy was exposed in their short selling of wheat on the Chicago Exchange. A government that is committed to a policy of world revolution does not hesitate to strike at the capitalist system by fair or foul means. It is absurd to expect the communistic regime to abide by the rules of fair play and honesty.

Some European governments have already taken steps to prevent importation of Russian goods at demoralizing prices. France allows no Russian products to be shipped in, except by license. Other governments are considering means of combatting the menace, and an economic alliance against Russia is proposed. No definite action has been taken in the United States, but if it is found that Soviet agents are drawing upon Americans for credit and using that credit to undercut prices, action will be demanded of Congress.

It is apparent that the Communists are playing every card in their effort to ruin industries while the depression lasts. In view of their principles and objectives nothing else can be expected of them. Trade with such a regime is certain to prove a boomerang in one way or another. Sooner or later the United States must face the question of expelling the agents of communism in this country and protecting its citizens from the trickery of the thieves of Moscow.

MAYOR CURLEY SAVES THE NATION.

Mayor James M. Curley of Boston presents a grandiose scheme for "relieving industrial depression and adding to the present and future wealth of America." He would have the Government pour $1,000,000,000 into the improvement of the Mississippi River Valley, not over a period of years, but forthwith. His imagination pictures the vast benefits, direct and indirect, that would ensue. Work would be made available to an army of laborers and technicians. The material that would be required would speed factory wheels in myriad industries. The project would create a new industrial empire in the valley; facilities for the generation of cheap electric power would be available, new arteries of transportation would be opened up, and the problems of flood control in the valley would be solved once and for all. All this is set forth by Mayor Curley in a letter directed to President Hoover, Secretary Hurley and other Cabinet officers.

It's a great pity that the author of this letter should be shoved off in a corner of the United States, to waste his great talents in a mayor's chair. Flood control has been a matter of controversy among the best engineering minds of the country for years, and now comes a layman, and a politician at that, to tell the engineers how flood control may be achieved at once. Unemployment, too, has proved a vexatious question, and it should be mastered without delay. As Mayor Curley says in his letter: "The people of America have little sympathy with a staggered program of relief that contemplates three years." Obviously the thing to do is to jump head first into a billion dollar project without considering its ramifications and without advance preparation. Where would the $1,000,000,000 come from? Ah, that is only a detail.

The public will probably see more of these attempts to turn the industrial depression and the unemployment emergency to political advantage. The country will be flooded with proposals for unemployment relief, launched by politicians in the hope that the schemes will catch popular fancy and make their authors "men of the hour." It is an easy game, and costs nothing.

LEAVE IT TO HOOVER.

In a radio address last night to the voters of West Virginia, Senator Goff drew a contrast between the "psychological panic" of President Wilson's time and the present depression. The hard times that followed enactment of the Underwood tariff law were clearly the result of tampering with the policy of protection to American industries, while the present depression is obviously a world-wide reaction. The West Virginia senator repudiated the idea that the Republican party should be held responsible for the slump following excessive speculation. "It is not responsible," he said, "for the results of betting, gambling, overspeculation and overproduction and, therefore should not be held accountable for the inevitable reaction which is sure to follow in the form of empty pocketbooks, business depression, unemployment and underconsumption."

Fair-minded men of all parties agree that the Republican party is not the author of business depression. The question now is how to make conditions better. "It is exceedingly rare that such a disturbance occurs under a Republican regime," said Senator Goff, "but it is fortunate that if it had to happen it occurred during a Republican administration." He gave credit to President Hoover for his promptness and success in assembling the industrial forces of the country and preventing the reduction of wages. Senator Goff said:

> President Hoover called to the White House for conferences the leaders of business and industry and encouraged them to do their utmost to maintain established wages and do everything possible to prevent unemployment. He is doing his best to solve this question of world-wide unemployment, and it is world-wide, because every nation has produced more than it can consume or sell. He is doing his best in service. President Hoover is a man of safety, balance and inspiration. He knows our domestic and international conditions. He knows better than any one else I know, in or out of official life, how to solve these problems. Obviously, he is not responsible for unemployment in England, Belgium, Italy, Germany and Czechoslovakia, and neither he nor the policies of the Republican party are responsible for it. He knows the disease, its cause and its contagion, and he knows the remedy and the cure. And if you wish him to continue, you must give him a Senate and a Congress in sympathy with him and which will work with him.
> In spite of pessimistic reports, which usually can be traced to Raskob and Al Smith and the publicity bureau of the Democratic headquarters in Washington, this country is now on the road to recovery. The representatives of the Democratic party are running true to form. They are crying wolf when they know there is no mastiff near. They have no constructive suggestions to offer and today are the greatest gloom dispensers in all the world. They tell the people things are all wrong and that they therefore should be elected to office to correct them. How they would do it no one knows, they do not know, and no one will ever know. The fact is they can not do it and they know it.

The country placed President Hoover in the White House to carry into effect the platform of the Republican party. In spite of treachery within the party he is making the party pledges effective. He is entitled to the support of the people and Congress while he is carrying out the popular will. Nothing but confusion and governmental impotence could follow the election of a Congress antagonistic to the President. Senator Goff is right in asserting that there is no Democratic plan for dealing with the economic situation and that a Democratic Congress could not execute a plan if it should evolve one.

HALLOWEEN

By AURIGA.

Any compilation of a newspaper calendar would be incomplete without the inclusion of John D's birthday—and Halloween. The former is July 8, and the latter October 31. Today, then, is Halloween, when a variety of superstitious customs are observed by an otherwise enlightened generation. It is likewise the eve of All Saints' Day, or Hallowmas, a day of first rank in the Catholic Church. Though now celebrated as being the eve of that religious festival commemorating those saints, known and unknown, to whom particular days could not be allotted in their individual honor because of their numbers, Halloween and its formerly attendant ceremonies long antedate Christianity.

"The main celebrations of Halloween were purely Druidical," says the Encyclopedia Britannica, which points out that "on the Druidic ceremonies were grafted some of the characteristics of the Roman festival in honor of Pomona, held about the first of November, in which nuts and apples, as representing the winter store of fruits, played an important part. Thus the roasting of nuts and the sport known as 'apple ducking'—attempting to seize with the teeth an apple floating in a tub of water—were once the universal occupation of the young folk in medieval England on the 31st of October."

This, Allhallows' Eve, or Hallow Eve, has in the past been known by many names, a popular one having been Nutcrack Night, so called because during the festival young men and women made soothsayers of the nuts which formed the chief portion of the evening's meal. On this point Burns wrote in the scholarly footnotes to "Halloween," his celebrated poem: "Burning the nuts is a famous charm. They name the lad and lass to each particular nut as they lay them in the fire. Accordingly as the nuts burn together, or start from beside one another, the course and issue of the courtship will be." Burns once more:

> Some merry, friendly, countra folks,
> Together did convene,
> To burn their nits, an' pou their stocks,
> An' haud their Halloween. * * *
> The auld guidwife's weel-hoorded nits
> Are round an' round divided,
> An' monie lads' and lasses' fates
> Are there that night decided:
> Some kindle, couthie, side by side,
> An' burn thegither trimly;
> Some start awa wi' saucy pride,
> And jump out owre the chimlie.

To assemble into one grand work all the literature of Halloween would perhaps require a hundred imperial octavos, with as many more to hold the appendices. Yet one may secure ample information by consulting merely Fraser's "Golden Bough," Dyer's "British Popular Customs," Chambers's "Book of Days," Brand's "Popular Antiquities" and Hone's "Every-Day Book," although much in the latter is taken from Brand, who himself lifts the following from Vallancey's "Collectanea de Rebus Hibernicis":

> The good women are employed in making the griddle cake and candles; these last are sent from house to house in the vicinity, and are lighted up on the next day, before which they pray, or are supposed to pray, for the departed soul of the donor. Every house abounds in the best viands they can afford; apples and nuts are devoured in abundance; the nut-shells are burnt, and from the ashes many strange things are foretold; cabbages are torn up by the root; hemp-seed is sown by the maidens and they believe that if they look back they will see the apparition of the man intended for their future spouse; they hang a smock before the fire on the close of the feast, and sit up all night, concealed in a corner of the room, convinced that his apparition will come down the chimney and turn the smock; they throw a ball of yarn out of the window, and wind it on the reel within, convinced that if they repeat the Pater Noster backwards, and look at the ball of yarn without, they will then also see his sith or apparition; they dig for apples in a tub of water, and endeavor to bring one up in the mouth; they suspend a cord with a cross stick, with apples at one point, and candles lighted at the other, and endeavor to catch the apple while it is in a circular motion, in the mouth. These, and many other superstitious ceremonies, the remains of Druidism, are observed on this holiday.

What Chambers wrote in 1863 still applies today, for that grand old literary antiquarian, warming up to his subject, said that there is "no night in the year which the popular imagination has stamped with a more peculiar character than the evening of the 31st of October." To him Halloween was "clearly a relic of pagan times, for there is nothing in the church observance of the ensuing day of All Saints to have originated such extraordinary notions as are connected with this celebrated festival, or such remarkable practices as those by which it is distinguished."

What Chambers did not write, because he did not live 61 years longer, is that if Halloween was in the time of our English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh ancestors a season of religious devotion and day for cracking nuts, ducking for apples and performing other harmless reveiries while disguised as witches, ghosts, goblins and hobgoblins, it certainly is not wholly so today, as any man knows who has been obliged to climb to the roof of another man's garage in order to rescue his own front gate.

THE FAILURE OF FASCISM.

The truth is that Fascism has failed precisely where it had hoped to succed, according to Percy Winner in the New Republic, that is, on the material side.

No one who knows Italy can doubt that Fascism has achieved notable apparent successes in improving and modernizing the productive instrumentalities and processes of the nation. Much of this work had been projected or planned before Fascism, but it remained for Fascism to accomplish it.

To avoid a lengthy catalogue let us say that Fascism has raised the level of efficiency more thany any previous government.

This is not the place for an exhaustive analysis of Fascism's financial and economic woes. The essential point is that Fascism's apparent benefits are more than canceled by the results of other inefficiencies; by its disregard for sound principles and its tendency to try by force to bolster up unsound ideas.

But what has Fascism resulted in? From the political point of view Fascism is digging its own grave. The average Italian is working twice as hard as he did before and he receives less bread for all his labors. And the Italians are not interested in pie in the sky when they die.

TRUTH.

One heard a sordid tale of filthy crime
And wrote it down as true;
Lettered the facts upon the page of time
To show what mortals do.

Murder and lust and greed beyond dispute
Still shame the race,
But should we give to the occasional brute
The choicest place?

Is not the man who walks in honor's way
And loves his wife,
Works for his children's welfare day by day,
As true to life?

What of the men who for another's sake
Do friendly acts?
What of the lovely gardens mortals make?
Are they not facts?

Men at their worst to what is worst are true;
That's manifest,
But countless millions here in all they do
Prove what is best.

The Abundance of Fish Profits Nobody If Somebody Rocks the Boat.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

PHILOSOPHERS, bankers and laymen who compose the great army of explainers may offer a thousand reasons for our present "hard times," but with few exceptions they unite in a common error. They mistake symptoms for the disease itself.

To determine the cause of a man's death, discover the one abnormality without which he would still be living.

One school, led by a millionaire publicist, says times are hard because we have too much of everything. That is both untrue and absurd. There is no surplus of wheat while thousands of families have less bread than they desire—no surplus of cars while thousands long for them in vain.

Manufacturers and merchants had large stocks when the crash came, but so they had a year before when nothing happened. And everybody of sound sense knows these stocks would have been absorbed if nothing had happened to frighten the public.

A second school uses the theory of "business cycles" to make a similar explanation. The argument is that people in good times, being hopeful, spend all they make and exhaust their credit to buy goods and thus encourage manufacturers to increase production and raise prices. When they can buy no more, or high prices discourage buying, business stops, factories close, idle men are unable to buy, and great industrial companies, unable to pay dividends to shareholders, helplessly mark time while the price of their shares tumbles to the bottom.

Such things happen, but in this instance it was not a business decline and consequent inability to make a profit that caused the price of stocks to tumble. It was a decline of stock prices that stopped business.

Gamblers and gamblers alone made times hard. People were still buying and factories still running when a stock market smash wrecked everything.

Though 40 million people are working, at wages as high as they earned last year, and have their installments paid, they are frightened still because of a bubble burst.

We suffer because we are a nation of gamblers, trying to get something for nothing.

Why is it permitted?

When "bears" raid the market, cutting the value of your property in half, they rob you as certainly and as unfairly as the theif who snatches your purse.

When "bulls" force prices to unreasonable heights and reap paper fortunes, they inspire covetous dreams and corrupt the people as they were corrupted by the great lotteries suppressed by law long ago.

Gamblers made hard times for us all in the midst of plenty, and they will do it again and again until the people have the wit to stop them.

Afraid of Victory.
R. H. L., in Chicago Tribune.

The Democrats are certainly worried; you can tell it from the way they act. They're afraid they're going to get too much and carry not only the 48 States, but also Honolulu, Guam, Madagascar, Tasmania, New South Wales, Canada, Mexico and England, Scotland and Wales.

The Republicans have played right into their hands by giving the country the new tariff law, the eighteenth amendment, the lowest lows that the stock market can produce, the drought, the revolution in Brazil, unemployment, peewee golf, early winter, general apathy, winter itch, 78-cent wheat, the 1930 census, the ambushing of Joe Aiello, the corn borer, the boll weevil, Henry Ford, whooping cough and the nonappearance of Edith Mason with the Chicago Civic Opera Company this season. The Democrats are worried; they never had things presented to them on a silver salver before.

They're beginning to think there's a string tied to something or a trick in it somewhere. Maybe there's been dirty work at the crossroads. The Democrats have been run over by the steam roller so often that they can't believe their luck when they see it. They're going around pinching themselves on the arm to make sure they're awake. The Democrats are all right and perfectly happy when they're licked; they're used to it. But now it looks to them as though the Government is going to be handed right over to them. And a lot of people right now say that if that happens they wouldn't try to run it; they'd sublease the damn thing.

New York Herald Tribune.

It is notable that national issues have scarcely entered into the Congress fight. The Democrats are saying little or nothing about the Hawley-Smoot tariff act or any other legislation of the last two sessions. Gov. Roosevelt is talking about State administration and the Republicans are centering their attention on Tammany judicial scandals. And that situation is reflected in the Congress campaigns in most other States, in which candidates for the House and the Senate are occupied with local and personal questions and a singular confusion of viewpoints exists, not only as between the two parties, but within the parties themselves. This Congress election may mean much locally or regionally, but the national meaning, save as regards prohibition, will be hard to figure out even after the votes are cast.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Hopes the Country Will Never Retreat on Prohibition and Cites His Own Experiences With the Demon Rum.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am one who believes this country, when started in the right direction, never retreats, and I earnestly hope it will not retreat on prohibition.

I am 74 years of age and spent my boyhood days in Indianapolis, where the streets ran with whisky, where professional gamblers infested every business block, and bloody riots on Sunday were the regular program. I came to Washington in 1881 and found it in the same condition, with many departmental clerks taking swigs of rum and beer every night, and certain senators entering the chamber so full they were utterly oblivious of their surroundings until they remembered they needed another drink. I was reminded of all this when I recently read a novel depicting life in the great City of London and found similar conditions existing there.

During 30 years of my life I myself drank, and probably had more than my share of whisky, beer and pousse cafes. I often shudder and wonder how I managed to come through alive, but I did, and finally quit for good. In fact, so strongly do I believe myself one of the trustees of the Constitution that I have never touched a drop of liquor since the adoption of the amendment.

It seems to me prohibition may be summed up in a nutshell. Before prohibition it was a daily occurrence to be gagged and sickened by the rotten whisky breaths on the street cars. Since prohibition this has never occurred, and as I have to ride on the cars every day I thank God for prohibition.

The lily pods in society, the young crusaders and embryo statesmen who declaim against the evils of prohibition are not dry behind the ears.

Would Gov. Smith Have a Tammany Hall Style of Government for the U. S. A.?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The campaign speech of former Gov. Smith, of New York, on Wednesday night, in some parts reminded me of the popular history of the United States written by Bill Nye some few years ago. For instance, Bill Nye said: "Me and Henry Hudson went up the river as far as Albany, but not seeing any one there we knew, we came back."

Last year the cost of operating New York City was something like $600,000,000, or nearly one-fifth what it cost to operate the national Government. This year the cost of operating New York City will be about $60,000,000 more than it was last year. The cost of operating the Federal Government will be relatively less.

Tammany Hall runs the City of New York. Gov. Smith is one of the political bosses of Tammany Hall today—has been for nearly 20 years.

Gov. Smith, in one of his campaign speeches in 1928, said: "I don't take orders from Tammany Hall; I give orders to Tammany Hall."

Naturally we are led to believe he would give orders to Congress. The question arises, therefore, would Congress obey; and, if it did obey, would the United States get the same kind of national government which New York City enjoys under Tammany Hall?

If and when we get Tammany Hall government for the Nation, I'm going to run over to Germany, China or India, where peace and quiet prevail.

Agrees With Writer That Parents Are to Blame If Hoodlums Destroy Property.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to supplement what Alfred Sandboy says in the matter of celebrating Halloween, the eve of the feast of All Hallows, or All Saints' Day. Instead of being widely observed as a day of religious devotion, Halloween is given over to pagan rites of superstition and to riotous merry-making.

In this suburb, gangs of ill-bred schoolboys have in the past made a practice of going about at night seeing what destructive mischief they could do, while in my particular neighborhood last year they misplaced "For Sale" signs, threw stones at windows, broke down a fence, overturned stone flower boxes, and committed other depredations. "Boys will be boys," but so will fathers be fathers—if they have any respect for the personal and property rights of others.

Parents should be ashamed to allow their children to act like hoodlums, annoying their neighbors and destroying property. They wouldn't consider these malicious pranks so awfully funny if they were the ones who suffered from them, or if they were compelled to pay for the damage done.

Montreal Shows How to Handle Liquor Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In regard to the editorial headed "After Repeal, What?" I can answer that for you with the greatest ease. Spend a week in Montreal, and there you are. There is no prohibition, also no saloons; only taverns, where one may drink in public and beer, ale and sandwiches only are sold in such places." Such drinks are far more wholesome than the sloppy soft drinks that are sold in this country.

Whisky is purchased only at the government stores and can't be drunk on the premises, and every one knows it is pure and not poisonous bootleg. There are very few drunkards in Montreal, and they are fair enough there not to allow them to interfere with the rights of moderate drinkers like myself.

BALDWIN ACHIEVES SWEEPING VICTORY

Tory Rebels' Drive to Oust Party Leader Fails by 462 to 116.

CHEERS MARK OUTCOME

London, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Stanley Baldwin went before a full Conservative party meeting today for judgment on his leadership and was accorded its confidence by a vote of 462 to 116.

The former premier, who has never made any secret of his preference for pigs to politics, was not present when the actual voting took place. He stalked into the private session at Caxton Hall, where some 600 Conservative peers, members of Commons and candidates had gathered to sit in judgment on his direction, and in a vigorous speech outlined his proposed policy for the Conservative party.

This Mr. Baldwin defined as the policy of the "free hand" on fiscal matters, referring to such problems as tariffs. He asked a show of hands for a decision.

Bows to Party's Will.

"I always bow to the will of my party," he said, "and if, after discussion, you think it fit to tell me that you desire another leader, I will walk out with no malice in my heart; I will retire from politics."

Then he left, to learn later that the meeting had voted confidence in the leader and his party by 4 to 1. He was cheered as he left, and as he entered the House of Commons later in the day his followers gave another tremendous cheer.

There was one leading figure who refused to join the show of hands for Baldwin. He was Lord Beaverbrook, proprietor of the Daily Express, who for months has waged war against Baldwin. When the newspaper peer arose to speak later he was booed by some of his hearers.

Policy Held Too Narrow.

Col. John Gretton, said to have presided over a Conservative meeting this week at which 44 party members were alleged to have signed a petition protesting against Mr. Baldwin's leadership, was the chief speaker supporting a change in party direction. He declared that Mr. Baldwin's policy did not go far enough.

The leader's chief supporter was Lord Hailsham, the former Douglas Hogg, a member of the Baldwin ministry from 1924 to 1929 and lord high chancellor in the last year of that period. He declared that without a quota scheme of wheat purchases, such as advocated by Mr. Baldwin, any tariff would be useless because it would not keep out dumped Russian grain.

Lord Hailsham added that the Conservative chieftain's qualities far exceeded his demerits.

Wonder As to Successor.

"Who could succeed Baldwin?" he demanded.

"Yourself," some of the members cried.

But Lord Hailsham shook his head in the negative.

While Mr. Baldwin was victorious, some political commentators remarked tonight that it was not an absolute achievement. They pointed out that while Baldwin obtained a majority, one-fourth of the meeting voted against him, nevertheless. They commented that the disclosure of such a body of opposition to the titular chieftain of the Conservative party may have some strange repercussions before the parliamentary sessions close.

Japanese Pursue Formosan Bands

Wild Tribesmen Beheaded 86 Nippon Subjects and Hurt 308 More.

Tokyo, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Two thousand Japanese soldiers and police pursued savages today in mountainous jungles of Formosa seeking to punish them for beheading 86 Japanese and injuring 308 others in attacks in the Musha district.

Six Japanese airplanes, roaring over aborigine camps, dropped bombs with uncertain effect. The soldiers were made furious by discovery of bodies of 36 children and many women among the killed and horribly mutilated at Musha Village.

Tropical rains joined jungle and mountain as allies of the primitive Formosan tribesmen as they battled against the Japanese punitive expedition with its artillery and other modern weapons. Commanded by Maj. Gen. Kamata, the Japanese expedition pushed on in several columns through mountain passes and dense forests, trying to encircle the head hunters.

SENATOR M'KELLAR INJURED IN CRASH

The senator was taken to a local hospital where the extent of his injuries had not been fully determined early this afternoon. It was believed there was no cause for apprehension, however.

The Tennessee senator has been speaking in behalf of the Democratic ticket in Oklahoma. The McKellar car and the one with which it collided both overturned. He canceled all remaining campaign speaking dates.

Albert Glasby, of Lawton, drove the car which collided with the McKellar machine at a street intersection. Glasby was accompanied by his sister, Lulu Glasby, and his uncle, C. W. Eckhart. Miss Glasby was slightly injured. The others were unhurt.

The occupants of both cars said the accident was unavoidable.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Senator Dan Steck (Democrat), Iowa, was taken ill at a hotel today. His physicians ordered cancelation of all speaking engagements for the remainder of his campaign for reelection to the United States Senate. The strain of his campaign was said by the senator's secretary to have caused a general breakdown, although it was not believed his condition would become serious.

Senator Steck had not been feeling well recently but had continued to fill speaking engagements. His physicians ordered him to remain in bed, whether he would be removed to a hospital or to his home in Ottumwa was not decided immediately.

Bluefield, W. Va., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—With the election but a few days away, James Kilwood Jones, Republican nominee for United States Senate in West Virginia, today temporarily abandoned further active personal campaigning on the advice of doctors. It was the second time in a week that the candidate had given up a stumping tour because of illness, described as renal colic.

SOVIET-CHINA FIGHT FOR RAILWAY LOOMS

Manchuria Demonstrations Stir Unrest Among Masses, With Civil War Over.

OUTLAW DRIVE PLANNED

(Associated Press.)

Possibility of renewal of armed controversy with Russia over control of the Chinese Eastern Railway has added to the unrest among China's huge population of more than 400,000,000 just emerging from civil war and struggling with bandit and Communist armies.

Russian and Chinese soldiers have been reported aligning against each other along the borders of Siberia and Manchuria owing to threatened cessation at Moscow of negotiations for settlement of the railway question.

Chinese delegates, asserting China's delegate to the Khabarovsk conference in December had exceeded his authority in granting reinstatement of Russian managers and employes of the railway, were said to be preparing to leave the Moscow meeting called for ratification of the Khabarovsk protocol.

With Soviet and Manchurian troops making hostile demonstrations, the situation was similar to that which resulted last year in Soviet armed invasion and occupation of several Manchurian border towns precedent to China's forced signing of the protocol.

Temporarily at least, rebellion of northern militarists against the Nationalist government appeared ended. Aided by armed intervention of Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian dictator, whose troops expelled rebels from Peiping, Nationalists drove insurgents from Honan Province into mountains of Shansi and Shensi.

Bandit and Communist outlaws, however, operating as military units, swarmed over Kiangsi, Hupeh, Huan and other provinces, looting, burning and killing.

Reputedly encouraged by Russians, Communists recently massacred thousands of natives and in anti-Christian attacks destroyed mission properties in several cities, notably in Kiangsi. Many missionaries were forced to flee.

To suppress this outlawry the government plans to dispatch 200,000 veterans released from civil warfare.

ARMS CONFERENCE WILL BE RENEWED

mies, not to reduce them. Such a treaty would, it is hoped, be followed in the course of a few years by others calling for reductions.

It was learned there is a plan to satisfy nations bordering Russia, for example, by inserting a revisionary clause similar to that in the London treaty, authorizing a new conference if any signatory nation considers itself menaced by the size of the army of another.

Delegates' Names Received.

Geneva, Switzerland, Oct 30 (A.P.). Names of some of the delegates who will attend the session of the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission, beginning next Thursday, were announced today.

Maxim Litvinoff, foreign minister of Soviet Russia, will head his country's delegation. M. Litvinoff, whose radical proposals for complete disarmament agitated former meetings of the commission, will be supported as previously by Anatole Lunacharsky, Soviet minister of education.

American delegates will be Hugh S. Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, and Hugh R. Wilson, Minister to Switzerland. Viscount Cecil will be the British spokesman and the veteran Sato will appear for Japan.

The French, German and Italian delegates have not yet been announced, but it is assumed here that Count von Bernstorff will represent the Reich.

Duties of Commission.

The duty of the preparatory commission is to determine methods of arms limitation by land, sea and air, and to embody its decision in a draft convention for consideration by a general disarmament conference.

The body has been instructed to conclude its labors, now extended over five years, in order that the council of the league may call a general arms conference as soon as possible.

While several governments have been insisting that such a general meeting will be summoned next year, informed quarters said here today that present conditions in Europe were not encouraging for hastening the realization of disarmament. One thing mentioned is the unsatisfactory state of relations between France and Germany and between France and Italy.

CHINA WILL ASK U. S. FOR BIG SILVER LOAN

Envoy on Way Here Seeking $360,000,000; Forecasts Benefit to America.

FOR ROADS AND FARMING

San Francisco, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Judge Paul Linebarger, legal adviser to the Chinese government, arrived here today en route to Washington as a special envoy of President Chiang Kai-Shek, to negotiate with the American Government for a loan of 1,000,000,000 ounces of silver, worth about $360,000,000.

This loan, Judge Linebarger said, will be used to rehabilitate the whole of China by diverting millions of men engaged in war into peaceful production. He said he would ask Congress to authorize a 50-year loan at 2 per cent interest.

The proposal of China is that actual silver coins, no longer necessary as a foundation for American currency, be melted into bars and shipped to the Oriental Republic to be reconverted into money and dealt out by an American commission to the working people of China for labor.

To Stave Off Bolsheviam.

Silver-hungry China, Judge Linebarger said, would first utilize the money by building roads. Then manufacturing and farming would share. Presently, he said, results would return to America by heavy purchase of American goods.

China believes the American Government, not needing its surplus silver, could well afford to lend it to a friendly power at 2 per cent, not merely as a means of staving off bolshevism, which the envoy asserts is inevitable without the loan, but as a means of creating customers out of one-fourth the inhabitants of the earth.

It is the opinion of Chinese economists, Linebarger said, that a silver loan would not only stimulate China into activity that would drive pauperism and despair from that republic, but would immediately reopen American silver mines to replenish the supply.

Aid to Philippines.

It would, Judge Linebarger believes, go far toward ending depression in the United States. The United States, he pointed out, has a peculiar opportunity of which Great Britain and Japan are envious but concerning which they can do nothing, lacking necessary silver.

Credit loans, which they might possibly give, would not serve the same practical use in China as a vast quantity of silver.

China's representative argued further that the loan would favor the Philippiness, where there are nearly 100,000 Chinese. It would greatly stimulate trade between China and the Philippines, he said.

Assuming China gets the loan and it has the favorable effect expected, Linebarger said his country would make certain demands of the powers, which would include abolition of special privileges to foreigners, removal of foreign gunboats from the Yangtze River, equitable treaties, tariff adjustments more favorable to China and final suspension of extraterritoriality and foreign concession not based on justice.

Asked what security China proposed to offer for such a huge loan, Judge Linebarger said:

"China's national honor would be the best security. In addition to that she would pledge repayment on the basis of increased domestic revenues and from customs duties derived from revised tariff schedules."

First Contingent of Gaucho Cavalrymen Cheered by Citizens.

VARGAS STILL IN SOUTH

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The first contingent of Gaucho troops, the cowboy soldiers from the Pampas of Rio Grande do Sul, who warred against the federals for three weeks, arrived in the federal capital tonight for a rousing acclamation.

Bronzed and sturdy, the southern cavalrymen pushed through cheering crowds along the tree-lined avenidas, preceded by husky infantrymen from the same section.

It was this type of soldier which opposed the federals in the Sao Paulo-Parana sector after the revolution began October 3, until it ended with the ousting of the Washington Luis administration a week ago.

Vargas Still in Sao Paulo.

Getulio Vargas, the rebel generalissimo who has been designated the provisional president of Brazil, was still in Sao Paulo tonight, but it was understood he planned to leave later and arrive here early tomorrow morning.

Gen. Vargas reached Sao Paulo from the south in a special train last night. Dispatches from that city say he did not come on to the capital immediately because he desired to await the assembling of sufficient railway rolling stock to move more of his troops up at the same time.

Thirty thousand southern soldiers will be scattered throughout Sao Paulo State, revolutionary leaders say, while 60,000 others will come into the federal district.

Another rebel chieftain loomed tonight as one of the strongest figures in the Brazilian situation. He is Capt. Juarez Tavora, youthful officer who pushed the revolution into nine northern states with a loyal following.

Tavora Favors Dictatorship.

The northerner told newspapermen tonight that an absolute dictatorship is needed in Brazil. He favors the abolition of congress and the placing of the country under the supreme command of a strong man until necessary reforms have been consummated.

Juarez Tavora said that other points in his program were:

Free education.

The formation of one bureau to replace the ministries of war and navy, with a civilian in command and a general and an admiral as assistants.

More immigration, so as to result in fertile production on thousands of square miles of land now idle.

Equal rights for women.

Opposition to the protectionist policy.

Mission Will Care For All Homeless

Superintendent Thinks Total of 400 Can Sleep in Two Buildings.

With the Central Union Mission's additional lodging house opened for the first time, Superintendent John S. Bennett said last night that his organization will be able to take care of "all the homeless men in Washington."

Only 143 "down and out" men applied to the mission Wednesday night for food and lodging, the smallest number in line for about a week, but this number is declared to be no indication of the amount of suffering, as the shift of the mercury a few degrees downward would quickly lengthen the nightly breadline.

"Our new building at 313-15 Sixth street," Mr. Bennett said, "will be able to house 200 or more men this winter when conditions are acute. We frequently take care of 200 a night at our regular mission, and no one will be turned away so long as there is room for him to lie down in."

Cots and bedding represent the immediate needs at the new lodging house. Mr. Bennett is trying to get 100 cots and mattresses this week.

have some meaning. If one-quarter of the human race can thus prove the practicability of a true league of united but independent nations, is it mere idealism to hope that the remaining three-fourths should be able to tread the same path?"

In conclusion, the prince said the differences of nationality, language, &c., made the work of the League of Nations particularly difficult. Education, he asserted, is needed to build up "the spirit of peace." The League of Nations union, he added, is accomplishing much in this direction.

The other speakers were: J. H. Thomas, Labor member of Parliament, and R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada.

MAYOR WALKER AIRS ORAL ROW WITH RED

RADICAL TRIO ABSOLVED

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—An exchange of epithets like "grafting politician" and "whelp" between the Mayor of New York and a Communist was described today by Mayor Walker in testimony at a hearing on a charge of unlawful assembly against Sam Nesin, the Communist.

Description of scenes of disorder in City Hall and in City Hall Park two weeks ago which followed ejection of Nesin and two fellow defendants from a board of estimate meeting at the mayor's order was ruled out as evidence by Chief Magistrate Corrigan, who adjourned the hearing until tomorrow after the mayor's appearance on the stand.

Corrigan earlier dismissed charges of disorderly conduct against J. Louis Engdahl, Communist candidate for lieutenant governor, and two women Communists after a policeman testified they had sought to address a crowd in City Hall Park. The magistrate declared the testimony was "not ample" to prove the charges.

Mayor Walker declared he had offered to thrash Nesin after the Communist had shouted that representatives of labor and unemployed groups "were railroaded to jail by grafting politicians."

"It was then," the mayor said, "that I called him a whelp and accused him of taking advantage of the Government and institutions that granted him freedom of speech. I told him that if it weren't for the gavel, laying it down, that I would thrash him."

Mayor Walker said he ordered the Communists escorted from the room after some one had shouted, "Let's throw these Tammany grafters out." He declared he did not see any one beat Nesin as he was being pushed from the room by a police captain.

Two detectives who arrested Nesin and his codefendants, Robert Lealess and Milton Stone, denied on the stand that they heard the mayor order the Communists "thrown out." One of them testified he struck Lealess and Stone after Lealess had first struck him.

Nesin took the stand as the first defense witness and testified he had responded to a warning from the mayor to improve his manners by shouting, "I have more manners than any grafting politician." Then, Nesin said, he was rushed about, punched and thrown downstairs.

Restaurant Proprietor To Feed Hungry Gratis

Appeals from hungry, unemployed persons have prompted N. J. Gaston, proprietor of a restaurant at 702 Ninth street northwest, to volunteer to serve ten meals daily for the next three months to sufferers who may be sent to his establishment by the Board of Public Welfare.

In his letter to the board Mr. Gaston pointed out that if other local restaurants will make similar donations much could be done to alleviate the distress of the city's jobless.

NAVY DEPARTMENT PLANS AID FOR IDLE

Will Push Building Program Calling for Outlay of $4,500,000.

WOODS PICKS TWO AIDS

(Associated Press.)

A plan of the Navy Department to push ahead public works construction added another link yesterday to the chain by which the Government hopes to aid in tugging the Nation's workers out of the morasses of unemployment.

At the same time that the Navy Department announced its plan for beginning work at widely separated posts, a statement came from the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, characterizing the Postoffice Department's decision to give overtime employment to needy workers as an "empty gesture."

The Navy plan became known through information sent to Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's emergency committee for employment.

Work to Be Expedited.

Under it, bids would be invited in the next two months on construction to cost $3,000,000 and work to cost $1,500,000 is to be started immediately, instead of in the spring.

Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer of the clerks federation, said that the Postal Service is undermanned, workers are forced to labor under speed-up systems that extend them beyond reasonable limits, and that petty economy practices have been instituted which are harmful to the service's morale.

Flaherty charged Postmaster General Brown with opposing shorter working hours and said substitutes were not adequately trained. The order for substitutes to work overtime would not help to relieve the employment crisis, he said.

Administrators Chosen.

Joseph H. Willits, of Philadelphia, director of the Business School of the University of Pennsylvania, was selected yesterday by Col. Woods to direct the emergency committee's plans division. Porter Lee, of New York, assumed charge of its welfare work.

Col. Woods urged that citizens respond to the appeals of municipal community chests for funds, and said hospitals and dispensaries must receive more free patients. Contributions reported from 15 of 220 cities, where community chests are trying to raise $55,000,000, he said, show an increase in receipts of 7 per cent over last year.

Montgomery County Leader Says Real Estate Men Aid in Progress.

DIVORCE SUITS ARE FILED

Answering attacks by Republican candidates on alleged discrimination shown on his property in Sligo Park Hills, Maj. E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery County Democratic leader, last night addressed three Democratic rallies in widely separated parts of the county, Takoma Park, Potomac, and Hyattstown.

"These figures are just as dry to me as they are to you, and I don't like to have to quote them," he said, "but I have been called a thief and a liar and I feel in justice to myself and other real estate men of the county that I should refute wild statements of the opposition."

Pointing out that the main industry of Montgomery County is real estate, he asserted that, unlike capitalistic, Republican Pennsylvania, where industries have been exempted from taxation, the chief industry of Montgomery County is also its main taxpayer. The twenty uniformed policemen who took the place of the three deputy sheriffs in the suburban area, increased salaries of county teachers, and other improvements have been paid for because of the real estate men, he said.

By adding to the cost of the lot the cost of improvements so that the purchaser of the house and lot pays for his own improvements and increasing the county's taxable basis through erection of the homes they sell, the real estate man bears the brunt of the county's taxation and provides additional revenue, he said.

Specifically pointing to the Sligo Park Hills project, the major pointed out that the value for taxation of the property had been raised from $7,500 to $195,000 which provides taxes of approximately $4,290 to the county treasury. In addition to this, he said that the property also pays its own street improvements, water and sewage and its only cost to the county is approximately $250 a year for street lights.

The lot which F. Barnard Welsh, Republican candidate for State's attorney, had charged was assessed at $69 as a mattter of fact is assessed at $61, Maj. Lee said, but it is the only one in the whole subdivision so assessed. The reason is that it is composed mostly of a branch with 15-foot banks and is absolutely worthless as far as development is concerned. Other lots are assessed in accordance with other property assessments in the surrounding territory.

State's Attorney Robert B. Peter pointed out that it is necessary that bond issues be employed in order that the progress of the county can be maintained. The present plan of paying off partially each year is the most sensible plan evolved, he declared. The administration plans to utilize portions of the gasoline tax money derived from the State to retire road bonds as is being done in Kent County satisfactorily.

He lauded State and county candidates and urged that they be elected in order that the work of development can be carried out.

Other speakers included J. Bond Smith, County Commissioner Lacy Shaw, Stedman Prescott, candidate for State's attorney; Robert G. Hilton, candidate for State senator; Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, Andrew J. "Cy" Cummings and Frederick J. Stohlman.

Arguments are scheduled to be heard this morning on a petition of the State Roads Commission for dismissal of the temporary injunction barring construction of the Kensington grade crossing overhead bridge before Judge Robert B. Peter in circuit court at Rockville.

The roads commission contends that all legal requirements for construction of the bridge have been complied with and that the injunction should be dissolved. The injunction was granted pending decision of charges that the bridge was being built without compliance with the law and that it's location had been arbitrarily settled by the roads commission.

Testimony in the case was taken last week before an examiner in equity and the testimony has been transcribed for study by the judge. Because the evidence had not been prepared October 27 the original date set for the hearing, it was postponed until today.

Capt. Joseph C. Cissel represents the roads commission. The ten plaintiffs seeking to bar the location of the grade crossing at Lincoln avenue are represented by Miss Vivian V. Simpson, John E. Oxley and H. C. Smith.

Harry C. Riley, of Gaithersburg, Md., yesterday led suit for absolute divorce from Mrs. Maude A. Riley, of Washington, alleging that her treatment of him was such that he was forced to leave their home in 1922 and that the separation is final and beyond hope of reconciliation. They were married in Baltimore in 1918 and have no children.

Mrs. Audrey M. Kiggins, of Silver Spring, yesterday filed petition for limited divorce from James J. Kiggins, of Washington. The wife alleges cruel and inhuman treatment and desertion. They were married February 2, 1924, and have no children.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist Church of Montgomery County met Wednesday at Kensington in the Baptist Church. Mrs. T. R. Falvy, president, presided. Mrs. Eugene Levering, of Baltimore, spoke on missions and their work in China and Japan. Mrs. Royal, of Frederick, also addressed the meeting. This was the quarterly meeting of the society.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School has bene accredited as a standard school by the Commission for Secondary Schools of the Middle States and Maryland, it was announced yesterday by Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools. This is the only county school to apply for a rating so far, Mr Broome explained. Rockville, Takoma-Silver Spring, Gaithersburg and Sherwood Hight Schools expect to apply for a rating within a short time, he said.

The final district meeting of the Democratic campaign will be held tonight at Brookeville. William P. Prettyman, Rockville attorney; Miss Lavinia Engle candidate for House of Delegates; Stedman Prescott, candidate for State's attorney; Richard H. Lansdale, candidate for sheriff, and Dean Atchison, Sandy Spring attorney, will speak

INCREASE IS URGED ON PIG IRON TARIFF

Levy 50 Per Cent Higher Is Asked of Commission During Second Hearing.

REQUEST IS UNOPPOSED

(Associated Press.)

A request by Eastern blast furnace operators for a 50 per cent increase in the duty on pig iron established by the 1930 tariff act was laid unopposed yesterday before the reorganized Tariff Commission at its second public hearing under the new flexible provision.

Only one witness, H. M. Waybright, of Boston, representing the Association of Eastern Blast Furnace Operators, was presented by the merchant pig iron men. The hearing lasted little more than an hour.

Mr. Waybright told the commission the business depression, coupled with foreign pig iron imports and "offerings," had so affected his industry that only three merchant blast furnaces remained in the principal Eastern producing section.

"The present reduced rate of importations," he said, "we believe to be due solely to the industrial depression existing in this country and, from our past experience, predict that a revival of industry here will be followed by largely increased importations."

Mr. Waybright contended that under the present duty of $1.12½ a ton it was not only pig iron imports but "offerings" as well, principally from British India, that were causing depressed prices along the Atlantic Seaboard. He explained high freight rates prevented any movement of imported pig iron more than 200 miles inland.

In answer to a question by Commissioner Dixon as to why more foreign pig iron did not flood the Eastern market, he replied he understood "American representatives of foreign producers have chosen not to bust the market."

The commission's hearing yesterday grew from a Senate resolution authorizing an investigation of pig iron costs of production here and abroad, following a heated fight in the Senate over a duty on the product.

Today the commission will hold a hearing on crude petroleum.

LOG OF R-101 STIRS SENSATION AT QUIZ

Indicates That Crash Came Before Writer Finished Marking Oil Pressure.

CONSTRUCTION UPHELD

London, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—A tattered bit of paper caused a sensation today in the public inquiry assembled to determine the cause of the R-101 disaster three weeks ago.

Whereas the popular opinion was that no evidence remained in the charred remnants of the great dirigible, which crashed and burned on a French hillside with a total loss of 48 lives, Sir William Jowitt, the attorney general, read a sheet from one of the logs of the airship.

"This shows that No. 4 engine at 2 o'clock in the morning (9 minutes before the crash) was revolving at cruising speed," Sir William said, "but the oil pressure, recorded at 3 when it should have read 30 or 33, indicated that the writer did not have time to finish the figure before the crash."

Testimony by Prof. J. Bairstow, chairman of the committee which passed on the airworthiness of the R-101, showed that the mistakes which sent the dirigible R-38 to destruction with a British-American crew in 1921 were thought to have been avoided in the construction of the R-101.

Questioned by the solicitor general, Sir Richard Stafford Cripps, Prof. Bairstow said he was a member of the committee which decided that the R-38 buckled and the findings of that investigation served as a basis for laboratory experiments to guide the designers of the R-101 and its sister ship the R-100.

He added that he had followed closely the disasters to the United States Navy dirigible Shenandoah, which was wrecked during a storm over Ohio in 1925, and the French airship Dixmude, lost at sea in 1923.

Sir John Simon, conducting the hearing, showed considerable interest in the tracing of technical remarks on a large model of the R-101, hanging in the courtroom. He also asked Prof. Bairstow if experiments were performed with models after the recent lengthening of the illfated dirigible.

Workman Is Killed As Bridge Frame Falls

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 30 (A.P.). One workman, Manuel Robison, Covington, Va., was killed and seven others injured today in the collapse of a section of the wood and metal framework of an overhead crossing of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway at Kellogg, five miles from here.

A railroad inspector said he believed the framework collapsed under the weight of concrete that was being poured. One of the injured was brought to a hospital here.

Missing $72,000 Sought in Banks

Most of Sum, Allegedly Embezzled, Believed in Baltimore Boxes.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Asserting the belief that most of the $72,000 which H. Edward Jackson, Laurel, Miss., bank cashier, is accused of embezzling, is in safety deposit boxes here, two Baltimore bonding companies took steps today to secure their contents.

Jackson, held at Los Angeles, on a fugitive warrant, admitted his identity today, according to dispatches, and was ordered removed to Mississippi to face a Federal indictment.

The United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. and the Fidelity & Deposit Co. obtained a court order appointing J. Kemp Bartlett, jr., as receiver to take charge of all funds and securities in deposit boxes in two Baltimore banks said to have been rented by Jackson.

Mrs. Lodge Returns to Stage Life

Francesca Braggiotti Is to Make Debut on Broadway.

MRS. JOHN DAVIS LODGE, known professionally as Francesca Braggiotti, will set a precedence in the Lodge family when she returns to the stage next week in "The Vanderbilt Revue," in which she will make her Broadway debut. Her husband, a grandson of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, is of the Brahmin stock of Boston.

There have been statesmen and politicians in this distinguished family—but never an actress.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Braggiotti, of Brookline, Mrs. Lodge also boasts distinguished ancestors. She is a member of the Vincent Club, that exclusive group of Boston girls. Membership to the organization is smaller, perhaps, than any club for girls in the East.

On both sides, Mrs. Lodge's family has been affiliated with Washington for several generations. His mother, Mrs. George Cabot Lodge, the former Miss Elizabeth Davis, is a daughter of Mrs. Charles McCawley. His sister, Miss Helena Lodge, married Mr. Edouard de Streel, who formerly served as First Secretary of the Belgian Embassy, and his brother, Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge 2d, married Miss Emily Sears, of Boston. He lives in Washington, where Mrs. George Cabot Lodge has a winter home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davis Lodge have made their home in New York at 106 East Eighty-sixth street since their marriage. The former is engaged in the practice of law there. Mrs. Lodge retired from the professional world at the time of her marriage, but lured by a debut on Broadway, she has decided to tread the boards again.

First Lady Heads List Of Benefit Boxholders.

Mrs. Hoover has reserved a box for the Wellesley Club benefit, "Subway Express," which will be presented at the National Theater Monday night.

Other boxholders are Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes; Mrs. George E. Akerson, who will have as her guests Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur and Mrs. Vernon Kellogg; Mr and Mrs. Charles Rugg and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sisson, who will entertain the Attorney General and Mrs. William De Witt Mitchell; Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hunt and Col. and Mrs. Harry C. Kramer.

Mr. and Mrs. David K. E. Bruce are at the Carlton House in New York, where they will pass the winter, Mrs. where they will pass the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic D. McKenney have reopened their apartment in the new wing of Wardman Park Hotel. They returned from passing the summer in Europe several weeks ago and went to their home in Kensington, Md., for the early fall. Mr. and Mrs. McKenney will entertain tonight at dinner in their apartment.

Mrs. Thomas H. Wilson Returns to Capital.

Mrs. Thomas Hamilton Wilson and her sister, Miss Abercrombie, have come from their summer home at Chestnut Hills, Pa., to spend the winter in their Washington house. While in the North they renewed their lifelong friendship with Prince Arjuna Svasti, heir to the Siamese throne, who has been a guest for a period each summer for several years of their nephew, Maj. William E. Goodman, jr., of Chestnut Hills.

Mrs. Wilson and Miss Abercrombie have known the young prince since childhood. He is now a freshman at Yale University and is pleasantly remembered in Washington, where he has been a guest at the Siamese Legation several times.

The art group of the District of Columbia League of American Pen Women will open its activities for the winter at a Halloween dinner tonight, at 7 o'clock, at Stoneleigh Court, when Dr. Will Hutchins will discuss "Art in the Nation's Capital." Several unique features have been planned by the chairman, Mrs. Charles Leonard Chambers. Those assisting Mrs. Chambers will be Mrs. Estelle Moses, president of the District League of American Pen Women; Mme. Felian Garzia, Mrs. W. W. Badgley, Miss Rebecca Dial, Mrs. James T. Watson, Miss Isabel Story and Mrs. Edson Briggs.

Debutantes Await Bal Masque.

With the season rapidly setting its stride the debutantes are swinging gaily into the endless whirl of parties which always mark their initial bow. And tomorrow night will be one of the most interesting of them all, the Bal Masque at the Mayflower arranged by Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner. Several important dinners will precede the ball, and among those entertaining will be Miss Clara Bolling, Miss Margene Musser and Miss Betty Griffen, each giving a dutch treat dinner for a group of young friends; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George B. Pillsbury will give a dinner for their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Pillsbury; Mrs. Anne Archbold will entertain for the subdebs; Mrs. J. Douglas Rollo will give a dinner, Mrs. Lutz Wahl will be hostess at a small dinner and Commander and Mrs. John W. Merse will entertain a large number of friends.

Among those taking boxes for the ball are Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Pillsbury, Mrs. Wahl, Mr. and Mrs. B. De Witt Riegel, of New York; Dr. and Mrs. Gregg Custis Birdsall, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dodge, Mrs. C. Willard Hayes, Commander and Mrs. Morse and Col. and Mrs. Clarke C. Wren.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Perin will introduce to society their daughter, Miss Anne Perin, although the date has not been selected. Mr. and Mrs. Perin are again in their house at 1824 R street after an absence of six years spent in Philadelphia. They will make their permanent home here.

Miss Conway Is Wed To Mr. A. E. Scott.

Mrs. William Field Jones announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Dorothy Hewlett Conway, to Mr. Arnold Eden Scott. The ceremony took place last Saturday at Widewater, Va. Mr. Jones and his bride are making their home at 3000 Connecticut avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Jay, of Palm Beach and Montauk, Long Island, are spending a short time in Washington at the Westchester before going to Palm Beach for the winter season.

They have been joined here by their daughter, Miss Muriel Jay, who is a student at the Bennett School, and their two young sons, Halford and Rutledge, who have been entered at the St. Alban's School for Boys.

Capt. and Mrs. Hugh W. Rowan are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter. Mrs. Rowan was formerly Miss Frances Bethel, daughter of Mrs. William A. Bethel, of Washington.

Mrs. Frank W. Hackett has returned to her apartment at the Martinique for the winter. She spent the summer at Jamestown, R. I., and during the early fall visited her son, Mr. W. H. Y. Hackett, at his home in Dedham, Mass.

Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner entertained Mr. Milton C. Work, international authority on bridge, and Mrs. John Munce, jr., yesterday afternoon with a group of friends at her apartment.

Mrs. Munce, who is now in Richmond at the governor's mansion, will return to Washington early in November and will reopen her studio.

Col. and Mrs. Innes Palmer Swift will present their daughter, Miss Lucile Paddock Swift, to society at a tea dance this afternoon in the grand ball room and Chinese room of the Mayflower.

Mrs. Swift will be assisted at the tea table by a group of wives of officers of the Army, including Mrs. John K. Herr, Mrs. John A. Barry, Mrs. Ralph Glass, Mrs. Cuthbert P. Stearns, Mrs. Vernon Olsmith, Mrs. Horace Fuller, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. Herman Kobbe, Mrs. Joseph Aleshire, Mrs. John Millilyn and Mrs. Donald Sawtell.

The debutante will be assisted by Miss Virginia Sellers, niece of Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, judge advocate general of the Navy, and debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Sellers, of Buffalo. Others assisting will be Miss Catherine Fechet, Miss Elizabeth Pillsbury, Miss Clara Bolling, Miss Marjorie Talman, Miss Mary Jacobs, Miss Elsie Tuckerman, Miss Dorothy Dodge, Miss Alice Tweedy, Miss Mary Harris Clarke and Miss Catherine Berry.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Armour Dodge have issued invitations for a ball at the Mayflower on Saturday evening, November 29, in honor of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Joy Dodge. Miss Dodge is among the season's debutantes.

Mrs. Lucy Wilder Morris will come to Washington on Sunday after spending some time in St. Paul, where she was the guest of her brother, Mr. S. W. Wilder, and Mrs. Wilder.

Mrs. Rita Fettes, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is a guest at the Mayflower, entertained at dinner last evening at the hotel for her son, Mr. David Fettes, and a group of his classmates from Georgetown University.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle is in Columbus, Ga., as guest speaker of the Georgia State League of Women Voters. Mrs. Doyle is regional director of the third region for the National League of Women Voters.

Dr. and Mrs. William A. White will be honor guests tomorrow evening of the American Association of University Women at a dinner and reception in the clubhouse at 1634 Eye street. Dr. White will speak on "The First International Congress on Mental Hygiene" which met in Washington last May, and of which Dr. White was president. At the table with Dr. and Mrs. White will be Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Veerhoff, Dr. and Mrs. William J. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest N. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mr. and Mrs. George Bowerman, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Nourse, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Woolley, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ashley and Miss Anna Pearl Cooper.

Weds Naval Captain

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. JOHN MATT ENOCHS was before her marriage yesterday in Rio Janeiro, Miss Elizabeth Shirley, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Edward Kernan, of Fairfax County, Virginia.

Miss Shirley Wed in Rio to Capt. Enochs

Fairfax County Girl Is Bride of Member of U. S. Mission.

The marriage of Miss Elisabeth Randolph Shirley, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Edward Kernan, of Fairfax Count, Va., and the late John Thomas Shirley, to Capt. John Matt Enochs, United States Navy, executive officer of the U. S. Naval Mission to Brazil, was announced yesterday by Mrs. Kernan on receipt of cable dispatches from Rio de Janeiro, where the wedding took place yesterday at the American Embassy.

The religious ceremony was performed at the embassy by the rector of the English Church of Rio de Janeiro, in the presence of the American Ambassador, Mr. Edwin V. Morgan; Admiral Noble E. Irwin, chief of the U. S. Navel Mission to Brazil, and Capt. Lewis W. Jennings, of the naval mission, a cousin of the bride, following the civil marriage performed in accordance with Brazilian law.

After the ceremony the ambassador entertained at a wedding breakfast which was attended by officers of the United States Naval Mission and their families, members of the embassy staff, Dr. Victor M. Maurtua, former Peruvian Minister to Brazil, and Mme. Maurtua, and other friends in Rio of Capt. and Mrs. Enochs, who left by auto immediately afterward for a two weeks' wedding trip. They will be at home on their return in Rio Janeiro, where Capt Enochs is stationed.

For the religious ceremony the bride wore a gown of ivory satin made on princess lines with yoke and sleeves of old Alencon lace, and her tulle veil was held in place by a band of rare point d'Alencon which had served a similar purpose in her family for several generations. As her only ornament she wore a pendant which had been the gift of Queen Marie Antoinette to an ancestress, who was one of the queen's ladies in waiting.

Before returning from Europe with her mother in 1914, Miss Shirley had spent a year in Russia and a winter in India, and last year, traveling in company with Mrs. Henry W. Keyes, wife of Senator Keyes, of New Hampshire, she revisited Spain and Portugal, and made a tour of several South American countries, returning to Washington from Rio de Janeiro.

As a special writer for the New York Times Miss Shirley reported the Inter American Conference on Arbitration and Conciliation held in Washington two years ago. Miss Shirley reported also the Institue of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia in the summers of 1923 and 1930.

For the U. S. Children's Bureau, with which she has been associated for the last four years, Miss Shirley prepared and installed its exhibit at the Seville exposition, which won a gold medal award, and at the request of the Brazilian League against Infant Mortality she assisted in preparing material for the new child hygiene center now established in permanent headquarters in Pernambuco.

Capt. Enochs, who is a member of an old and distinguished family which has made its home in Mississippi for the last 100 years, was born at Crystal Springs, Miss.; was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1903, and since then has served up and down the seven seas, from Hampton Roads to Yokohama, Shanghai to Guantanamo, New York to Brest and back again during the World War, with brief intervals of shore duty, and for the past year and a half has been on duty with the United States Naval Mission to Brazil.

The marriage was the culmination of a romance which began during the visit of Miss Shirley to Rio de Janeiro a year ago, when Capt. Jennings presented to his cousin his friend and fellow officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Greenleaf have as their week-end guests Mr. and Mrs. John Remon, of Richmond.

Miss Finney Will Be Wed Next Month

November 15 Set by Bride for Marriage to Dr. Ryland.

The marriage of Miss Edith Elizabeth Finney, daughter of Mr. Edward C. Finney, solicitor in the Department of the Interior, and Mrs. Finney, to Dr. Charles Pennington Ryland, of Buena Vista, Va., will take place November 15, at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride-elect's parents, 3536 Edmond street.

The ceremony, which will be performed by Dr. Ryland's father, the Rev. C. P. Ryland, will be followed by a small reception. There will be no attendants.

Dr. Ryland and his bride will make their home in Buena Vista, where the former is engaged in the practice of medicine.

The Radcliffe Club will hold its annual meeting at Stoneleigh Court, Tuesday evening. Dinner will be served at 6:15. Reservations may be made through the secretary, Miss Margaret Will.

Mrs. L. W. Richardson will entertain at tea on Tuesday when her guests will be the women of the Delta Circle of the parish of St. Stephens and the Incarnation. The circle will give a dinner and bazaar at the parish hall on November 12 and 13.

Mrs. Maude Baumgardner and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Baumgardner, of Sao Paulo, Brazil, have arrived in Washington and have taken an apartment at the Roosevelt Hotel for the winter.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the George Washington University, will be entertained by alumni of the University tomorrow at a luncheon to be held at 12:30 o'clock at the Hotel Lafayette, under auspices of the General Alumni Association.

Mr. James McPherson Proctor, president of the association, will preside at the luncheon, which is in charge of a committee including Mr. Lyman Dishman, Dr. F. A. Hornaday, Miss Margaret Maize and Mr. James Robert Kirkland. Mr. Proctor will introduce President Marvin.

All alumni of the university are cordially invited to attend. This is the first of the monthly luncheons which are given by the association during the academic year.

Diplomats, officials and hundreds of society folk were prominent in the fashionable throng that crowded the new Shoreham Hotel last evening at its formal opening. Rudy Vallee and his orchestra provided the dance music for the event. Scores of parties were in evidence.

Maj. Gen. Herbert C. Crosby and Mrs. Crosby were with a group of Washington officials, including Maj. G. C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, and Mrs. Gotwals; Maj. and Mrs. Donald A. Davison, Maj. and Mrs. R. L. Robb, Capt. and Mrs. Hugh P. Oram, Capt. and Mrs. H. C. Whitehurst, Col. and Mrs. J. W. Oehmann and Mrs. and Mrs. J. B. Gordon.

Another party was given by the Secretary of the Roumanian Legation and Mme. Andrei Popoviei.

Mrs. Radcliff Agnew's party was a Navy party, including Mrs. H. C. Hite, Mrs. Harry Slocum, Mrs. Lewis Hancock, Lieut. Comdr. R. O. Glover, Lieut. Comdr. Joseph Redman, Lieut. Comdr. J. J. Clark, Lieut R. A. Ofstie and Lieut. A. Storrs.

The part yof Mr. Thomas P. Bones, jr, included Miss Mildred Clark, Miss Louise Turner and Mr. Lynn Anderson.

Nippon Prince Will Be Feted In Washington

President of Japanese House of Peers Lands Today.

Prince Tokugawa, president of the House of Peers, of Japan, president of the Japanese Red Cross Society, and one of the principal delegates to the Washington Conference of 1921, will arrive in New York on the Mauretania today. After passing a few days in New York, he will come to Washington on November 6. Upon his arrival he will pay his respects to President Hoover, and that same evening will be entertained at dinner by the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi. Further plans for entertainment of the prince will be announced later. He will leave Washington on November 9.

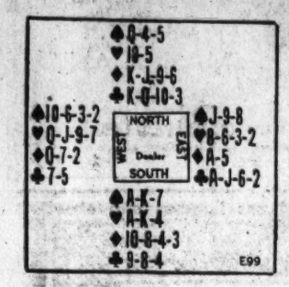
CONTRACT BRIDGE.



The above hand was the first deal in a game of Contract, and South's hand shows an exception to one sound rule of bidding. To call No Trump originally in either Contract or Auction, a player should hold stoppers in at least three suits; but a justifiable exception to this rule is that a player should bid No Trump with stoppers in but two suits when those suits contain four sure tricks and neither is of sufficient length to justify an original suit-bid; and when the other two suits contain four and three cards respectively.

The loss risked by a No Trump bid is less than that of missing a possible game by passing initially with four sure tricks. With the above hand a pass by South would be followed by three passes; and a game hand for North and South would be passed out. When it was played South bid one No Trump, West passed and North, holding a count of 12, jumped to three No Trumps.

At Auction South would bid one No Trump and the other three players would pass.

West led the Queen of Hearts—the correct opening from a suit headed by Queen-Jack-Ten or Queen-Jack-Nine. Had the 9 been an 8 or lower card, the fourth best would have been the correct lead. Attention is called to this opening by West as the lead of the 7 would have cost a trick because Declarer would have won with the Ten from dummy. South allowed the Queen to hold and West led the Jack which South won.

Declarer then realized that he probably was beaten unless West had opened a four-card suit, as the adversaries held both minor Aces. Having eight Diamonds in his two hands, Declarer led South's Eight of Diamonds and finessed in the dummy. East won with the Ace and returned a Heart, South's King winning. Declarer then won three Diamonds and two Spades, the latter with North's Queen; then North led the Club King, East winning with the Ace and playing his last Heart which West won with the Nine. Declarer captured the two remaining tricks for game.

Dare Interprets the Mode

This black marocain dress shows unusual trimming at neck and wrists of pale blue velvet leaves, and has a narrow black paillette belt. (Courtesy of Premet, Paris.)

New York, Oct. 30.

VARIETY, such variety! No woman in the world has absolutely any excuse to be other than well dressed tod.y—such a variety in colors, materials and types of garments does Dame Fashion place at her disposal.

Yet the incredible fact remains that many, many women are not well dressed. And search as I can for the reason, I can not find it!

The Problems of Others.

What about the young business woman, who, on her not very ample salary, practically supports her family—enables her brother to finish college and her younger sister as well? What about the young married woman who is feathering a little nest—making monthly payments on the house, the furniture, the flivver, even the baby? Or the schoolgirl whose good old dad can barely allow her a sufficient allowance for food and books?

Well, what about them? While it is surely a bit more complicated under such circumstances to be always modishly and appropriately dressed, how is it that some women do it nevertheless, while others in the same circumstances can't seem to do so? That, you see, is exactly the rub—because any woman can do what any other woman can do, so there must be a more definite reason than circumstances for her not doing so.

There is, and do you know what it is? You might just as well face it now as any time, so take your medicine like mother's little man. The only reason for being poorly dressed is mental laziness! Because between the fashion magazine, radio talks, new and fascinating and instructive classes and departments and what-nots available in every department store, not to mention your own Dahray, who strives to not only report what's going on in the mode to you, but to tell you how to apply it to your own self, any woman who has to wear a dress, coat or hat, shoes stockings and gloves, can just as well buy, in the first place, articles which are becoming to her, stylish and in good taste.

• • • •

For instance, there isn't a reason in the world why you shouldn't have the right kind of a hat to go with every single outfit in your wardrobe. Because you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the leaflet we have made for you this week, telling you how to make the smartest fall hat of the season—the beret with and without variations. And you can make it, too, from these directions—so how can you possibly not have all the hats you need or want?

• • • •

Wouldn't you just gasp with delight, as we did, if you saw pale blue velvet leaves forming a collar on a black marocain dress? Let alone if the dress was an exclusive Lenief model which no other fashion writer would be allowed to sketch, and had a black paillette belt, 'n' the loveliest silhouette, which was fashioned from incrustations which formed the skirt and the upper part of the bodice. And, oh yes, touches of the pale blue leaves at the wrists!

• • • •

Only in The Washington Post, in the Capital, can you find the weekly Dare fashion letter. You should look for it each Sunday.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SCORPIO"

IF October 31 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10 a.m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:15 p. m.

Disconcerting influences will be in force on this date, and you will abandon profitable for unprofitable pursuits. Frustration of plans. New interests will spring up, which will prove to be of benefit. Worry regarding young people.

The child born on this October 31 will have an active, a self-confident and fruitful mind. Ardor and perseverance, generosity and enthusiasm are shown. It will love pleasure, amusement and show. It will take an interest in scientific studies, and the investigation of facts.

You have a very positive nature, but one which needs to be toned down to make it an altogether pleasing one. You are extremely honest, sincere and outspoken, but you do not know the meaning of diplomacy and are always unconsciously putting your foot into things or "spilling the beans." You will always be a diamond in the rough, but none the less genuine. You will merrily romp through the world in your clumsy way, always ready to help and cheer those about you. You have a heart of gold, and are unselfish and generous to the Nth degree. You are very clean minded and clean mouthed.

You are rather matter-of-fact in religious views, taking the intellectual or even somewhat materialistic view of things rather than the devotional and spiritual. You have an analytical mind, one which classifies, analyses, studies and draws conclusions; doubting until it has reasons for believing, and always requiring reasons for all things—"a why and a wherefore." It would always be best for you to be your own boss in your work, for it is not easy for you to be subservient to others. You are sometimes lacking in method, wanting in application, or are absent-minded, but on the whole you are a good worker.

You will be passionately fond of a home, have the qualifications to make a devoted and sensible father or mother, and a faithful companion.

Successful people born October 31:

Philo Remington, manufacturer, firearms and typewriter.

Alexander W. Randall, Postmaster General under Johnson.

Richard M. Hunt, architect.

William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury.

Kuhne Beveridge, sculptress.

Julius Caldeen Gunter, former governor of Colorado.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Wives Discuss Married Love.

DEAR Miss McDonald: You have asked wives to tell from actual experience why the girl who wrote of seeking divorce because she could not have a maid and a new fur coat is making a mistake. Very sagely you tell her that "many a wife now wealthy would gladly return to the early days of doing without." How well you know. I am one of those. Would you believe me when I tell you that I have proudly kept my table for a whole week on three dollars? And hubby did not even notice, for I made everything taste so good. Now I am a stranger in my own kitchen. We spend on a meal what used to feed us for a week long after we had left behind the days of making three dollars last till pay-day. Often a roast alone will cost three dollars, and with help to feed lasts only one meal. And fur coats? I have three. And two cars. But there is nothing in my life today to compare with the joys that were mine as I skimped and schemed to help my earnest young husband to climb those first hard rungs of the steep and slippery ladder of success.

We still have love. But love changes so when wealth and all its cares come along. It is far from being the satisfying thing we hope that it will be. It may satisfy a man, and I believe it does. But a woman has small shares in her husband's life when he becomes prominent in business affairs. She takes second place. The little girl who has a chance to help her husband by forgetting for a year or two that there are such things as squirrel coats, should welcome the chance to do a woman's part and have a real share in life. Coats are rather an insignificant issue, as one learns on the road through love and life. High moments come, that make a coat seem rather a vague necessity.

It is a pity that our girls know so little of life when they enter marriage. They may "experiment" much, but they know nothing. Real values are lost to them. Trivialities engross them. I hope the poor child wakes up before it is too late.

MRS. M. L. M.

Dear Miss McDonald: This is in answer to the girl who wants to forsake her young husband because she has no maid—"or other things worth while." When you say things worth while you are not referring to a maid and a fur coat. Let me tell you you are wealthy. You possess valuable gifts that you are throwing to the winds. You have your youth, with which there should be the buoyancy of life; you have your healthy young husband and your home, over which you are supreme. I am twice your age, married twenty years. Our first ten years were our poorest and happiest. We joined in each other's joys, expectations, sorrows and disappointments. We had one little son, whom we lost. We now have two maids, but my husband's health is a constant anxiety, and my little son just a memory. I look back with hopeless yearning to those early days when I had the honor and the joy of personally serving the meals and keeping the home in order for my little family. We have kept our love and our unity. But money has not been able to take the place of health and happiness.

Do not desert your husband. Do not go against your religion. In either step you will do your spirit incalculable harm. If your religion forbids divorce, it is probably a religion that cherishes unity and the spirit of unity. You need that. I believe that you have never known unhappiness. Do not flirt with it, for he that loveth the danger shall perish therein.

HELEN.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

SOFT FOOD DIET.

DIETING runs in waves. If these waves go to unreasoning excess we call them fads. Just now we are in the midst of a movement which might be called the soft diet wave. It is not a fad. The most scientific advocate of this movement is Dr. W. C. Alvarez. He sets forth his opinions and tells many of his experiences in a book written for lay readers, the title of which is "Nervous Indigestion."

The theory which he advocates is that many so-called indigestions are due to spastic colon which, in turn, is due in large part to foods that contain too much cellulose, bran, skins, fibers, seeds and gristle. He advocates the use of a soft diet by all those who are sufferers from irritable colon. This soft diet contains no brans, no coarse, stringy vegetables, nor meats.

Soft diet breakfast—Orange or grapefruit juice; no pulp is to be swallowed. One or two eggs with bacon or ham; white bread or toast with butter; any smooth cereal, but none that contains bran; coffee, tea, cocoa or chocolate.

Lunch and dinner—Avoid oranges and pineapples, and any coarse fiber fruits; eat no seedy fruits nor fruit skins. Broths, cream soups, chowder, bouillon allowed. Meat, fish, chicken, eggs or oysters; no smoked meats or fish. Bread and butter, potatoes, rice, hominy, tomatoes, asparagus tips, beets, tender turnips, creamed spinach noodles, macaroni, spaghetti, purees of most vegetables, sweet corn that has been passed through a colander; tender string beans. Avoid most salads, and especially avoid those made from stringy fruits and vegetables.

For desserts, simple puddings such as custards, ices, cake, and canned or stewed fruits. No jams, raisins or seedy fruits. Cottage cheese and filling of pies are allowed. Cut down on the amount of sugar. Eat no candy and no food between meals. Chewing gum may do harm because doing so leads to the swallowing of air. Avoid excessive use of salt, peppers, and other seasoning.

Avoid stringy celery, cucumbers, pineapple, berries, seeds, nuts and many fibrous fruits. Avoid beans, cabbage, onions, peppers, melons and peanuts. They are notoriously gassy.

Fried foods have a bad reputation which they do not entirely deserve. If the frying is done in deep fat and the heat of cooking is not too high, fried foods are not indigestible. If there is a tendency to constipation, or if there is any reason for putting on weight, cream, butter, cream cheese, olive oil, and other fats and starches are helpful.

A good sedative for the stomach is four ounces of essence of peppermint added to a bottle of nonalcoholic cream de menthe. Of this, a tablespoonful may be taken.

TREATING PYORRHEA.

J. C. writes: I have a moderate amount of pyorrhea. Had my teeth scraped and polished, but having that done is expensive beyond reason. I have read that pyorrhea is a form of scurvy and is cured by drinking 2 full cups of orange juice daily and eating a quarter head of lettuce. But oranges are high in price and dry in juice.

I read that 11 ounces of raw cabbage equals 1 pint of orange juice. Cabbage fits my pocketbook best. I take 14 ounces of raw cabbage, 1 lemon, 1 glass tomato juice, and raw bananas, onion, melon, berries, lettuce, radishes, and fruit. Even this grows monotonous. What can I do?

REPLY.

The diet you mention is better as a preventive than as a cure. Do not neglect keeping your teeth clean.

Continue dieting as you now are. Get variety by shifting about among the foods now used.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

PLANTS IN AN APARTMENT.

PLANTS in an apartment are always more or less of a problem, but, you know, rooms are never really livable without at least one or two growing plants. Space is very valuable in the modern city apartment, and those versed in the art of interior decorating preach space—"look to your open places," they say, and, "consider vistas."

The first suggestion is a practical one, but the second applies to the window boxes, for what could be lovelier than an expanse of blue sky, a few fleecy white clouds and, in the foreground, a row of lacy ferns? The vista described is that of the average upper-floor window, and the foreground so essential to its beauty is easily provided.

Aside from the beauty of the arrangement, the strongest argument in favor of a window box is the fact that plants are almost sure to do well in such a location. You see, the box, being close to the window, always receives a maximum amount of sun, which is so necessary to plant life.

The most economical window boxes for general use are made of tin, painted to match the woodwork of the window. These pans are in good taste and are arranged with a drain pan, which is very necessary. Plants, while they require moisture, demand it in homeopathic doses and never take kindly to standing with what the florists term "wet feet." If their tender rootlets stand in water they are sure to decay, which eventually means death to any plant.

The reason there are failures is because no attention has been paid by the owner to the environment in which the box is to be placed. Most persons choose the plants they admire most, never considering just what those varieties require in the way of sun, temperature or moisture. They fail to remember that plants must have sun, not a small amount, but sun at least five hours a day—and that the only plants that will thrive in an apartment window that is shaded by a nearby building are some of the many varieties of foliage plants.

In choosing plants for a window box it is well to consider only such varieties as will not too greatly screen the window space. Tall-growing plants like crotons or rubber plants are never suitable for box use. Pteris ferns are low-growing, lacy little ferns that make excellent plants for growing in a box in a north window. Primroses are a wise choice for a box in a sunny location.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Revengefulness.

Some people go through life dominated by motives of revenge. Whenever they have been beaten or outwitted, or when they believe they have been slighted, they feel compelled to get even.

They spend their most passionate energies in pursuits in which, even if they are successful, they actually gain little but a harvest of ill feeling.

This vengefulness is especially operative in their most intimate relationships. If it is some one whom they love who has deceived or disappointed them their desire for revenge is especially violent.

Such a personality is uncomfortable in almost every relationship of life, especially when his revengefulness is accompanied, as it usually is, by acute feelings of inferiority which make him quick to take offense.

The revengeful individual often is one who in childhood felt himself cheated of the love of one or both of his parents. His revengefulness is thus closely linked both to jealousy and inferiority. Often, too, he has been conditioned in this way through identifying himself with a parent who is dominated by revengeful attitudes.

Revengefulness is a highly unserviceable and uncomfortable trait which will never develop in a child so long as he is well loved, treated fairly and exposed to the example of those who are under no compulsion to exact their pound of flesh.

It is the attitude of parents which chiefly conditions the child in this respect. They must critically examine their own motives and discipline themselves before they can be sure that they are bringing up children who will possess an outlook that fills the world with potential friends instead of ready-made enemies.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Inspector Linscott wished he could feel sure the man would go to London, but as there was no assurance he wouldn't step off at any of the numerous stations en route, and as he was obviously determined to go, there was no alternative but to accompany him. This the inspector decided to do, if reluctantly.

"There's a train in about an hour, I believe," he replied. "As you're going up, I'll go along, and you can come to the yard with me and give a written statement. . . ."

"Is that necessary?"

"You've been so helpful so far," the inspector continued, without replying to the question, "I'm sure you won't mind accommodating me."

"Well, to tell you the truth, it can't be done tonight. I've already spent several hours on this matter which is no concern of mine, and tonight, I've a date."

The inspector thought it would be tactless to make any further protest, so he excused himself, and telegraphed the yard to have a man meet the train in London, where he could point out the man, and return to the manor in time for bed. This done, he and Mr. Hanson started on their journey, neither making any further mention of the tragedy, but the inspector making every effort to draw him out about Canada in the hope of falling on a clue. But when the train reached Victoria he had discovered nothing of certain importance. He had, however, made many mental notes, and resolved to cable the Canadian authorities for verification and particulars about Mr. Willis Hanson.

It was a tired and somewhat disconsolate man who returned to the manor that night. He had hoped so much from this stranger, but the actual results, while extremely significant, if the man's testimony could be relied upon, had left him troubled. Mr. Hanson's manner had been just a shade too natural and easy, too unconcerned and cocksure to suit him. The fellow was a good actor, and a sharp blade! Willis Hanson hadn't knocked around the world for nothing. Not if the inspector knew anything about human nature!

"Ah, here you are, inspector," Lady Dorothy greeted him as he came into the spacious entrance hall. "I could hardly wait for your return. There's been the most exciting discovery . . ."

The tired eyes brightened at once. A new life seemed to flow through all his veins.

"What is it?" he asked eagerly.

"Come in here and I'll show you." Lady Dorothy led the way into the music room, where Bruce Armstrong was sitting alone. "Do you have it there, Mr. Armstrong?"

"Yes," was the laconic reply, as the big explorer rose from his chair and approached the inspector.

He held out his hand. Across its palm lay a mudstained filigree sheath.

"To the knife?" asked the inspector, excitedly, taking the object into his hand and looking at it closely.

"Almost certainly, if my memory hasn't played me tricks."

The inspector opened the attache-case which he was carrying, and brought forth the knife in question. It had been cleaned since the fatal evening, and now presented merely the interesting appearance of any antique weapon. The blade slipped into the sheath readily.

Inspector Linscott took a seat near a light and began to scrutinize the two pieces with the minutest care. A curious definiteness in the design had caught his eye quite suddenly. It was more noticeable on the sheath than on the handle of the blade. The scrawl did form itself into letters. The inspector was now sure. He asked for another lamp and a magnifying glass.

"I don't know if I can find a glass," said Lady Dorothy, curiously watching the examination. "But I'll get another brighter lamp, certainly."

Bruce Armstrong had drawn a chair near the inspector, and was studying him closely.

"What do you see?" he couldn't resist asking.

"Initials."

"Initials!" repeated the explorer in amazement.

The inspector nodded. "They seem to be B. P. I just want to make sure," he said.

"B. P.," repeated Armstrong slowly. Then quite suddenly a curious light leaped into his eyes. He was about to speak, when Lady Dorothy returned, accompanied by Gaspard, carrying an enormous lamp, which he set down beside the inspector. He did not want to speak in front of the butler, so he curbed his impatience until he had again disappeared. Then he turned to Lady Dorothy.

"Isn't Prince Pozolevsky's first name Boris?" he asked excitedly.

"Yes. Why?" replied his astonished hostess.

"There are initials on the knife-handle, and on the sheath. And they are B. P.," he explained exultantly, while the inspector renewed his scrutiny in the more brilliant light.

Just as Armstrong finished speaking he looked up.

"There is no doubt of it," he said. "In the filigree work are cunningly woven the initials B. P."

"Oh, but it can't be the prince's knife," exclaimed Lady Dorothy. "It's most certainly Lord Winston's. Lady Gwendolen was so sure!"

"It's undoubtedly a knife of French-Canadian origin," agreed the inspector. "But that doesn't preclude the possibility of its belonging to the prince. He might have bought it just because it did have his initials."

"What did I tell you?" returned the explorer enthusiastically.

"Oh, but I'm sure," commented Lady Dorothy.

"Why are you so sure?" asked the inspector, eyeing her curiously.

"But Gwen was sure . . ." she replied lamely.

"Yes, she was sure, too," said the inspector thoughtfully. "By the way, where did you find the sheath?" he added, after a moment's silence.

"We were walking in the garden . . ." began Armstrong.

"Just you and Lady Alston?"

"Yes. It was dusk. I would never have noticed it if my foot hadn't hit it. It was embedded in the soft earth and mud."

"Where in the garden?"

"About two feet from where the gardener discovered Lord Winston's watch and cigarette-case."

"So. . . ."

Inspector Linscott lapsed into deep thought. Certainly the hours since the verdict of the coroner's jury had been handed down had brought forth more new evidence than all the rest put together. It might still point to Robin Smith, he was aware, but that it didn't he was now sure. He would have sworn that the B. P. on that knife and sheath contained the key to the mystery. "B. P.," he kept repeating to himself. It fitted Prince Pozolevsky without a doubt, but might it not also prove to be the real name of Willis Hanson? That was what Inspector Linscott wondered.

It was too late when the sheath came to the inspector's notice for him to take any further action that night. But his thoughts were not idle. He was so excited by the fast-moving events of the day that he found sleep impossible. He sat in his light dressing-gown and smoked large, black cigars rapidly, lighting one from the other.

And as he smoked he scanned his notes to refresh his mind on the details. He observed with surprise the mark after Donald Flint's name. For a while he couldn't remember why he had put it there; so many more thrilling circumstances had swept along in its trail. When he finally did recall the brief sight of the flying motor car to which he had been witness, he smiled. For before he left Lady Dorothy, she had told him that Lady Gwendolen and Mr. Flint had reconsidered their engagement, and for the present it was merely a case of friendship as previously. Of course, it was a perfectly natural explanation for the gentleman's sudden departure, and emphasized the fact that he was indeed a gentleman, if it did nothing more.

Then, again, there were light pencil marks against Lady Dorothy, because of her insistance that the knife belonged to the murdered lord; and against Bruce Armstrong, because he seemed too eager to pin the crime on Prince Pozolevsky. Inspector Linscott now smiled at these notations, too. For he was becoming increasingly sure that the "B. P." so cunningly wrought on the sheath and the knife blade were not the initials of any recognizable name—what criminal would be foolish enough to use his own monogrammed knife to commit murder? It was either a stolen knife, or the initials indicated a former name by which the guilty person had been known. And it was the latter idea which the inspector particularly favored. And for the reason that it appeared to fit so nicely when applied to the stranger, Willis Hanson, the stranger who had been so honest, so anxious to help, so natural and easy in what would have seemed a trying position. Yes, it was of Willis Hanson and his past life that the inspector, above everything, desired to know more.

Not that an astute detective would overlook any one, no matter how inconsequential and honest they appeared on the surface. Far from it! He intended wiring London in the morning for full particulars as to the past life of every guest and servant in the house as well as Willis Hanson. But it was the latter who would receive his most thoughtful attention.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

START THE BABY WITH GOOD HABITS.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Regularity is one of the greatest factors in keeping the baby well. The wise mother from the first trains her baby to have good habits. Habits are the result of repeated actions, and good habits for the baby are founded on regularity in eating, sleeping and emptying the bowls.

The baby's program is built around a regular feeding time, with a sleeping period after each feeding for the little baby. These feedings and sleeping times should be maintained steadfastly by the mother. She should not nurse the baby before his regular time to stop his crying, nor should she let any one disturb him at the time when he should be sleeping. If he is sleeping when his feeding time comes he must be wakened and fed, except that a very young baby who is getting a 2 a. m. feeding need not be wakened for it.

The mother should plan a daily program, considering first what is best for the baby, and next how to fit his program in with the family routine.

American to Become Toreador.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Another American, Sam Stuart, of Fort Worth, Tex., has heard the call of the bull ring, and will join Sydney Franklin, the Brooklyn toreador, in the invasion of Spanish arenas next season. Stuart is competing in a rodeo here.

MACARONI - SPAGHETTI CONTESTS

The Mueller macaroni - spaghetti recipe contest closes at noon today. Rarely have we seen so much interest displayed in a recipe contest and rarely have we experienced so great a response. A literal flood of recipes has poured into the women's page department from the start of the contest.

Now begins the huge task of sorting out the recipes and judging them. The prize winners will be announced Monday, November 3, and some of the prize-winning recipes will also be published on that day.

Rules Governing the Contest.

1. Each contestant may submit as many recipes as she wishes, calling for macaroni or spaghetti.
2. Write on one side of the paper Only. Be sure your name and address are on each sheet of paper you submit. This is important.
3. Mail recipes to Macaroni Contest Editor, care of The Washington Post.
4. The contest closes at noon on October 31.
5. The names of the winners will be announced on November 3. The prize-winning recipes will also be published.

DRAIN

FILL

Fill with the correct winter grade of the new Texaco Motor Oil—longer-lasting, crack-proof. Every Texaco dealer has an accurate chart which shows exactly the grade for your car. Alert, free-flowing at zero, this revolutionary new golden motor oil will reduce winter engine wear to a minimum.

Colder days will soon be here. The oil you used this summer should not be expected to fully protect your engine, any more than light summer clothing should be expected to protect you in the frosty days to come. Besides, that oil may have been exposed to considerable wear and mileage—enough to render it less than completely effective.

After an etching by Morgan Dennis

LISTEN

HEAR the difference before you feel it at the wheel. "How," you ask, "can this new Texaco make so much difference in the sound of my engine?" Because it is full-bodied and crack-proof! The new Texaco protects thoroughly, completely, from the first cold thrust of flashing pistons to the last mile of a long fast drive. It is free from all cold-sensitive impurities—free from all hard-carbon-forming elements.

Drain and refill with the correct winter grade of the new Texaco Motor Oil today—then listen! Remember, that new quietness means more than better daily performance. It means that in the crankcase of your engine is a tougher, longer-lasting motor oil that cuts dollars from your lubrication expense and adds miles to the life of your car. This new golden motor oil is available in all of our 48 States under the Texaco Red Star with the Green T.

NEW YORK DOCTOR WINS NOBEL PRIZE

First of This Year's Awards Goes to Rockefeller Institute Member.

GIVEN FOR BLOOD STUDY

Stockholm, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Dr. Karl Landsteiner, eminent bacteriologist and pathologist who, since 1922, has been a member of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York, today was awarded the Nobel prize for medicine.

The first of this year's awards to be announced, it was made by the Stockholm Faculty of Medicine. The money grant amounts to about $40,000.

Dr. Landsteiner is the author of numerous papers on medical subjects connected with bacteriology and pathology. The prize was granted to him specifically for his discoveries in classifying different types of human blood.

The prizes for chemistry, physics and literature will be announced early next month. The Swedish Academy of Science, which bestows those in chemistry and physics, is to meet November 13.

The Swedish Academy of Literature will meet then or a week earlier.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Dr. Karl Landsteiner, just awarded the Nobel prize in medicine for 1930, is principally noted for his work in immunology, bacteriology and pathology in connection with the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research.

Born at Vienna in 1868, he was educated at the University of Vienna. He is married and has a son, Ernest, who was a pathologist at the university from 1909 to 1919. Dr. Landsteiner has been associated with the institute since 1922.

His contributions to medical literature are extensive.

Smith to Receive Irish Degree.

Dublin, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The senate of the National University of Ireland today voted to confer the degree of doctor of laws, honoris causa, upon Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York. No date was announced for the ceremony.

West Point Professor Resigns.

(Associated Press.)

Col. Lucius Hudson Holt, for 20 years professor of economics and history at West Point, has resigned to devote his time to directing the financial interests of his father, Fred Park Holt. Col. Holt was assistant editor of Webster's International Dictionary from 1908 to 1910.

Wife's Suit Charges Misconduct to Mate

Her husband boasted so much of his experiences with other women and retold details of his past loose life so often she suffered a nervous breakdown, Mrs. Marian E. Morarre, of Quincy street northwest near Fifth street, alleged yesterday when she asked the District Supreme Court to grant her a limited divorce from Thomas O. Morarre, of Columbia road northwest near Fourteenth street.

In addition, Mrs. Morarre charges her husband with courting other women, and even declares he was indiscreet with a woman with whom he made a trip to California. She also charges him with desertion and nonsupport. The couple married May 6, 1925, at Alexandria, and separated in March, 1927. They have one child, whose custody the wife asks.

MOTIONS IN SMITH CASE GIVEN TO HITZ

Justice Accepts Brief Filed by Defense Attorneys on Trio's Behalf.

HENRY'S NOT INCLUDED

Motions of three former officials of the F. M. Smith Co. for more details concerning charges contained in an indictment which alleges conspiracy to embezzle funds of the company and destroy records were taken under advisement yesterday by Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court. The action followed brief arguments by opposing counsel.

Justice Hitz accepted a brief filed by defense attorneys, Wilton J. Lambert, R. H. Yeatman and George D. Horning, and gave the Government until Tuesday morning to file its answer. He also gave the defense until Tuesday night to reply to the Government's brief.

The motions were filed on behalf of O. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board; O. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., former vice presidents. No motion was filed on behalf of Samuel J. Henry, former president, who is charged jointly with the others. Henry is represented by Attorne. Harry S. Barger.

Trial of the four former officials is scheduled for November 17, and the decision of Justice Hitz regarding the bill of particulars is expected before that date. It was understood that the Government is practically prepared to produce such a bill immediately if Justice Hitz sustains the motions in order that there will be no further delay.

The case was on the calendar for trial several weeks ago, but was delayed pending hearing on pleas in abatement which were decided against the defense.

Relief Pictures Projected On Screen for Eye Experts

Inventor Believes Process Applicable to Cinema, But at Great Expense; Two Methods of Producing Lifelike Reproductions Are Explained.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 30 (A.P.). A new apparatus for projecting pictures in relief which the inventor, Dr. Herbert E. Ives, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, believes applicable to motion pictures was demonstrated before the Optical Society of America here tonight.

The pictures exhibited were small and because of the crudeness of the experimental apparatus were visible to relatively small groups of people. Dr. Ives explained that the methods used are susceptible of refinement and are theoretically applicable to the production of moving pictures, but at very great cost.

The inventor began his demonstration by describing earlier methods of producing relief pictures, similar to those shown in the old-fashioned stereoscope, first by means of a parallax stereogram and later by a parallax panoramagram.

"A long-standing problem," said Dr. Ives, "one that has attracted the attention of many investigators, is to find some method of projecting pictures on a screen so as to show relief without demanding that the spectators wear special goggles or other devices to direct separate pictures to each eye. This problem has been solved as a laboratory experiment by using the same general kind of pictures and ridged structures which have been worked out for making parallax panoramagrams.

"In one method of projection the screen is built up of celluloid or glass rods which are so calculated as to reflect light upon them directly back in the direction from which it comes. A large number of pictures are then shown on the screen from a battery of lanterns standing side by side. These pictures are originally made from a series of different points of view.

"Each of the pictures on the screen can be seen from only one direction, so that with a large enough number of projectors any observer sees a picture in relief upon the screen.

"In the second method of projection the screen is made up of transparent lenticular rods so calculated that from any direction of observation one receives light only from an exceedingly narrow strip on the back of each rod. A parallax panoramagram is then projected onto the rear of the screen by means of a high-quality lens so that each of its little panoramic strip images falls on the back of one of the rods. The rods then behave exactly like the grating in the parallax panoramagram and a relief picture is seen in any direction."

Man, Wife, Girl Slain; Murder, Suicide Seen

Houston, Tex., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—E. A. Hart, 38, salesman for a refrigerator company, and his wife were found shot to death and their 13-year-old daughter, Vivian, mortally wounded early today in the bedroom of their home. Police expressed the belief Hart shot his wife and child and then himself. The girl died an hour after the shooting was discovered.

A revolver was found about 3 feet from Hart's right hand. Hart was fully dressed. Mrs. Hart and the child were in bed.

The Goofus Ant

The Goofus Ant hates sweets like maple sirup
And frosted cake to him is just a bore,
While he used to think it dandy
To consume a ton of candy
He find he cannot do it any more.

For his teeth are causing him a lot of trouble
As he failed to brush them often as a kid,
And because of lack of brushing
To the dentist he goes rushing—
It's too bad he didn't brush as he was bid!

G. U. FACES HARDEST TEST TONIGHT IN MICH. STATE

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Harry Payne Whitney's obituaries recount the fact that he was once a ten-goal man in polo, a member of the big four which won the International Polo Cup from England, a yachtsman, a hunter, and, as early as 1915, a flier. In other words, he was one of that element of American aristocrats who played risky games for the fun of them contrary to a public delusion of some years back that rich men's sons were no match for the poor boys in character, athletic skill, physical stamina and daring.

It has been a long time since this delusion was held by any considerable element of the population, but I recollect that it used to be quite popular, and that the type known as the rah-rah boy, or rich man's son at college, was held to be much inferior to the average young man of like age and humble circumstances. It was a great comfort to the humble classes, no doubt, and a boost for democracy, but that was at a time when the drama was showing up the rich as debauchees and the poor or middling poor as Virtue's Own. It never was any great fun to be poor, except in retrospect, and it may have been some consolation, however specious, to believe that an ordinary boy named Joe could lick anybody with any Vanderbilt or Astor in him.

Stories of the Time Were Typical.

Perhaps it was furthered by the George Fitch football stories and the football practices of the time, which implied that the best football players to be had in the United States were freight handlers, teamsters and bartenders. Mr. Fitch's Ole Skjarsen, the hireling hero of Siwash, who couldn't understand the signals and ran 100 yards the wrong way of the field with his entire team clinging to him, trying to bring him down, expressed the idea.

Meaning no disloyalty to the lower classes, I much doubt that this ever was an accurate comparison of the classes. The Prince of Wales, for instance, though he possibly stays up too late many nights, which is bad for his complexion, and makes shadows under his eyes, has bounced off his horses often enough to make most young men of average determination pause and wonder if horse jumping were their favorite sport after all. However, not to imply that a poor youth of his age at the time would have chucked the game for safety's sake, it certainly does seem that the prince himself must be a very game young man. One familiar photograph of him just after he had dismounted on his face in a rock pile showed the heir to the British throne, and all the headaches appertaining to the same, laid out on his back, with a dark swipe across his features and his eyes shut in a coma such as very few prize fighters ever are reduced to in the ring for pay.

Enjoy Suffering as Change of Pace.

The prince is quite well-to-do by all accounts, and if his were the sporting tendencies of the average sport fan, who is distinctly sedentary, he would have hired some rider to bounce off his horses for him thereafter while he sat by and exclaimed "well bowled," but he was back on his horse, or on and off his horse, within a few days, indicating that he was either an unusually game sportsman or not quite well mentally. Sometimes I think some of these dashing young millionaires who go out of their way looking for sports that will crack them up are not in the pink of condition above the ears, but they seem pretty wise on all other topics, so maybe it is just they are bored with the ease of existence and enjoy suffering as a change of pace.

Now and again in the summer I see at the horse tracks a middle-aged party with a black mustache about the size of an adult mouse standing around, usually alone and apparently somewhat aloof, with his hands clasped over his middle and chinning himself on a high, stiff collar. He wears gloves in summer and he stands so stiff that you might wonder if maybe he weren't wearing a plaster cast for some cracked ribs.

Mr. Keene Has Record For Crack-ups.

He has been pointed out to me as Mr. Foxhall Keene, a polo player for 30 years, a ten-goal man, which means a champion, up to the time of his retirement in 1917, and probably the most cracked-up athlete next to one or two of the old professional hockey players that this country ever produced. Years ago Mr. Keene's crackings-up were as familiar in the papers as the subsequent dismountings of the Prince of Wales, and one rare old sheet in the reference files gives a diagram of him with a casualty report that reads like a year's business at a fairly busy hospital. He was tapped on the head with a polo

Tunney Suit Airs Boxing Politics

Politician Is Seeking $500,000; Ex-Champ Affable in Court.

and sportsman, that Tunney agreed to give him 10 per cent of his purse, and 25 per cent of his ring earnings during the remainder of his career, in return for Mara's aid in gaining him a title match with Jack Dempsey in 1926. The one mild sensation of the presentations was the admission of Tunney's counsel that Gene offered Mara $25,000 if the politician could influence the New York State Athletic Commission to lift the ban that had been put on the bout here. The commission then recognized Harry Wills, the "black menace," as the outstanding contender.

As a matter of boxing history the commission, with members George E. Brower and William Muldoon in favor and Chairman James A. Farley opposed, reversed its position and sanctioned the match, but the ill-censing committee, since abolished, vetoed the affair by refusing to grant Dempsey a boxing license. The late Tex Rickard then promoted the match in Philadelphia and drew the first $2,000,000 gate in fight history.

Mara, represented by Martin Littleton, promised to prove that he had a contract signed by Tunney guaranteeing him 10 per cent of his $200,000 purse for helping bring about a match with Dempsey. Two other contracts, neither signed by Tunney, but allegedly bolstered by a letter from Gene purporting to agree to the provisions, are to be offered in evidence, counsel said, that Tunney agreed to give up 16 2-3 per cent of his earnings and his manager, Billy Gibson, 8 1-3 per cent of his share, to make up Maras' 25 per cent.

Approached Politician After Rickard Talk.

The trend of the Tunney presentation was that Rickard "lined up" with Tunney for the Dempsey bout four days before an oral agreement was entered into between Gene and Mara on April 3, 1926, and that Tunney approached the politician only after Rickard asked, "Haven't you any friends who can go to work on the commission?"

One throwback to the old days lightened the proceedings when Littleton said relations became strained between Tunney and Mara after the politician offered the fighter, then in Florida, this first bit of advice:

"Throw away those books, that typewriter, the golf suit and dinner clothes. Come back to New York and drive a truck if you want to get anywhere in the fight game."

South Carolina Wins, 13 to 0, Over Citadel

Orangeburg, S. C., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—A pair of touchdowns, one as a result of Boineau's flashy dashes and the other from a blocked punt, gave South Carolina a 13-to-0 victory over the Citadel in their twenty-fifth meeting here today.

Citadel threatened to score on several occasions, but failed to produce sufficient punch at the crucial moment.

The first tally came late in the initial quarter, when Boineau intercepted a Citadel pass deep in his own territory and raced 45 yards. Two plays later he shot around his left end, dodged threatening tacklers and placed the ball on the 1-yard line. Blount carried the ball across the goal line the next attempt.

Capt. Gretasett, an end, contributed the other score. Blocking a Citadel punt, recovering it and running 3 yards for the touchdown in the last quarter.

U. S. Army Polo Team In Argentine Tourney

Buenos Aires, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The United States Army team will be the main attraction at the Argentine national polo tournament, beginning Saturday. The invaders, holders of the American junior championship and handicapped at 21 goals, will open the tourney by meeting Los Pinguinos, a 16-goal Argentine team.

The Army team, which arrived in Buenos Aires September 30, is composed of Maj. Charles C. Smith, Capt. Chandler A. Wilkinson, Capt. Peter P. Rodes, Lieut. Morton McD. Jones and Lieut. Homer Kiefer.

Dartmouth Invades Yale With High Hope of Victory

Green's Prospects Never Brighter in Quest for Triumph in Bowl; Coach Says 'Breaks' Will Decide; Elis Pin Faith on Backs.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Head Coach Jackson Cannell predicted today that his Indians will give the Elis of Yale a close battle and that the game will be decided by the "breaks."

A Dartmouth Team never has beaten Yale, but prospects never were brighter than this season. Toothacker will try and match the brilliance of Albie Booth, and he will be aided materially by McCall, Donner and Porter.

Longest Workout Held by Elis.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—While Dartmouth has yet to defeat a Yale eleven, the Blue today held its longest workout of the season, perhaps in determination that this year will be no exception. The Indian eleven is dangerous, Yale admits, but with Albie Booth, Parker and Dunn in there with Crowley close by, the Elis are hopeful. A light workout tomorrow is planned and nothing more until the whistle blows Saturday.

Carnegie Reserves Use N. Y. U. Plays.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—A team of reserves used New York University formations and plays today while the Carnegie Tech regulars looked on and listened to a lecture explaining the best methods of stopping them in the game here Saturday. It was announced that most of the men who started against Notre Dame would face the Violets.

Lone Harvard Regular To Face W. M.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Paradoxical as it seems, Coach Arnold Horween today said he was not taking William and Mary lightly, yet would start only one of his regulars Saturday. Eddie Mays, half back, will be the only Dartmouth starter to oppose the Brother and Sister eleven. Barry Wood, first-string quarter back, will not be called upon unless necessity demands it, Horween said.

Dobie Still Gloomy as Cornell Entrains.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Gil Dobie's pregame utterances may be gloomy, but his big red team tonight was started gaining ground on Columbia, Saturday opponents, the great Crimson eleven being en route to New York. The "eleven" consisted of 35 men, and Gloomy Gil refused a prediction as to the outcome. As they entered the coaches Gil was heard to remark, "They're still in training."

North Dakota Advancing On West Point.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—North Dakota tonight was advancing its big guns on the Hudson River fortress. A 220-pounder was aimed right at Maj. Sasse's tackles. By name he is Carl Eckholm. He'll be pitted against Prize, 215. Such heavy artillery should be provocative of heavy shelling Saturday.

Princeton Starts West For Chicago Game.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Thirty-two Princeton gridders, one for each stripe on a Bengal tiger, tonight entrained for Chicago, where they meet Alonzo Stagg's machine Saturday. The Chicago eleven holds a 2-1 margin over the Tiger outfit by virtue of a 15-7 victory at Palmer Stadium last year. It marks the third trip West for a Princeton team, the Tigers having invaded Chicago in 1922 and the Ohio State stadium at Columbus two years ago.

Meehan's Violets Head Toward Pittsburgh.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Chick Meehan and his somewhat wilted Violets tonight were heading Pittsburghward, Chick hoping the Smoky City climate might benefit his machine. On their last sortie to Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech proved somewhat easy for the Violets, but there is no Al Lassman nor Ken Strong on this eleven. Meanwhile Judge Steffen had his well-oiled machine in working order for the Botany Boys.

Little Worrying Little About Cornell Game.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—His entire squad in condition, Lou Little optimistically stated he had "little" to worry about for his Saturday joust with Cornell. Hewitt, whose drop-kick tumbled the Williams outfit last week, will start, as will Stanzyck. Active scrimmaging ended today, a light workout tomorrow being voted.

Brown Seeks Revenge Against Syracuse.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Not having scored a point against a Syracuse Eleven since 1915, in which time seven games have been contested, Coach Tuss McLaughrey and 33 Brown stalwarts hope to avenge previous defeats Saturday in New York City. During the lean years Syracuse has piled up 112 points.

Fordham Risks Record Against West Va.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Undefeated in two seasons and unscored upon this year, Fordham awaited the West Virginia Mountaineers with feudal thoughts today. The game will be at the Polo Grounds and Coach Cavanaugh can safely say each of his linemen is a ten handicap player. The opposition has found it so, at least. Jim Murphy's availability is still uncertain.

Penn Fans Awaiting Kansas Invasion.

Philadelphia, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Quaker City fans will observe Saturday if Jim Bausch, highly touted Kansas back, is all bosh. This prominently mentioned player heads the Kansas delegation into the Eastern sector, anxious to take back the Pennsylvania goal posts. The team weight averages give Kansas a decided edge, about 196 to 184. The Jayhawkers are undefeated as yet this season.

Mountaineers Slated To Try Tricks.

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The Mountaineers of West Virginia, en route to New York to see what Coach Frank Cavanaugh has in his Fordham machine that prohibits other teams from scoring on them, will dip into Merlin's bag of tricks to try and overcome the Fordham weakness, if any. This magic will be in the form of the only ambidextrous back field star ever to be seen in action in New York, Bill Parriott, who passes with either hand, is the hope of Ira Rodgers. Last year the score was 0-0.

Two Horses at Laurel Die In Fire Razing Town Stable

FIRE of unknown origin that gutted a stable in the rear of Osbon's Hotel in the heart of Laurel, Md., last night claimed the lives of two horses and caused wild excitement as four other thoroughbreds raced wild through the streets of the town.

The horses destroyed were Golden Auburn, 5-year-old chestnut, and False Pride, a 6-year-old, both owned and trained by W. J. Henfling who had campaigned both horsese at the Laurle race meeting which is now in its final week.

Three of the four horsese missing were recovered by attendants, but at a late hour the thoroughbred Comis Artist, owned by Mrs. Osbon, wife of the proprietor of the hotel, was still loose.

The stable is just a few blocks from the race track. Volunteer companies from Laurel, Camp Meade, Berwyn and Riverdale responded to the call and within an hour had the fire under control, but too late to save the small structure.

V. M. I. Eleven Primed For Davidson Contest

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., Oct. 30.—Members of the V. M. I. Flying Squadron wound up their period of hard work Thursday with their plays clicking better than at any time during the season and with a fixed idea that they are due for a comeback at the expense of Davidson Saturday morning. The Cadets believe that with Capt. Roy Dunn hitting the line as he did against Maryland, the V. M. I. attack will be hard to stop. Lefty Williams, clever passer and shifty runner, has recovered from injuries, and Gilly Laughorn and Stumpy Travers are showing great form.

John Gill, star left end, is also off the hospital list and is counted on to strengthen the Cadet line, which will consist of the regular starting cast of Shell at center, Rochelle and Marklis, guards; Kaylor and Ford, tackles, and Rand Gregory, right end.

$100,000 in Sweepstakes Won by 3 Clevelanders

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Three Clevelanders were wealthier by approximately $100,000 today as a result of the Cambridge Sweepstakes at Newmarket, England.

Herbert C. Fries, a steel plant braksman, who paid $1 for a ticket on The Pen, the race winner, received $67,827. He said he was going to build a home with the money, but that he would continue on his job.

Mrs. Regina Croak, who had a ticket on Racedale, winner of second place, won $22,609, while Steve Barlicki, who picked Recorder, the third place winner, drew $11,304.

Montreal, Quesbc, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The law of averages finally worked for Richard Baden Ben Smith, 30, temporarily unemployed boilermaker. Word came today that he had won $11,304 in the Cambridgeshire Sweepstakes, as holder of a ticket on Recorder, third horse in the race.

"I had it coming to me," he said calmly.

For years, he explained, he had been buying tickets in raffles, pools and sweepstakes, confident that some day the law of averages would repay him.

Smith said he plans to return to work in the Canadian Pacific Railway shops as soon as he can be reemployed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 30.—Vernon Eavey, buyer of two tickets in the Quebec Charity Sweepstake, to be run tomorrow, holds a horse that has been drawn, according to a wire received by him yesterday. His horse is Pomerellen, which, if it wins, is worth $30,000 to Eavey. Should Pomerellen finish second, Eavey would get $10,000; third, $5,000, and is certain to share with seven also rans the $10,000 consolation prize.

The tickets were from a batch of a dozen sent to the office where Eavey is employed here by a former employe, who is now residing in Montreal. A fellow worker, Ralph Pentz, had bought the two tickets, one of which was the winner, but told Eavey to take them and that "he would take the next two."

The drawing took place October 28 at Lafontaine Hall, Montreal. Ten names, the number of horses in the sweepstake, have been drawn, Eavey's one ticket being one of them.

Aerial Attack Reliance of Marines

Aim to Stop Streak of W. Maryland by Passes.

13-7 Loss to Boston College Is Marines' Only Setback.

At home in the fighting togs on land or sea, the U. S. Marines also are equally gifted in the air. Especially is this true with regard to football, so this means of attack is the big weapon with which the Marines expect to halt the 21-game undefeated streak of Western Maryland when these two husky elevens come together in Griffith Stadium Saturday night.

The Marines have played five games so far this season, losing only one, this to Boston College on a questionable decision, 7 to 13. However, in all of these games the Marine offense was limited almost exclusively to running and bucking plays. This was done for a purpose, because the Devil Dogs expect to unleash an aerial attack against the Terrors that is calculated to get results in the shape of touchdowns.

According to reports from the scouts who have seen Western Maryland in action this fall, if the Terrors have any real weakness it is pass defense. So it is to this phase of attack that the Marines will turn with everything that they have in their command. And this is plenty.

Backs Specialize In Passing.

For more than two weeks the Marines have been drilling in secret with their aerial attack, which now has reached a high stage of perfection. Coach Keady has revamped and switched his back field around until he has a man in each of the four positions who not only can toss the pigskin far and accurately but also do his part in receiving.

Because Long and Robertson are two of the best defensive backs on the squad and because they also pair up as one of the sweetest passing combinations in Marine grid togs, they are likely to get the call at half back and full back, respectively, when the whistle blows over O'Neill and Bauer or Poppleman. Billingsley is sure to be at the signal-calling post and Ray Gotko at the other half-back position.

Coach Keady is not yet sure just what combination of ball toters he will start the game with, reserving his decision until game time on this because of the uncertainty of the weather. However, if conditions are favorable, it is more than likely that he will start his passing quartet hoping to thus get over a touchdown early in the game to get the jump on his foes. Then he will concentrate on holding it.

Terrors' Scores Usually Small.

This is exactly the style of game employed by the Terrors. They have gone along their sensational streak never winning by much of a margin, but always out on top. Whenever scoring opportunities come their way they are powerful enough to capitalize. Thus, many of their games have been won by a narrow margin over seemingly minor foes simply because they got a lead and conservatively guarded and protected it.

Coach Keady is a firm believer in the old adage that the best way to fight a fire is with fire. And the Marines have been at home a long, long time in any old kind of a fight, so you can bet your last sou they will be right at home to meet the Terrors with pass for pass, run for run and smash and punt with smash and punt Saturday night.

Ellice an Easy Winner In Latonia's Feature

Latonia, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Displaying a dazzling brand of speed considering the dull underfooting, former Senator Johnson N. Camden's 3-year-old filly, Ellice, rompted to a hollow victory over five other sprinters in the White Fence Farm Purse, feature of the racing program here this afternoon. Second money fell to C. M. Weaver's recent purchase, Jimmy Moran, with Mrs. E. Denemark's Cheers saving the show.

Ellice, odds-on favorite in the wagering, took the track at the rise of the barrier and at no stage left the issue in doubt. Making the track look fast, she rattled off a quarter in :23, half in :47 1-5 and was under a strong pull to complete the 6 furlongs in 1:13 flat, a length and a half in advance of Jimmy Moran. The latter beat Cheers six lengths for the place.

The winner was ridden by Jockey Eugene James, leading rider of the meeting, and it marked the second success in as many days for the James-Camden combination. Ellice paid $3.90 in the mutuels.

After two decidedly rough sessions the favorite players came into their own today. Coots, Wood River and Bosafabo were other early choices to reward.

Prep Elevens Clash In Three Games Today

Three games are scheduled among the prep schools today. Gonzaga plays Georgetown Prep at Garrett Park in the feature game of the three. St. Alban's and Landon travel to Baltimore to engage, respectively, St. Paul's and Charlotte Hall.

Gonzaga looks like the winner against Georgetown Prep. Mitchell's young team has seen service in four games this year, while Ralph Duplin's charges are entering their second game today. Gonzaga also has the edge on man-power, having three full teams, while Georgetown can boast of no such number.

The Eye Strcetmen's cause was further strengthened yesterday by the return of Benjamin and Eppard, injured linemen, whose absence seriously weakened Mitchell's defense in the LaSalle game last week.

Fordham Denies Seeking Game With Notre Dame

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Having read in the papers that Notre Dame had turned down a proposal to play Fordham in a postseason football game if both continue undefeated, Jack Coffey, graduate manager, declared emphatically today that no such suggestion had been made by any one connected with Fordham.

"It is absurd to talk or even to think of a postseason game when we have only just finished the first half of our schedule and the hardest part is directly ahead of us," said Coffey.

"The players at Fordham are in the game because they like it and are not playing with any so-called national championship in view," he added.

Stuhldreher's Record Brilliant at Villanova

Special to The Washington Post.

Durham, N. C., Oct. 30.—Since Harry Stuhldreher assumed the coaching duties at Villanova College, Duke's foe Saturday, the Pennsylvanians have lost only 4 games out of 29 played. They have been held scoreless only three times in three years.

Stuhldreher himself was one of the "four horsemen" for Notre Dame several years ago and personally shows the men how the Notre Dame shift should be done. The strength of his eleven is not to be disputed, and the Blue Devil coaches, fully aware of the strength of their next opponent, are working the Duke men hard this week.

Behind a powerful and heavy line, Villanova has a crew of fast-stepping backs running after a shift, just as Rockne taught the system to Stuhldreher. Their running attack is deceptive.

Villanova's two outstanding victories of the year have been over Boston College and Temple. They defeated Temple last week for their first loss of the season. The Boston College Team has not won from Villanova in three years.

The Blue Devils are spending their time on the defensive. The Duke coaches are fully aware of the strength of the Villanova Team and are anxious to see the Blue Devils make a good showing. The Devils did not do anything marvelous in downing Wofford, 14-0, the coaches point out.

By JACK ESPEY.

ONE of the strongest football teams in the Middle West, perhaps one of the strongest in the entire country, will be on view for Washington fans tonight when Michigan State, undefeated in five games, meets Georgetown in Griffith Stadium, beginning at 8:15 o'clock.

Boasting among their accomplishments a 14-to-7 defeat of Colgate and a scoreless tie with Michigan, Big Ten leader, the Spartans are generally picked to win, but Tommy Mills, Georgetown head coach, declares that the Hilltoppers have a chance and may be depended upon to give the invaders a close fight.

It will be a battle between two teams using the Notre Dame style, Michigan State is coached by "Sleepy" Jim Crowley, one of Notre Dame's immortal "Four Horsemen," who is assisted by "Judge" Carbury, Notre Dame captain of 1922. Tommy Mills, as every one probably knows by this time, brought the Notre Dame stuff to the Hilltop when he left Knute Rockne's staff last winter.

Abe Eliowitz Is Spartan Ace.

Michigan State is confident of winning. It will place its strongest lineup on the field, the first time it has been able to do this in three weeks due to injuries to some of its best players. Notable among those whose services the Spartans will regain tonight is Abe Eliowitz, pile-driving full back. Bearing the number 30 on his back, he will be worth watching by all eyes, Georgetown's especially.

Georgetown, in spite of suffering two successive defeats recently, also is confident. Coach Mills has whipped together a spirited team that will be out to atone for earlier fail-

Gehrig Spends 2 Hours On Operating Table

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Lou Gehrig, Yankee's fir. baseman, spent two hours on the operating table at St. Vincent's Hospital, today undergoing repairs for the 1931 baseball season.

Lou underwent an operation on his left elbow and the forefinger of his right hand, which bothered him during the closing days of the season but failed to keep him out of the Yankee line-up. He probably will be confined to the hospital for a week or ten days.

5 Midwestern Elevens, Unbeaten, Oppose East

Chicago, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The Middle West will send five undefeated and untied football elevens into action against the East this week-end with high hopes of winning a majority of the engagements.

Kansas rolled up 93 points to 13 against Creighton. Haskell, Kansas Aggies and Iowa State, and gets its big test against Pennsylvania at Philadelphia Saturday.

The Army will be favored over the University of North Dakota, but the Flickertails for two straight years have not been tied or beaten.

Marquette goes East to meet Boston College with victories over Grinnell, Drake and Creighton on its record. Oklahoma City, conqueror of Lynn Waldorf's Oklahoma A. & W. team, which beat Iowa and tied Indiana, visits Davis-Elkins, and Tulsa, another member of the Oklahoma Big Four, entertains George Washington on Friday night with plenty of confidence as a result of a victory over Arkansas, among others.

Charity Game Indorsed By Wisconsin Governor

Madison, Wis., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Qualified approval of the proposed post-season charity football game between the University of Wisconsin and Marquette University, of Milwaukee, was given today by Gov. Walter J. Kohler. The governor said "every worthy method of raising money should receive most careful consideration because of the need for emergency relief."

The proposed game, the governor said, would please alumni of both institutions and would give citizens a chance to spend money in behalf of the unemployed and needy.

Marquette University officials have already approved of the proposed game for charity, but University of Wisconsin authorities have not announced their decision. It was believed that the recent conference ruling prohibiting the transfer of the Northwestern-Notre Dame game from Evanston to Soldiers Field, Chicago, would influence Wisconsin officials in making an adverse decision.

BUCKEYE POET WINS IN ROMP IN LAUREL FEATURE

Bradley Colt Leads From Barrier

Beats Woodcraft by 2½ Lengths in Test of 1 1-16 Miles.

The Spare, Odds-on, Outruns First Lady by Half Length.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 30.—The Claiborne Purse, sixth race on the program, was the Laurel feature today. E. R. Bradley's Buckeye Poet made a show of his field, leading all the way and winning by two and a half lengths. The Audley Farm's Woodcraft, supplanting Luggage as the leader on the back stretch, was easily the place-money horse, and A. Carlson's Outpost third. Rocket Glare finished fourth, Luggage dropping entirely out of contention.

Buckeye Poet, with W. Cannon, a first-class young rider, up, ran the mile and a sixteenth in the good time of 1:46. Six started and the field came in widely separated. Buckeye Poet had all of the field driving at the end. He was the favorite, paying $4.70.

A large crowd turned out for the midweek racing.

The Spare, Odds-on, Beats First Lady.

The Sagamore Stable's The Spare, a fast filly by John P. Greer and Milk Maid, won her first race of the year in her outing in the fifth event, although she has not been out of the money but once in many starts. She led all the way, with Bajshak up and ran 6 furlongs in 1:12 4-5, carrying top weight. She beat First Lady home by a half-length, but was slowing up from the sixteenth to the wire.

The Spare was an odds-on favorite, paying $3.20. E. Watters was astride First Lady and the Middleburg filly was second all the way, and Peggs Pride third. Pious was fourth and the other starter was Royal Light. There was little change in the placing of the field from start to finish.

P. H. Faulconer's Sandals, overhauling H. Guy Bedwell's Justiciary in the stretch, won the first race, for 2-year-olds, by a length and a half. Justiciary held the place by three lengths over Prince Peter III. Fly Guy was fourth. Running Girl, the favorite, was a contender to the far turn, but dropped back. Flamma was coupled with Sandals as the Trainer J. P. Jones entry. The time was 1:41 3-5. The winner paid $7.90. S. Renick rode the winner. Justiciary led by a wide margin to the stretch, but tired. The track on the back stretch is far from fast.

The Whip Graduates In Second Race.

J. McPherson's The Whip won the second race without a whip. He is a 4-year-old, and this is the first race he ever won. Marie Morris' 5-year-old maiden, Peter Simple, was second, and Archibald Barklie's 3-year-old maiden filly, Bright Day, was third. Brown Maid was fourth Joe Tedd was the early pacemaker, when Mikelina took up the running. Coming into the stretch The Whip came to the front and won by two lengths. The Whip and Bright Day were the favorites. W. Day rode The Whip. The time was 1:48 3-5 over a mile and one-sixteenth. The winner paid $7.

The Nevada Stock Farm's Garlic won the third race, adding to the many victories of that stable. He was an outsider in the betting. Virginia Lang's Fast Life got the place and W. W. Vaughn's Crimsal was third. Mill Bay fourth.

The favorites, Bonnie Bard, Dark Ayress and Hign Go were not close, although Dark Ayress did lead for more than a half mile. Garlic, ridden by the stable's jockey, R. Morrison, after he had been out of the saddle for some time, made a strong finish and scored by a neck, paying $16. The time for the mile was 1:42 1-5. The start was good for all except Jubilation, which was sidewise when the field started.

Portcodine Sets Own Pace.

J. F. Schorr's Portcodine led all the way in the fourth race for 2-year-olds, Brice up; J. W. Bean's Baboo was second and Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Grace Darling third. Albazano was fourth.

There was a long wait at the barrier. When the field left the gate for the 6-furlong dash Portcodine was on his toes and jumped into a good lead. Baboo, always close up, held on gamely to save the place, and only was beaten a half length. Grace Darling closed fast to beat Albazano for show money. Albazano got a poor start, but made up much ground until he reached the eighth pole, when he did not have free running. Abduction was disappointing. The winner paid $10.90. Baboo was $15.40 a place.

The time was 1:13 3-5.

Sun Friar, the favorite, made every post a winning one in the seventh race of the program and scored over Night Signal by two lengths and a half, with Vimont third. The winner, a 5-year-old owned by L. Perry, paid $6.20 in the $2 straight mutuels. Nine platers started in the mile and an eighth event.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANDALS, $7.90, $4.60, $3.10; JUSTICIARY, $8.20, $4.50; PRINCE PETER, $3.80.

SANDALS followed in nearest attendance of JUSTICIARY, reached the latter when approaching the home stretch, finished stoutly and took command the last sixteenth. JUSTICIARY sprinted into a good lead, was given a breathing spell, but could not withstand the winner. PRINCE PETER could not improve his position when entered into contention. FLY GUY fell back after the break and was never able to menace the leaders. RUNNING GIRL weakened in the final drive.

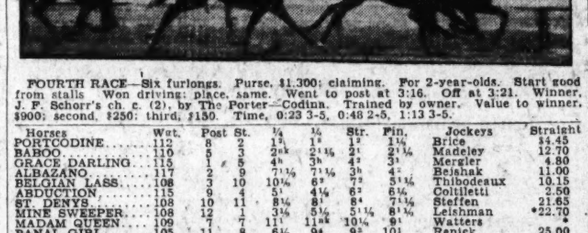
Two-dollar mutuels paid—GARLIC, $16.00, $9.10, $8.30; FAST LIFE, $29.50, $12.30; CRIMSAL, $8.80.

GARLIC, improving his position steadily after the first half mile, closed steadily to reach FAST LIFE and outfinished the latter nearing the finish. FAST LIFE raced DARK AYRESS and CRIMSAL into defeat, went into a clear lead, but faltered fast the last sixteenth. CRIMSAL, prominent throughout, outstayed MILLBAY. Latter closed fast from a slow beginning. DARK AYRESS stopped badly in the closing test. HIGH GO was all over the track. PASTEL had no mishaps.

GARLIC LEADS FAST LIFE NEAR FINISH.



FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:21. Off at 3:21. Winner, J. F. Schorr's ch. c. by The Porter—Codina. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PORTCODINE, $10.90, $6.40, $5.10; BABOO, $15.40, $7.50; GRACE DARLING, $6.10.

PORTCODINE began quickly, opened up a good lead, saved ground and, stoutly urged nearing the finish, outstayed BABOO. Latter, going in his best form and close up all the way, was steadily wearing the winner down. GRACE DARLING was stoutly ridden all the way. ALBAZANO, slow to get going, circled his field to close fast. BELGIAN LASS showed a dull test. ABDUCTION was outrun.

PORTCODINE REACHES HOME PORT AHEAD.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:53. Winner, Sagamore Stable's ch. f. (3), by John P. Grier—Mill Maid. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE SPARE, $3.20, $2.50, $2.30; FIRST LADY, $3.10, $2.80; PEGG'S PRIDE, $2.80.

THE SPARE, displaying good speed in the going, and kept off the inside rail, resisted repeated attempts from FIRST LADY, went down to the inside during the stretch run and tired badly. FIRST LADY forced a good pace and was gradually wearing the winner down. PEGG'S PRIDE broke fast, but could not keep pace early. She finished going gamely. PIOUS and ROYAL LIGHT were outrun.

THE SPARE GETS WINNERS SHARE.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:21½. Winner, E. R. Bradley's br. c. (3), by Black Toney—May Bird. Trained by H. J. Thompson. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:13 1-5, 1:39, 1:46.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUCKEYE POET, $4.70, $3.00, $2.50; WOODCRAFT, $3.70, $3.00; OUTPOST, $5.00.

BUCKEYE POET outran his field from the start, moved into a winning lead rounding the far turn, saved ground and held sway to the end. WOODCRAFT, reserved early, worked his way up on the outside, finished gamely, but could not threaten the winner. OUTPOST, a distant trailer for six furlongs, closed full of run. ROCKET GLARE had no excuses. LUGGAGE did not appear to favor the footing.

BUCKEYE POET TELLS OWN STORY.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 5:00. Winner, L. Perry's b. h. (5), by Sun Briar—Friary. Trained by C. J. Smith. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:49, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:53 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN FRIAR, $6.20, $4.10, $3.70; NIGHT SIGNAL, $5.60, $4.00; VIMONT, $4.30.

SUN FRIAR, hurried to the front and setting a good pace, opened up commandingly as the far turn and was never menaced thereafter. NIGHT SIGNAL closed steadily, but could not reach the winner. VIMONT made a determined move rounding the far turn, but was held safe. FAIR THORN weakened from forcing the pace. BROWN ERIN showed a very poor effort and can do better.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Laurel Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LAUREL PARK, Md., Oct. 30.—The Nanticoke Purse, at a mile, features the card tomorrow at Laurel—that is, on the flat—but the program puts the steeplechase at the head of the list. As this comes on the day before the end of the meeting, when two rich stakes are to be decided, it will be somewhat submerged by preparations for the final program of the 23-day meeting. MAYA should win the feature, and the W. R. Coe colt will be coupled with CAESARION, a very weak aid, but considered the best-bred horse in the country, being by Man o' War—Cleopatra. MAYA is consistent, with much early speed. Lightly weighted, he should lead all the way. He made Gallant Fox run his best at catch him at Chicago.

WESTERN FAVORED OVER EASTERN IN CLASH TODAY

Ahern Eleven In Drive for 2d Place

Foes Present Strongest Line-Up; Series Half Over.

Little Chance Is Seen for Either Team to Overhaul Tech.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	W.	L.	Pct.
Tech	2	0	1.000
Eastern	1	0	1.000
Central	1	1	.500
Western	0	1	.000
Business	0	2	.000

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE halfway mark of the annual high school series will be reached today when Eastern meets Western in Central Stadium at 3:45 o'clock.

Eastern this morning stands beside Tech as the only unbeaten team in the series, having won its debut from Business, 7-0, but in view of Tech's impressive victory over Central, Coach Kelley's team merits little titular consideration. Today's game may determine chiefly which team will make the strongest bid for runner-up honors. Despite its loss to Central by 14-7, Western rules the favorite today.

Coach Ahern has a light, fast team, whose squirming ball carriers make up for their lack of weight in shiftiness and whose light front wall holds up surprisingly well. Webb, Amidon, Lynham and Cochran are Ahern's Four Coltmen, with only Johnny Beers as a capable substitute.

Absence of Injuries Favors Ahern.

Luck has favored Ahern this year in the absence of injuries, a bugbear which has affected Central heavily and the others to minor degrees. This is even more peculiar in view of the fact that Western scrimmages daily on the poorest playing field of any school in Washington.

Kelley Builds New Team.

Eastern looks like the loser. Coach Kelley has had to build a team from the ground up. Billy Wells, quarter back, is the chief threat of the Blue. Bill Corridon looked well at line plunging against Business, but today will probably be a different story.

G. W. Halts in St. Louis To Drill Under Lights

Special to The Washington Post.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—George Washington University's football squad, en route to Tulsa, Okla., for a game with Tulsa University tomorrow night, stopped here tonight to take a light workout of one hour on the field of St. Louis University under flood lights.

The Capital City team will be the under dog in the game, according to opinions prevailing here, for Tulsa has defeated the strong Arkansas University eleven among others during an undefeated campaign thus far. Arrival at Tulsa is scheduled tomorrow before noon.

Aldershot, Favorite, Is Winner at Empire

Empire City, N. Y., Oct. 30 (A.P.). The races here today were run over a heavy track. The attendance was very small due to the inclement weather.

The Fordham Claiming Stakes, mile and 70 yards feature, was won by the favorite, Aldershot, carrying the silks of G. A. Cochran. Mrs. S. Bennett's Flying Max was second and A. W. Wentzel's Titus third. The race was worth $2,170.

Flying Max rushed to the front and Catrone let him rate along, while Aldershot followed in second position a length back. Flying Max led to the stretch, where Aldershot closed with a rush to take command and win going away by two lengths. Flying Max beat Titus eight lengths for the place.

Cubs to Extend Time At Camp Next Spring

Chicago, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Rogers Hornsby and his Chicago Cubs plan to extend their spring training season, leaving for Catalina Island, Calif., February 2, or one week earlier than a year ago.

A long schedule of exhibition games will be planned, Manager Hornsby said today, as he established his winter headquarters here. Games will be played at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Kansas City and probably Fort Worth, Tex.

SAYS PEGLER

mallet, his horse jumped in his lap going over a stone fence in Ireland, he was dragged by a stirrup, he was kicked in many climes and areas, he lost some teeth, his collar bones were cracked, a dog bit him and he was tossed out of two racing automobiles in the days when the races were run over country roads. And before that he would have played football at Harvard except that injuries kept him out of the game.

Mr. Tommy Hitchcock, the great polo star of the present, also offers some little refutation of the old delusion referred to, but his polo and his riding over the shrubs and fences pursuing the hounds, stimulating as these games may be, are nothing to his earlier adventures. Mr. Hitchcock enlisted in the French Army at the age of 17, brought down three German planes, was captured with a bullet in the thigh, escaped from a train in Germany, walked 100 miles in his French uniform and turned up in Switzerland. Then he got a commission as a flier in the American Army and went back for more.

Well, it's the rich that get the pleasure.

5 OLD LINERS FACED VA. IN 1929

Byrd Sends Players Through Long Drill, the Final One.

ONLY four men who started against Virginia last fall and only five who played in the 1929 game will be in action for the University of Maryland when the Old Liners tackle the Cavaliers at Charlottesville tomorrow.

Al Pease, end; Jess Krajcovic, guard; and George Chalmers and Bill Evans, backs, are the quartet who began against the Cavaliers last November in the 13-13 tilt who will again be in action when the first whistle blows. Bill Fisher, tackle, who was used in a reserve role last fall, is slated to be in the starting line-up this season.

All of the others who will begin the Virginia tilt never have played football against the Cavalier varsity Maryland used only 14 men against Virginia last season. Buck Miller, half back, is nursing a lame shoulder and may not be fit for use at all on Saturday.

Others who played for Maryland in the contest a year ago were Al Heagy, end; Herman Lombard and Fred Ribnitzki, tackles; John McDonald, guard; George Madigan, center; Augie Roberts, half back, and Julio Radice, full back, all Washingtonians. All of them were letter men and all were graduated in the 1930 class.

After going through a hard session yesterday, the final before the meeting with the Cavaliers, it was indicated that the following men would start for Maryland:

Virginia Eleven Primed For Fray With Maryland

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 30.—Virginia's game with Maryland on Lambeth Field at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon will be the first appearance of the Old Liners here since 1927.

Virginia upset the dope to win that last game by three touchdowns, 21 to 0, over a Maryland team that seemed headed for victory. The contests in 1928 and 1929 were played in College Park. Maryland had revenge in an 18-to-2 conquest in the first of these. The second was a 13-to-13 tie.

Saturday's scramble for the silver football given each year by Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland, is likely to be a battle of the backs. Both elevens appear to be stronger on offense than on defense and considerable scoring seems in prospect.

Gus Tebell, who is assisting Head Coach Earl Abell by directing the Cavalier back field, is grooming the ball carriers in the plays they are to pull against the Terrapins. Old plays are being polished and a few new ones are being added.

Rain has interfered somewhat with the preparations, but drill has gone ahead in spite of the unaccustomed but welcome showers. The rain has softened the playing surface enough to give the players a better footing and it is so well drained that one dry day will make it very fast.

Neither Coach Abell nor Coach Tebell are giving out any advance information as to who will be in the back field against the Old Liners. Bill Thomas and Frank Sippley are assured of places, provided their old injuries aren't hurt again, but others are uncertain.

Herbert Bryant may be in the back field and he may be in the line. Jim Beury and Ward Brewer may be called on to start, and then it may be Henry Sackett and Doug Myers. All the backs are being groomed with care.

Virginia's first-year football team has its first game away from home tomorrow with the Washington and Lee freshmen in Lexington. The young Cavaliers have played two games. They have defeated V. M. I. and lost to Maryland.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 29.—Athletic Director Maurice Given, of the Alexandria High School, today announced he had scheduled fifteen basket ball games for the "Twins" this court season. Given is also planning a three-day southern Virginia invasion. He plans to meet Roanoke, Salem and Vinton High School fives.

The season will officially open on December 18, when the Alexandrians trek to Washington for a battle with Western High School. Last year the Alexandrians were runner-up in the State class "B" championship series, played in Williamsburg.

Hugh Travers, Routzhan, Hudson, Jennier, and several others who played with the "Twins" last year will form the nucleus for the team. The schedule follows:

December 18, Western, away; 20, Central, here.
January 8, Eastern, away; 14, Central, away; 17, St. John's (pending), away; 20, Warrenton, away; 23, Fredericksburg, away; 24, Eastern, here; 30, W. and L. H. S., away.
February 4, Culpeper, away; 7, Devitt, here; 11, Business, away; 13, Fredericksburg, here; 20, W. and L. H. S., here; 27, Western, here.

Several open dates in February will be filled within the next two weeks, it was stated by Coach Given.

The St. Mary's Celtic Baseball Team was tendered a banquet last night at the residence of Mrs. Ruth Kidwell, 1424 Duke street.

The Pirate A. C. will meet the Lyon Park gridders Sunday in a game on Guckert's Field at 3 o'clock.

Alexandria High School gridders meet Washington and Lee High football team tomorrow in the fall classic game in scholastic circles of Northern Virginia at Ballston, Va., at 3:15 o'clock.

It is expected that 5,000 followers of the grid game will be present for the festivities. The two teams are traditional rivals. In 1928 Alexandria won the State title, while last year the Generals copped the honors. Friday's game will have a direct bearing on the title in the Third district.

Officials selected for the contest are "Hobey" O'Meara, referee, and Jack Tulloch, umpire. A headlinesman will be named today.

The Alexandria Fire Department No. 5 football team will probably travel to Baltimore Sunday for a game with the Ramsey A. C. Manager Cleveland Shaw hopes to complete terms by Saturday.

The Ladies Team of the Belle Haven Country Club defeated the Army, Navy and Marine Country Club Ladies Team, 12-9, yesterday over the Belle Haven links.

This was the third consecutive victory for the Belle Haveners, previously they having defeated Winchester Ladies Team twice. The Belle Haven Team was composed of Miss Elizabeth Boothe, captain; Mrs. G. L. Boothe 2d, Mrs. J. W. Howard, Mrs. Lewis Scott, Mrs. F. M. Dilliard, Mrs. Robert Dawes Miss Rosita Dawes and Mrs. Robert Wheat.

Frankie Manan, Washington fight promoter, who manages Billy Schwartz, light-heavyweight of Alexandria, today announced his protege would appear in the semiwindup bout in Philadelphia within the next three weeks.

G. U. PREP JUNIORS WIN.

Georgetown Prep's junior football team defeated the Friends School gridders yesterday, 7 to 0, on the losers' field. The lone and winning tally of the day came in the first period when Benny Williams, the Garrett Parkers' right end, blocked and recovered a punt on Friends' 25-yard line.

George M. Cohan, jr., carried the ball across after Campbell and Pangborn had advanced the oval to the 1-yard line.

V. P. I. PLAYS W. AND L. IN 28TH GAME

Clash to Have Bearing on Championship of State.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 30.—Washington and Lee and V. P. I., traditional Old Dominion rivals, meet on Wilson field here Saturday afternoon in the twenty-eighth contest of their rivalry extending since 1895.

The game Saturday will have, in addition to the glamour attendant upon the long meeting between the two institutions, an added impetus coming from the homecoming day festivities planned for returning Washington and Lee alumni. Besides, from the viewpoint of gridiron fans, the game will have a direct bearing on the State championship.

V. P. I. Has Edge In Series.

In the 27 games already played, V. P. I. has the edge of fourteen wins to the Generals' ten, while three games have ended in deadlocks.

The last Washington and Lee victory came in 1926, when the Gobblers were blanked, 13-0. With Frank Peake and his Pony Express leading the assault, the Gobblers won victories in 1927 and 1928, and last year at Lynchburg the Generals were snowed under, 36-6.

The resume of the football record of the game follows:

1898—V. P. I., 30; W. & L. 0.
1899—V. P. I., 35; W. & L. 0.
1901—V. P. I., 11; W. & L. 0.

Morgan, Sophomore Back, Groomed to Play for V.P.I.

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 30.—Another sophomore gridman at V. P. I. took his place this week with the young men who will join in the assault against the Generals of Washington and Lee at Lexington.

Orville Neal trotted out his first and second teams against Coach Henry Redd's untamed freshmen, and it was Charlie Morgan, diminutive half back, who tore the Cub defenses fore and aft. Morgan raced around the flanks and sliced off tackle for consistent yardage and then topped off a great afternoon by crossing up the yearlings with well-aimed passes. A muddy field and a steady drizzle apparently made little difference to this lad, one of the leading lights of the freshmen last fall.

Morgan played part of the Vanderbilt game and has been on the upgrade for several weeks. He will not start the Washington and Lee game but it is hard to see how he can well be kept on the bench very long after the first kick-off.

Morgan's antics were part of the best scrimmage session seen at V. P. I in weeks. The freshman eleven, which has done quite a bit of scoring of its own this fall, was helpless against the vicious charges of Coach Orville Neal's new Gobbler linemen. Four sophomores helped to turn the yearlings back. These were Gene Hite, at left guard, Bill Grinus at right tackle, and the two sophomore wingmen, Al Seamon and Johnny McIntire in right guard. This is the new combination for the first big State game.

MICH. STATE CHOIVEOVER G. U. TEAM

Hilltop Eleven Faces Hardest Test in Night Game.

ures. Emile Bozek, who was fast rounding into a star at right half back, will be missing from the Hilltop starting array, but his injured shoulder is not so bad that he can not take part as a reserve. Phil Mooney, brother of Jim, 1929 captain, will take Bozek's position at the opening whistle. Phil, the lad who scored Georgetown's only touchdown against West Virginia last Friday, is expected to prove valuable again. He has much potential ability.

It is probable that Georgetown tonight will flash some offensive plays that it has been holding under cover. There is no doubt that Georgetown wants to win this contest more than any one it has played to date. Victory will brighten the Blue and Gray record considerably; defeat will not correspondingly stain it.

Georgetown Likely to Show New Plays.

Just what Georgetown intends to uncork in the way of surprises is a mystery to all but those connected with the team. At least, no Michigan State scout has been able to learn about it from what he saw in previous Georgetown appearances.

It would seem most logical to expect that whatever surprise the Hilltoppers attempt will be in the form of an aerial attack, for the fact that Michigan State is unusually strong on defense against running plays is well known. In a recent practice scrimmage, the Spartans held their freshmen cohorts to no gain in 45 minutes. Further evidence was shown when the Lansing outfit held Michigan University scoreless and yielded only one touchdown to Colgate, conceded to be one of the most powerful offensive teams in the country.

If the game is fought along the overhead route, Michigan State will not be found wanting. Any of Coach Crowley's backs can hurl the oval with speed and precision. Grove, quarter back and a triple-threater, is the main passing reliance, however.

Georgetown's none too capable line will receive its hardest test of the season. It will be up against big, fast and experienced foes and will meet superiority without doubt in the end and tackle positions. The Spartan ends, Fogg and Vandermeer, have played conspicuous roles in the successful early campaign of the visitors.

Michigan State Squad To Visit at White House

President Hoover will receive the Michigan State football players, coaches and band today at the White House at 12:30 p. m. Prior to visiting the Chief Executive the Spartans will place a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington. During their stay here they are making their headquarters at the Roosevelt Hotel.

The band of 100 entertained for residents of the hotel yesterday afternoon on the sidewalk in front of the building. Last night the football team held a secret practice in Griffith Stadium.

Crippled American U. Team Visions Annapolis Victory

Eagles Face St. John's Tomorrow Minus Service of Borsari, Olsen and Folston; Diehl Starts at Quarter Back.

THOUGH they face the strongest team on their schedule, the American University Eagles are going to Annapolis tomorrow morning with thoughts only of winning from St. John's, which last week added to its imposing 1930 record by upsetting Washington and Lee.

In the hope of being able to muster his best array for this game, Coach Walter Young has carried his players along easily in practice this week. Those who were injured in the Atlantic U. game last Saturday have been allowed to rest and for the others only one scrimmage has been the order.

Despite his carefulness, Young will not have the services of George Borsari, scrappy little quarter back, whose angle is not fully recovered from a sprain. George Olsen, half back, and Milton Fulston, 275-pound guard, also will not be available.

"Frosty" Diehl, full back and chief ground gaining threat of the Eagles, has laid off practice all week because of stomach trouble, but he is expected to resume action tomorrow. With Borsari out of the line-up and Will Clark, who lacks experience, filling in at the quarter back post, Diehl will take over the signal-calling duties in addition to handling his own.

The remainder of the starting line-up for A. U. will be Chates and Larson, ends; Lambert and Levin, tackles; Hoover and Denit, guards; Lytle, center, and Fuchsle and Perke, half backs. Fuchsle has been playing almost since the start of the season with a broken nose.

While it has lost three games, St. John's has earned plenty of credit this season. Its losses were inflicted by strong teams. The Johnnies have defeated Franklin and Marshall, a team that handily defeated Catholic U., and Washington and Lee. They have fallen before V. M. I., Western Maryland and Maryland.

Vaccinations Force Shepherd to Cancel

Special to The Washington Post.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Shepherd College here today announced cancellation of its scheduled game for November 1 against Shippensburg (Pa.) State Normal School at Shippensburg, because of the poor physical condition of the Shepherd players resulting, it was declared, from recent inoculation against smallpox here. The players took the inoculation during a general use of the serum when several cases of smallpox were discovered here two weeks ago. Shepherd lost by a one-sided score to Potomac State at Keyser, W. Va., last Saturday, and observers believed the poor showing there was due in part to the physical condition of the men. No practice was held here Monday, and only four regulars were able to report Wednesday because of sickness. The only other game on the Shepherd schedule is that against Gallaudet, in Washington, November 8. That engagement will be kept.

Wilson Celebration Delayed at Martinsburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 30.—This city, the home of Hack Wilson, the most valuable player in the National League, today was forced to postpone indefinitely a celebration it had planned at the end of the baseball season in honor of the Chicago star.

Mrs. Wilson, with Hack, jr., and Mrs. John Quinn, of Chicago, arrived here today as per schedule and the home town folk had expected the 1930 home run king along with them. Preparations had been completed for the ceremonies, which included a parade and the presentation of a handsome loving cup by the mayor of Martinsburg, Chris H. Dailey. Mrs. Wilson, however, informed the committee on arrangements that her husband would not arrive home for several weeks, possibly not before the first of the year.

Wilson, with Kiki Cuyler, Cliff Heathcote and Gabby Hartnett, has been in vaudeville since the close of the Chicago city series.

Campbell in Line-Up As Navy Routs "Bees"

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Campbell was in place of the flashy Kirn in the Navy first team backfield today as it scored six times on the "B" squad in a stiff scrimmage session. Coach Bill Ingram is resting Kirn for the comparatively easy West Virginia Wesleyan game Saturday and Ohio State the following week-end.

DIXIE'S STAR BACKS PLAY TOMORROW

Kelly, Kentucky, and Suther, Alabama, to Oppose.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Two of Dixie's best backs—Kelly of Kentucky and Suther of Alabama—offer a spectacular scoring duel as one of the attractions of the game between these teams in Lexington, Ky., Saturday.

Both have scored against all opposition they faced this year and each has been the spark in his team's offensive. Kelly has thrilled thousands with his long, broken-field touchdown runs, while Suther has gained 365 yards in four games, including 100 yards against Tennessee in five tries.

In addition to this half back rivalry the charge of two of the strongest forward walls in the Conference provides another feature. The Crimson line men have pounded through all opposition this season, while the Kentucky forwards have yet to face a real test, although they appeared strong against secondary teams.

Alabama May Loosen Up Attack.

Wade's Alabama team has won its first five games through sheer power, but if Kentucky halts this running attack, Wade probably will loosen up with an aerial attack which he has been holding in reserve for such a circumstance.

Unless cripples are turned into sound men before Saturday, Kentucky will face the tide minus four regulars. Williams, center; Johnson, quarter back, and Tom and Jack Phipps, full backs, are injured. With the exception of Capt. Clements, tackle, who has an injured foot, the Alabama team was in good condition as it entrained tonight for Lexington.

Both Florida and Georgia finished their drills today and left for Savannah where they stake their championship hopes Saturday. Georgia freshmen, using Florida formations, had little success against the varsity in a late scrimmage today.

Several Florida players nursed injuries, but it was believed all could be used Saturday.

If injuries continue to visit the Tennessee camp, Coach Bob Neyland will have to use a second string team against Clemson Saturday at Knoxville. Quin Decker, full back, is the latest member to join the hospital roll, which already included Faust and Heydrick, half backs; Hug and Brandt, ends, and Mayer, center.

Carroll Wright, Mississippi A. and M. center, suffered a broken leg in scrimmage and Coach Chris Cagle spent much time in the Aggies final workout finding a pivot man to face Tulane at New Orleans. The Green Wave was in good shape, although Elmer Massey, half back, will be lost to the team because of a fractured ankle.

STOCK PRICES HOLD WEAKENED COURSE

Losses in Few Issues Reach 11 Points; Speculative Commodities Sink.

BROKERS' LOANS DECLINE

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The stock market dragged through a slow and orderly decline today and was joined by the speculative commodities, wheat, corn and cotton. Bonds, especially rails and United States Governments, responded to the unusual abundance of money by making another advance.

To account for the heaviness in stocks, the old story of tax selling to establish income tax losses was dusted off, but it failed to find as wide acceptance as did the short selling explanation. Bears have had a goodly share of the news on their side and have again become moderately active, although cautiously so because of warnings administered privately now and then by the exchange officials who are seeking to prevent unfair tactics.

The market contained numerous weak spots in the specialties which meant that the net declines ranged as high as 11 points. Active utilities, industrials and rails held their losses for the most part within a one to three limit. Turnover, although larger than yesterday's, failed to reach 2,000,000 shares. The total was 1,913,731.

Bethlehem's President's View.

Bethlehem Steel's unfavorable earnings statement, showing 63 cents on the common against dividend requirements of $1.50, was about as expected. The report, appearing after the close, was accompanied by an informal statement by President Grace, who said business was "not picking up a bit" and that nothing now in sight suggested improvement during the next month of this period of liquidation. He added, however, that things would be getting better next year and that the industry was in an excellent position to meet demand when it came.

For the fifth consecutive week Federal Reserve brokers' loans took a sizable drop. This time the decline totaled $101,000,000, bringing the deflation since the week ended October 2 to $710,000,000 and pulling the aggregate to within about $100,000,000 of the record low of $2,409,000,000 set on May 19, 1926. The largest decrease in the current report was for New York City member banks' own account.

These loans figures now receive much less attention than was accorded them a year ago. Since the stock market averages rose during the week covered by the current statement, however, it became more obvious that the buying had been of the sort that requires no borrowing from brokers.

Copper Shares Off Slightly.

Copper shares reacted slightly, but retained their firmer undertone. Buying of the red metal is proceeding actively, and consumers are said to be eager to purchase at present prices, especially in view of the movement toward curtailment of production.

Stocks were mostly soft throughout the trading day. For a time in the afternoon it appeared as though the market would rally, for American Can, General Electric and Westinghouse regained their small losses and showed fractional net advances. Pressure was again applied in the late trading, however, and final prices were around the lowest. American Telephone and Consolidated Gas were particularly heavy at the close, losing 2⅞ and 2¼, respectively.

U. S. Steel recovered a point of its maximum loss of 2⅝, which had carried it to 145⅝ against the year's low of 143¼. General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, Woolworth, Gillette, Du Pont, National Biscuit, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, American & Foreign Power, Public Service of New Jersey and Missouri Kansas Texas sagged 1 to 2. American Can, Westinghouse and General Electric lost fractionally on the day.

Coca Cola Loses 11¼ Points.

Coca Cola was the outstanding weak spot, dropping 13 points. This was apparently another case of selling in a stock which has been quoted at high ratio to earnings. It closed with a net loss of 11½. Eastman Kodak extended its decline by another 6 points, but was off only 2½ at the close. Allied Chemical & Air Reduction yielded about 4. The steel group was heavy.

Wheat shaded off in minor fractions of a cent, but corn ranged from 1 to 1⅜ lower on favorable crop reports from Nebraska and Illinois. Cotton closed easy with net declines of 55 to 90 cents a bale.

The irregular foreign exchange market saw another rise in the Spanish peseta. Other continental rates were mixed.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Early declines in cotton were followed by recoveries on a renewal of trade buying and covering today, but prices eased off again in the later trading under further Southern selling combined with liquidation and probably some selling by local reactionists. March contracts after easing off to 11.60 early advanced to 11.77, but later broke to 11.58 and closed at that figure. The general market closed easy at net declines of 11 to 18 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 8 to 12 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. A little more Southern selling and further selling in realizing or liquidation of long accounts after showing net losses of about 13 to 15 points at the outset stiffened up on trade buying and covering. Offerings seemed to taper off as soon as the initial selling had run its course, and there may have been some buying by interests who had been impressed by earlier weak advances and who had been waiting for a setback on which to enter the market. The buying was also encouraged by reports that banking interests in the South were discussing plans to secure a reduction in cotton acreage next spring and for a time the market showed considerable firmness.

December sold up from the early low point of 11.24 to 11.40 while May advanced from 11.82 to 12.03 with active months generally showing net gains of about 2 to 7 points, but this bulge seemed to meet a little more cotton and Southern offerings increased in the late trading. December closed at 11.25 and May at 11.81 or about the lowest prices of the day.

Private advices reaching the trade here from Japan said that owing to poor trade in both yarn and piece goods mills were reluctant in following advances and that the recent advance had tended to widen the difference between American and Indian cotton. This was not generally discussed as a factor in the day's market, but may have had a contributing influence on the decline.

Liverpool cables said that hedging and foreign selling had been absorbed by calling in that market and reported a moderate demand for cotton cloth from China, but a poor business with India. Exports today, 34,045, making 2,138,989 so far this season. Port receipts, 72,905. United States port stocks, 3,644,744.

RISE IN GERMAN LIST MARKS BOND SALES

Continued Improvement of U. S. Governments Is Also Feature.

SOUTH AMERICANS GAIN

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Strength of German municipal and industrial obligations, together with the continued improvement in the price of United States Governments marked trading in the bond market today. Increased activity developed in legal railroad issues and a few others of high rating, but those of lesser rank were narrowly irregular.

The sharp gains by a wide list of German obligations was the best in weeks and was influenced partly by advices from Berlin that Chancellor Bruening had forestalled any move for a moratorium in reparations.

While German 5½s advanced ⅝ and the government 7s held steady, German Central Agricultural Bank issues were heavily traded. The 6s of October, 1960, rose 2¾ points and the 6s of July, 1960, gained 4 points. Berlin City 6s, Berlin Electric Elevator 6½s of 1956, Rhine Ruhr 6s and several municipal issues shared in the improvement, which in most instances was registered in points.

A broadened demand developed for Brazilian bonds and some other Latin American loans. On a large turnover Brazil 6½s of '27-'57 rallied 2½ points. Columbia Mortgage Bank 6½s advanced 6 points, Cordoba Province 7s, Montevideo City 7s, Porto Alegre 8s, and Rio Grande do Sul 8s of 1957, 2 points each.

While the turnover in United States Governments was moderate, Liberty 4th 4¼s closed at the year's high price, and Liberty 3½s surpassed its former 1930 maximum on the day's movement. Treasury issues were very firm.

The price movement and activity in the domestic section again demonstrated that there is little interest being shown by buyers in any but the gilt edge issues. Demand for railroad bonds of the legal class broadened and prices were slightly higher. Reports that the Van Sweringen interests would acquire control of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad influenced a 4-point rally in the 5 per cent bonds. Utility issues were steady.

POLE TO APPROVE MERGER OF BANKS

U. S. Comptroller to Agree on Federal-American, Merchants Move.

ALL OFFICERS RETAINED

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Officials of the Federal-American National Bank were advised yesterday by the office of Comptroller of the Currency Pole that it is his present intention to approve consolidation of this institution with the Merchants Bank & Trust Co. as of close of business today, date desired by the banks in interest.

Official arrangement of the merged institution, to be known as the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., was announced at the Federal-American Bank yesterday and shows few changes. The Federal-American Bank Building at Fourteenth and G streets is termed the main office of the new bank with two departments, banking and trust. All present Federal-American officers retain their titles and William C. Johnson, assistant to President John Poole, becomes an additional vice president the fourth.

The Merchants Bank & Trust Co. in the Southern Building will be known as the Fifteenth and H streets branch of the new bank. Here Rolfe E. Bolling, president of the Merchants bank, will serve as an additional vice president with its present vice presidents, two in number.

To Retain Merchant's Branches.

The Pennsylvania avenue and Twentieth street, Dupont Circle and Brookland branches of the Merchants bank will retain these designations and the vice presidents in charge of them are the same. Officers serving as treasurer and assistant treasurers of the Merchants bank, however, will become assiastant cashiers in the new bank.

The directorate of the consolidated institution is the same with the exception that Merchants Bank officers are excluded. The latter will have to be elected by the new directorate when the merger is effective. This may be done at r meeting after close of business today.

Frank L. Polk, former Acting Secretary of State and commissioner plenipotentiary and head of the American delegation to the Paris peace conference, has been elected to the board of trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York. He is now a member of the New York law firm of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed.

North American Co. Report.

The consolidated income statement of the North American Co., holding company for Washington Railway & Electric and Potomac Electric Power Cos., shows that for the 12 months ended September 30, there was $27,965,310.53 for common stock after all operating expenses, interest charges, depreciation and all other reserves and preferred dividends.

These earnings represent an increase of $1,013,298.46, or 3.76 per cent over the earnings for the 12 months ended September 30, 1929, and an increase of $7,296,560.30, or 35.30 per cent over those for the 12 months ended September 30, 1928.

Acquisition of a new Main street site for the Morris Plan Co., of Virginia, at Richmond, was announced yesterday coincident with plans to start construction of an imposing new building early in the spring at a cost of $500,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Bigger receipts of corn in Chicago led to a lower finish for prices of all cereals today, especially of corn itself. Coincident with the downward trend of corn values was word that the Federal Farm Board coarse grain advisory committee has been called to meet on November 17 to consider reports of importations of foreign corn and barley into the United States. There was also a late announcement that 240,000 bushels of rye was being brought back from a Canadian port to Chicago.

Closing quotations on corn were heavy at the day's bottom level, ⅞-1⅛ cents a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Wheat closed unchanged to ½c down, oats ⅛-⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10 cents.

Right from the outset corn prices were headed downward. The arrivals of corn in Chicago showed a decided increase, totaling 209 cars, against 131 cars a week ago and 105 cars at this time last year. Furthermore, advices were at hand that there would be plenty of corn from Nebraska, and that the Western part of the State had more corn than for five years. Meanwhile, too, some Illinois points reported that corn was coming in more freely from farms now, and that the old rule of poor yield poor quality was not in operation at present.

Seasonable weather for corn husking was generally prevalent, and this circumstance tended further to give an advantage to the bear side of the corn market, despite evidence of a brisk shipping demand here and of good-sized purchasing for industries. Primary arrivals of corn today amounted to 492,000 bushels compared with 343,000 bushels a year ago. On the other hand, country offerings of corn were reported as rather small, and in various places feeders were said to be paying enough premium either to get corn from dealers or haul it back from elevators to feed lots.

In the face of corn market depression, the wheat market not only failed to hold rallies but suffered from stop-loss selling as the day drew to an end. Earlier wheat had averaged higher owing largely to advices indicating possible shrinkage of the Argentine wheat crop because of rust and also on account of frost danger. A decided falling off in the volume of wheat shipments from Russia was noticed, the total for last week being hardly more than half as much as the week previous. Oats sympathized with corn price declines.

Provisions went lower, responsive to downturns both of hog values and of grain.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

Waldorf System.

F. P.—Kindly advise as to your opinion of Waldorf System stock as a speculative investment.

Answer—Net of company in each 1930 quarter has been higher than in the similar periods of last year and income for first nine months was $856,251, or $1.78 per common share. This compares with $811,529, equal to $1.66 a share, in the nine months ended September 30, 1929. Dividends on common are at the annual rate of $1.50 a share.

It will be observed, therefore, that in the nine months period the dividend for the entire year was more than earned. Considering this, and the further fact that at $25, the price now current, the yield is 6 per cent, purchases or retention of the shares would appear to be thoroughly justified.

Briggs Manufacturing.

S. N.—Can you explain why, in the face of generally unsettled market, the stock of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. has lately been in good demand and has displayed an upward trend?

Answer—Explanation is found in the fact that company has been able to improve on last year's earnings, an unusual situation in the auto accessory industry. After a poor start in the first quarter, both the June and September quarters were productive of better profits than in the corresponding periods of 1929, while for the first nine months, $2.26 a share is reported on the 2,003,225 shares outstanding. However, no dividends are being paid, even though 1930 promises to be best year company has enjoyed since 1926.

Phillips Petroleum.

D. J. W.—As an interested reader of your column, and a holder of a substantial block of Phillips Petroleum, would ask your opinion concerning its dividend outlook.

Answer—Earnings for the full year 1930 promise to exceed $2.50 a share. Net income for the third quarter equaled 90 cents a share, as against the 50 cent dividend requirement for the period. The showing was more favorable than realized by the industry in general and suggests a strong position for this company. There appears no reason to doubt the payment of the regular quarterly dividend in November; in fact, there have been official intimations that this disbursement will be made. Phillips is one of the moderately priced oils which is regarded as providing attractive possibilities for the patient holder.

Davison Chemical.

D. T. E.—I have been informed that the Davison Chemical Co. is now in a position to resume dividend payments. Can you inform me as to whether or not this is true?

Answer—Earnings of the company for year ended June 30, last, would indicate that this is true, as net income of $2,036,486, was equal to $4.04 a capital share, an increase of approximately 24 per cent over net before Federal taxes of $1,643,434, or $3.34 a share, for previous fiscal year.

Sales of $27,409,382 were about 20 per cent over sales of $22,734,774 reported for year ended June 30, 1929. No dividends have been paid since 1920, when $2 a share was disbursed, but the outlook for a resumption of profit distributions now seems at least measurably bright.

Continental Motors.

C. E. L.—What are the possibilities of Continental Motors common? Is it paying dividends, and at what rate? At the low price quoted, around $3, is it considered a good long holding investment in a speculative stock?

Answer—Dividend on common passed January 20, 1930, and not since resumed. Stock therefore eliminated from investment class. It is purely speculative, and not at all attractive at present, even from that angle. For six months ended April 30, last, company reported a deficit of $884,288, or a loss of 42 cents a common share, compared with net income of $582,418, or 28 cents a share, for corresponding 1929 period. Deemed advisable that stock be avoided.

Texas Gulf Sulphur and Others.

H. P. H.—Will you kindly give such information as is available on the following stocks, especially as to future prospects and as permanent investments: Texas Gulf Sulphur, International Salt, General Gas & Electric, Electric Power & Light, Safeway Stores?

Answer—On the basis of present dividends, estimated earnings for the year 1930 and current income yield, Texas Gulf Sulphur, International Salt and Safeway Stores appear at least fairly attractive, as common stocks go under existing business and market conditions, especially when considered from a long-term viewpoint. Electric Power & Light, however, does not possess such a measure of investment appeal, as the present yield is only a little in excess of 1¾ per cent. General Gas & Electric "A," on which the quarterly dividend is now 7½ cents a share, compared with 37½ cents paid prior to the five-for-one split-up last January, is looked upon as almost wholly speculative.

International T. & T. and Others.

J. V. G.—I would appreciate having your opinion as to investing in International Telegraph & Telephone, Texas Gulf Sulphur and Freeport Texas.

Answer — International Telegraph & Telephone, though not considered a sound investment, is, nevertheless, looked upon with some degree of favor for long term holding. Texas Gulf Sulphur, on which the present income yield is substantially better than 6 per cent, and Freeport Texas, which gives a return of something like 9 per cent, are likewise fairly well regarded from a speculative-investment viewpoint.

However, it is to be remembered that all these are common issues, earnings and dividends on which are liable to fluctuate, particularly in the present rather unsettled condition of the market and business.

American Woolen Co.

M. E.—Can you advise me as to the present standing and future prospects of the American Woolen Co.?

Answer—Now evident that nothing will be available for either preferred or common stock in 1930. Inventory losses have been heavy. A manufacturing profit is being shown, but is more than offset by shrinkage in inventories. Company now owns only about 50 plants, as against 70 formerly operated. Operations are only about 50 per cent of capacity, with some plants shut down and others operating. Stocks very unattractive.

Curb Review

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The curb market continued downgrade today, although the volume of trading again dwindled, total transfers aggregating 355,300 shares.

The bulk of trading remained in the utility group, where drops of a point of two were numerous. Electric Bond & Share lost more than a point, getting within 2 of its low. American Gas & Electric dropped to 90¼, but rallied to close at 93, off 2. American & Foreign Power warrants, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Electric Power & Light warrants, and Insull Utility Investment also lost about 2. Middle West and St. Regis sagged 1.

Considerable selling occurred in miscellaneous industrial specialties. A notable transaction was a sale of 2,375 shares of J. B. Stetson, at 49, off 6 points. This stock is infrequently traded in this market, and is quoted chiefly over the counter. Marconi International, lightly traded normally, sold down 1 3-8 to a new low at 7. Johnson Motor dropped 2 to a new low at 10 in a few sales, and Glen Alden declined 4 to a new minimum at 65. Dresser B sagged 1½ to a new low at 26½, and closed at 27. Syracuse Washing Machine B lost most of yesterday's 3-point gain. Ford, Ltd., eased fractionally. Anglo Chilean was a firm feature, gaining 2.

Oil eased again, although Indiana held steady, closing up 1-8. Cities Service, an active feature, slipped off a fraction. Gulf and Standard of Ohio declined 2. In the natural gas group, Lone Star lost 1. Investment trusts were inclined to ease, with losses fractional.

Bethlehem Steel Reports Earnings

Share Profits Are 63 Cents in Fall Quarter; Were $4 in 1929 Period.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The Bethlehem Steel Corporation today reported net income for the September quarter of $3,783,245, equal to 63 cents a share of common, against $7,691,495, or $1.86 a share, in the previous three months period on 3,200,000 shares. This compared with $4.01 a share on 2,400,000 shares in the September, 1929, quarter, when net income totaled $11,384,720. Although earnings were less than dividend requirements, directors ordered the usual quarterly payments of $1.50 on each share of common and $1.75 on the preferred.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the corporation, in an informal discussion, said he saw no prospects of an upturn in the steel industry before the turn of a new year, but expressed his belief that gradual improvement would be registered after January 1.

The dividend on the preferred stock is payable January 2, 1931, to stockholders of record on December 5, 1930. The common stock dividend is payable February 16, 1931, to stockholders of record on January 19, 1931.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

SCHOOLS IN FAIRFAX PLAN PARTIES TODAY

Various Other Groups Will Celebrate Halloween at Gatherings.

POLICE TO BE WATCHFUL

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Ghosts, goblins witches, black cats and what-not will roam at large this evening, when Halloween will be celebrated with elaborate festivities in a number of the schools and by different organizations in the various communities of Fairfax County. The Fairfax School will give a party tonight. The entertainment will be furnished by the pupils of the fifth and sixth grades, under the direction of Miss Ethel Jeffries and Miss Alga Jensen. Refreshments will be sold and the profits will be used to help pay for a set of maps and reference books that were recently purchased.

The Sharon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at McLean, will give a masquerade party tonight in the Masonic Hall, under the direction of Mrs. Geneva Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Guilford, Mrs. Carl C. Grimes and Marvin Kirby. Prizes will be given for the best costume, the most original costume, and for the best appearing couple.

The Colvin Run Community League will celebrate with a party in the auditorium of the old Colvin Run School. The committee in charge of arrangements are William Cockerill, Mrs. G. Ashley Money and Miss Marie Keane. Six prizes will be given, three to children and three to adults, for the most original most comical and prettiest costumes. The refreshment committee, composed of Mrs. John Oliver, Mrs. Bernard Roberts, Mrs. Howard Cunningham, Mrs. Jessie Coulter and Mrs J. A. Wheeler, will serve cider, ginger bread and cookies to the merrymakers. The music for square dancing will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

The Halloween celebration of the young people of the St. James Catholic Church, at West Falls Church, will be held in St. James' parish hall tomorrow night. There will be moving pictures, a big bonfire and refreshments, and a masquerade dance.

Miss Jennie Tomko is the chairman of the Franklin Sherman School's annual Halloween party to be given tomorrow night at McLean. She has arranged a program of stunts to be given from 8 to 9 o'clock, while the costumes are being judged. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock. The decorations are being arranged by Gordon E. Smith and G. C. Cox; stunts and fortune telling, by Miss Eolene Follin and Miss Adele Pfalzgraf; prizes, by Miss Helen Yeratt; refreshments, by Miss Ruby Dunkham, Miss Margaret Wingo, Miss Louise Millard and Miss Mary Leigh.

While hoping that the celebrants enjoy themselves and make merry and expecting the usual Halloween pranks, the Fairfax County and town authorities have issued warning that they will not tolerate pranks which destroy property or endanger human life. Special police have been appointed by the mayors of the towns to see that these orders are fulfilled.

Edmund H. Allen, chairman of the Fairfax County drought committee, has issued the following appeal to the residents of Fairfax County in connection with the annual Red Cross roll call:

"As chairman of the local drought relief committee appointed by former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, who is chairman of the State committee, I beg to call your attention to the effort now being made to secure a large Red Cross membership in our county, and to ask you to give it your active and helpful support.

"The ability of the organization to meet its unusual needs, which will be most serious and urgent if suffering and need is to be avoided, will depend entirely upon the size of its membership, and it is certain in such a time as this that the help of every one is expected and we believe will be freely given.

"The goal set by the county Red Cross is 2,500 members and it is sincerely hoped that this number may be obtained and many more memberships secured. Fairfax County in this day of need will prove true to the traditions of the past and will liberally respond. Do your share. Give your name and membership fee to your local Red Cross worker and be a booster for this work for humanity. The dues are as follows: Annual membership, $1; contributing, $5; sustaining, $10; supporting, $25. In each membership the entire amount with the exception of 50 cents, which goes to the national organization, goes to the support of the sick and needy here in your county. Let us provide for the need before it comes and may the blessing of God be with us in this work for our fellow man."

At the last meeting of the Drought Relief Committee it was estimated that $2,500 would be needed this winter to take care of the families in Fairfax County who would suffer as the result of drought and the general unemployment situation, and most of the work of caring for these unfortunate people will be looked after by the local Red Cross Chapter.

County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr has issued a warning to farmers of Fairfax County. He states that "one of our farmers received some very flattering grain prices from a Western grain company. The price he was finally compelled to pay was 11 cents more per bushel than the price quoted him by the company, which he accepted by telegram. Farmers, you had better buy from your home dealers and let them worry over the advancing grain prices."

The honor roll for the Fairfax school, which includes those pupils making an average above 90 per cent in their studies for the past month has been announced as follows: First and second grades, Cristine Baughman, Mary Tucker, Gordon Kincheloe, Ann Farr, Mary Sisson, Dorothy Tavener, Gertrude Thompson, Alta May Bonner, Selma Ankers, Kenneth Sheets and Doris Hollis. Fourth grade, Alice Watkins and Frank B. Swart. Fifth grade, Ann Hoge Rust, Mary Donohoe, Melvin Birch and Berkely Gillespie, and seventh grade, Shield McCandlish, jr.

The hunting season for ducks in Northern Virginia will open tomorrow and according to reports, an excellent season for water fowl is looked for, as the birds appear to be plentiful along the Potomac river and the marshes in Fairfax County. Hunters are limited to a bag of 15 ducks a day this year instead of the usual 25. The hunting season for other game will open on November 15. The State Game and Inland Fisheries Commission has ordered a closed season on turkeys and pheasants in Fairfax County.

With appeals being sent out daily by Government officials and special agencies urging that work be given to the army of unemployed throughout the country, comes the announcement that nearly a score of men employed at Fort Humphreys will be laid off today. It is stated at the Army post that the cutting down of civilian forces was made necessary by orders from the War Department, and is due to the lack of sufficient funds to pay the usual force of men needed at the post. Practically all of those who will loss their jobs are residents of Fairfax County, most of them having worked on the military reservation for the past ten or twelve years.

Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the county drought relief committee, has taken the matter up with Representative R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax, in an effort to find some way to keep these men at work. It has been reported that in addition to the number of men who have already received notice that their services would not be needed after today, more will probably be laid off in the near future, unless some other arrangements can be made. It is understood that Representative Moore has taken the matter up with the proper government authorities in an effort to have these men retained.

Evangelistic services will begin with the Dunkard Brethren in Vienna tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock. Elder Ruben Shroyer, of Greentown, Ohio, will conduct the services.

Legion Announces New Virginia Posts

Organization Will Conduct Membership Drive in November.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—W. Glenn Elliott, Virginia department adjutant of the American Legion, announced tonight that new legion posts were organized today at Chilhowie and King George Court House. A third new post will be formed Saturday at Goochland Court House.

The organizaton of new posts in the State is a part of the annual membership drive to be conducted during November by the Virginia Legionnaires.

In this connection, Mr. Elliott says he expects practically every mayor in the State to proclaim the week beginning November 11, Armistice Day, as American Legion Week, during which the drive will be conducted.

Past Post Commanders G. M. Harrison and L. W. McWane, of Fredericksburg, assisted in the organization of the King George Post, and Past Post Commander P. A. L. Smith, of Richmond, was instrumental in the organizaton of the new post at Goochland.

Family in Cumberland Is Rescued by Firemen

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 30.—Members of the family of W. H. Valentine, High street, were carried from their blazing home early today by firemen down ladders from the second story. They had been trapped as the stairway was burned away and flames were bursting out above before they were aware of their predicament.

The house is a two-story frame structure and was badly damaged before the fire was gotten under control. All the contents were destroyed.

Cotton Groups Attack U. S. Cooperative Help

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Objection to Government aid to cooperative associations while the same help was denied to cotton merchants was expressed in resolutions adopted today by the Norfolk Cotton Exchange.

Such practice was termed as "against the free and unrestricted course of the Nation's commerce."

MILL CORPORATION JUDGED BANKRUPT

Trustee Will Be Appointed for Jones Interests, in Receivership.

CREDITOR FORCES ACTION

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 30.—A trustee in bankruptcy will be appointed for the Arthur G. Jones Woolen Mills Corporation as soon as a schedule of liabilities and assets is filed by Burr P. Harrison, of Winchester, and W. C. Armstrong, of Front Royal, the receivers, it was announced today following the order of Judge H. C. McDowell, in United States District Court, formally adjudicating the corporation bankrupt. The receivers interposed no objection. In fact, it was said, they made the suggestion.

Since the receivers were appointed last spring by Judge McDowell, on petition of the stockholders' protective committee, they have liquidated a large amount of frozen assets, effected many economies in operation and turned out and sold upwards of $400,000 worth of cloth, even at a time when the woolen industry the country over was regarded as sick.

The Chicago Wool Co., it was said, was the only creditor not willing to accept the recent proposal that all the creditors take about 45 cents on the dollar for their claims. The Chicago firm claims an indebtedness of about $90,000, whereas the receivers said it was excessive by at least $20,000.

The stockholders' protective committee said arrangements had been completed with financial interests to purchase the assets of the company, effect a reorganization, and resume operations in the hope of realizing the funds invested about five years ago when this property and the business of the Winchester Woolen Mills, Inc., were acquired by Arthur G. Jones and his associates.

Arlington Cited In Suit for Fees

Fairfax Attorney Alleges Sum Due for Work in Annexation Case.

The suit by John S. Barbour, Fairfax County attorney, against the Arlington County Board of Supervisors for fees he claims are due will be heard today in the Circuit Court at Leesburg, with Judge J. R. H. Alexander presiding.

The case involves fees which Barbour claims are still due him for services as chief of counsel in the annexation case which was brought more than a year ago by the City of Alexandria against Arlington County.

Attorney C. B. Garnett will appear as counsel for Barbour, while Capt. Crandal Mackey, former Commonwealth's attorney for the county, will appear for the supervisors.

DEMOCRATS CLAIM MARYLAND SWEEP

Predict Election of Ritchie and Entire Ticket by Large Majorities.

G. O. P. STILL CONFIDENT

Baltimore, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Confidence of the election by large majorities of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and the entire State ticket was expressed at Democratic headquarters here today with the announcement of a Democratic book majority in the State of 117,422.

Republican leaders pointed out that victories have been won in the past in the face of adverse registration figures, scouted the significance of the Democratic figures and said they were confident Mayor William F. Broening, the Republican nominee for governor, and his running mates would win November 4.

Totals Are Made Public.

The registration figures were made public by the Democratic campaign advisory committee. The Democratic book majority in the counties is given as 40,465 and that in Baltimore itself as 76,957. Seven of the 23 counties show Republican registration majorities.

Republican spokesmen pointed out that a Democratic book majority is shown in all but one of the nine Eastern Shore counties, while they said even most of the Democrats concede the loss of three counties in that section. They said, too, that Ritchie's vote in Baltimore would be very much smaller than the book majority.

The percentage of voters who declined to state their party affiliations was small this year.

Figures as Tabulated.

The registration figures by congressional districts and counties, as announced by the Democratic committee, were:

First Congressional District, Eastern Shore:

County.	Democrats.	Republicans.

Funerals Held for Two Who Killed Themselves

Special to The Washington Post.

Everett, Pa., Oct. 30.—Funeral services were held yesterday for Raymond Cornell, 25, Clearville, a few miles south of here, and William Morgart, of this place, both of whom, according to Coroner Robert Huff, died from self-inflicted bullet wounds in the head.

Cornell's body was found by his wife a short distance from his home. A .32-caliber rifle was lying by his side. He was not dead when found, but died while being taken to a hospital at Cumberland. The body of Morgart was found in a shanty near the Everett Manufacturing Co. A .38-caliber revolver was lying by his side. Morgart is survived by his wife and six children. No reason has been advanced for either suicide.

Alleged Fugitive, Girl Held in Pennsylvania

Meadville, Pa., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Harry Fisher, alias Joe Martin, 22, of Roanoke, Va., alleged fugitive, and Miss Nellie Blankenship, 18, said to have run away from her home, were arrested near here today in a tent, where they had been camping for several days.

Police said their information was that Fisher had escaped from jail after he had been sentenced for highway robbery. They were brought here and Roanoke and Federal authorities at Pittsburgh were notified.

BALL TO ADVOCATE COUNTY RULE SHIFT

State Senator Will Speak Over Radio to Voters of Arlington.

WATER QUESTION ACUTE

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The most recent addition to the ranks of those advocating the adoption of the county manager form of government for Arlington County is State Senator Frank L. Ball, who has agreed to deliver a radio address in favor of the plan.

The Reid County Government Act, under which the present election on the question of changing the form of government is being held, was piloted through the State Senate by Senator Ball. Both Ball and Reid are of the opinion that the present form of government is no longer adequate to meet the needs of Arlington County. Mr. Reid announced himself in favor of the county manager plan earlier in the week at a meeting held in Thrifton. Fletcher Kemp, County Superintendent of Schools, is also on the program for a radio address in favor of the plan.

The radio broadcast will be from Station WJSV, Mount Vernon Hills, Virginia, from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock tonight and from 8:30 to 9 o'clock Monday night. Senator Ball and Mr. Kemp will be on Monday night's program.

Wallace Lawrence, city manager of Alexandria, will be the featured speaker on tonight's program. He will tell of the actual workings of the city manager form of government in Alexandria and other places. Robert N. Anderson, chairman, and other members of the civic federation committee, sponsors of the plan, will speak briefly.

A musical program will be included. Harold M. Brown, of Cherrydale, will be the announcer.

Faced with a most serious condition, that of the continued demand for extensions to the county water mains, the county board of supervisors took no action on any applications for water at its meeting yesterday but announced that it would hold a special meeting Friday, November 7, for the purpose of considering all applications for extensions.

Chairman Edward Duncan stated that the board wants to meet the demands of the citizens, many of whom are appealing for water in order that they may start their hot-water heating plants, but that some plan has to be worked out whereby the board can finance the many extensions needed.

Supervisor B. M. Hedrick took the stand that if the county could sell its system, it ought to be able to bond it so that there would be sufficent funds available to meet the present emergency. Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth was instructed to make a study of the question and report to the board at its meeting Friday, November 7.

It was stated by County Engineer C. L. Kinnier that at least $100,000 would be needed to carry on the work to keep up with the demands for both house connections and the extension of the mains.

A committee of citizens from Falls Church, headed by Charles E. Gage of the town council, appeared before the board and asked what the county's stand was on furnishing water to the Fairfax County portion of the town of Falls Church. He stated that they had looked up the legality of the law and found that the enabling act would permit Arlington County to extend its mains beyond the county boundaries.

The committee was given the assurance of the hearty cooperation of the board in the matter.

Supervisor Hedrick stated that as he saw the situation there were but three questions to be considered, legality of the law, engineering and what the charge for water would be.

Mr. Gloth took the view that permission of the War Department should first be sought as to the sale of the water.

Maj. L. P. Daniels, mayor of the town, stated that he considered that the War Department was permitting the town to take water from the hydrants and did not feel that they would object to the extension of the mains.

It was pointed out that a singular position exists in the town; that is, the town council is not permitted to charge front footage. They propose to float a bond issue of sufficient size to reimburse those in the Arlington County portion of the town for what they have paid, also the county, and then take over the entire system within the corporate limits.

It was stated that there are between 500 and 600 homes to be served.

Mr. Gloth stated that he sees no legal difficulty to the plan, provided the War Department will grant the permit.

It appearing that there is much confusion in the operating of the several fire departments, the board has arranged to meet with the several chiefs at a special meeting to be held at the courthouse next Friday night to consider ways and means of better operation of the fire departments in the county.

County Engineer Kinnier reported that there are many large bills due to the scavenger department for service given. He was instructed by the board to notify all persons in arrears that unless bills are paid within a reasonable time service will be discontinued.

There will be a special meeting of the executive committee of the John Marshall Highway Association held today at the Fairfax County Courthouse, according to announcement made last night by the secretary, Lawrence Michael.

The meeting scheduled for tonight in the auditorium of the Washington-Lee High School to consider plans for the organization of a county school federation has been postponed until Wednesday evening, November 5.

The meeting is for the purpose of considering the possibility of the formation of the county federation which will include representatives from all local school organizations.

The conclusions of the meeting will be reported back to the local organizations for their action.

Miss Virginia Bushong has been elected president of the Beta Chapter of Chi Delta Gamma Sorority. Other officers are: Ruth Bierley, vice president; Dorothy Hunt, corresponding secretary; Ruth Hutson, recording secretary; Lois Chandler, chaplain, and Helen Saum, sentinel.

The County Health Department reported the following pupils as five-point health pupils at the Woodrow Wilson School at Fort Myer Heights yesterday: Steward Beatson, Wiley Smith, Dorothy Corcoran, Catherine Daniel, Walter Haynes, Louise Imboden, Frank Bierley, Samuel Griffin and Dewey Moorhead.

The report of the school nurse shows that of the total enrollment of 145 pupils 141 have been examined.

Members of Arlington Rotary Club left from Clarendon in a group yesterday afternoon for Fredericksburg, where they attended the interstate banquet and meeting as the guests of the Fredericksburg Club.

Roland Stride, jr., 5 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Stride, of Cherrydale, is in the Georgetown Hospital suffering from a broken left leg suffered when struck by an automobile said to have been operated by Arthur Alley, also of Cherrydale.

The child was taken to the hospital by Mr. Alley.

Rasmussen Speaks At Lutheran Synod

More Than 1,200 Delegates Attend Convention in Frederick.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 30.—Between 1,200 and 1,300 delegates and visitors attended the annual convention of the Maryland Sunday School Association of the Lutheran Synod, embracing Maryland, the District of Columbia and parts of Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, today. The principal address at tonight's session was made by the Rev. Dr. Carl G. Rasmussen, of Washington.

At two other sessions addresses were made by the Rev. U. S. G. Rupp, pastor of the Luthern Church; the Rev. W. A. Wade, president of the Lutheran State Synod; the Rev. J. S. Simon, Hagerstown; the Rev. Charles P. Wiles, the Rev. Dr. J. Hadwin Fisher, Gettysburg; the Rev. M. L. Stirewalt, Salisbury, N. C., and the Rev. M. A. Ashby, Boonsboro, Md.

The principal afternoon address was made by the Rev. Abdel R. Wentz, of Gettysburg, who spoke on the relation of the Sunday school to the church. The association has embraced 145 Sunday schools.

Woman Ill of Poison After Family Quarrel

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Mrs. Homer Westfall, 45, of Webster Springs, was in a critical condition late today at her home as a result of drinking poison with alleged suicidal intent after a quarrel with her husband.

The attempt followed her visit to a magistrate whom she asked to issue a peace bond against her husband but who refused when she said that she and her husband had quarreled regularly every morning for the last seventeen years.

COUNTY DEMOCRATS GIVE PEP TALKS HERE

300 Prince Georges Workers Dine and Hear Views of Candidates.

JONES GETS FOUR YEARS

"Vote a straight ticket," was the keynote of speeches made last night to about 300 Democratic workers of Prince Georges County gathered at the old Metropolitan Hotel in Washington. The workers had met for a final rally before going into the last days of the campaign.

Party leaders and the candidates who spoke were almost unanimous in pointing out that a whole government must be of one party if it is to function efficiently. A Republican Legislature can nullify the work of a Democratic governor or board of county commissioners, they said.

Speeches at the meeting were preceded by a dinner given to the workers, who thronged to the gathering in larger numbers than had been expected. J. Enos Ray, chairman of the Maryland State central committee, presided and introduced the candidates.

Originally, the candidates were not expected to speak, but popular applause forced several to mount the unsteady rostrum of a chair and address the audience.

Among those called to the stand were State Senator Ijamsdale G. Sasscer, Summerfield D. Hall, Mrs. Mary Browning, Charles Marbury and Kent Roberts Mulligan. Senator Sasscer cited the low tax rate of the county as proof that the Democratic regime had been efficient, and promised that the future should be as the past.

Mr. Mulligan warned against the independents who have appeared in this campaign, and said that the Republicans might be as glad to lose them as the Democrats were. Much the same note was struck by M. Hampton Magruder, who also cited the past record of the party as a promise of the future. Ogle Marbury, of Laurel, another county leader of the party, was another speaker.

David Jones, former deputy sheriff of Prince Georges, was sentenced to serve four years in the State penitentiary yesterday following his trial on a charge of assault with intent to rob. Four other men indicted with Jones will serve three years each.

Jones was tried by the court on the same evidence on which a jury had convicted the other four. The court considered that his crime was worse than that of the others as he allegedly had been the leader in the expidition. Jones was said to have stopped a car containing the son of a Washington policeman, and to have fired at the youth as he fled across the fields.

"Stormy" Webster was given nine years in the penitentiary for the robbery of Henry L. Davis, of Accokeek, Md., when Davis was beaten and left for dead. Only the fact that Webster entered a plea of guilty saved him from getting the maximum sentence, ten years, the judge said.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Joseph C. Mattingly said that this was "the most flagrant case in years" and spoke with pity of the old man "crippled beyond recovery." Davis had been brought into the court on a stretcher the day before to testify against Webster. If Davis dies within a year from the time of his injury, by the Maryland law, Webster will have to face a murder charge.

To Albert Taylor, convicted on a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods, the judge meted out a punishment of two years. "Your names appear to be more numerous than your possessions, except those you have of other people," Judge Mattingly told the man, who had given seven aliases since his arrest.

William Green, colored, was given a sentence of two years for the killing of Richard Diggs, also colored. Green was convicted on a charge of manslaughter, though indicted for first-degree murder. State's Attorney Frank Parran had asked only a verdict of manslaughter.

Alice Chase, colored, was sentenced to two years, but the punishment was suspended, because hers was "a somewhat pitiful case," the judge said. Her 12-year-old son has already been sentenced to the reformatory for his part in the same robbery for which the woman was sentenced.

The quartet indicted with Jones and sentenced to three years each were Francis Jackson, James D. Martin, Samuel Morton and Benson Kidwell.

Manuel Parcever and Abraham Rosin were acquitted yesterday of having set fire to a store in College Park last summer. The jury brought in the not guilty verdict after a State witness testified that Rosin had said he would do it and had confessed that he did it. J. Frank Lillard appeared for the defense.

The defense proved that the two men had not been in the vicinity of the store the night of the fire, and that there had been some enmity between the State witness and the accused. This was the last of the criminal cases to be tried at this session of court.

The Prince Georges County Circuit Court sat only six days on criminal trials at this term, but disposed of more than twenty cases. County Prosecutor Frank Parran won 98 per cent of the cases he tried. He did not have to try cases unless he were reasonably sure of a conviction, but could nolle prosse them. There were 57 cases on the criminal trials docket, but some of the men had not been arrested and some were standing trial in other jurisdictions.

Today and the remainder of the week Judge Mattingly will be engaged in equity matters in the courthouse at Upper Marlboro. After that he has a term of court in Calvert County and from there goes into Anne Arundel.

The annual drive of the Prince Georges County Red Cross will begin tomorrow and continue until November 11. Workers have set a goal of 5,000 members and expect to be particularly active about the polls on election day.

Pastors of county churches have been asked to make special appeals to their congregations in sermons. The sum received from the drive will be used for aid for drought-stricken areas, in helping the county rescue squad and in continuing the nutritional work in the county schools.

The campaign committee consists of H. L. Leonard, chairman; W. B. Morgan, of Piscataway; Mrs. B. F. Wade, of College Heights; William B. Hill, of Marlboro; S. D. Hall, of Beltsville, and Dr. J. H. Truitt, of Glenn Dale.

A Democratic meeting will be held in Brentwood, in the Fireman's Hall, tonight. County candidates will be present and will speak.

LYON VILLAGE MAN INVENTS NAVY GUN

Giant Weapon Can Fire 800 Bullets 9 Miles in One Minute, He Says.

COST 12 YEARS' WORK

A giant machine gun, capable of firing 800 bullets a distance of 9 miles every minute, has been invented by Robert F. Hudson, 71 years old, of Lyon Village, Va., and is now being manufactured by the Navy Department in the gun factory at the navy yard.

The gun, which uses a .50-caliber bullet, will be one of the most deadly weapons in the possession of any country, it is said. Intended especially as an antiaircraft instrument, it will be able to mow planes down within a radius of a mile and a half.

A remarkable feature of the gun, which makes the rapid fire possible, is that it has no recoil when discharged. Neither has it a flash. Consequently it could be easily concealed from enemy bombers.

How Recoil Is Absorbed.

The recoil, according to the inventor, is prevented by powder gases which operate mechanism intended to push the barrel forward. Thus the sighting is not disturbed as the weapon sows destruction in its path.

The Navy Department will complete the first guns early next year, Mr. Hudson said.

The inventor has spent twelve years building this weapon, he declared yesterday, as he pointed out his models rather modestly at his home.

A native of Amherst County, Va., Mr. Hudson was, before the World War, a traveling salesman. For a while he made his home in Richmond, but for the last few years he has made his home in the suburban area of Washington.

Has Other Inventions.

Another of his several inventions is an airplane machine gun which he claims is capable of firing .30-caliber bullets at the rate of 1,000 a minute. The discharges are timed so that they will go between blades of the propeller as it whirls at a dizzy speed.

Mr. Hudson, who has often been said to resemble Thomas Edison both in manner and appearance, has conducted most of his experiments in a small shop at Rosslyn, Va., unknown to many of his nearest neighbors.

Perhaps his greatest admirer is his wife, who proudly comments: "He's just a born inventor."

Other inventions credited to the aged but vigorous inventor are an automatic railway crossing signal and an automatic train control.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ELMER TWITCHELL ON THE HALL OF FAME.

DEAR Editor: Well, I have just come from the quinquennial election to the Hall of Fame, and I would call it the upset year, with Walt Whitman getting in over Cyrus H. McCormick, Noah Webster, Martha Washington, Francis Scott Key, Nathan Hale, Phil Sheridan and William Penn. When the count showed that Walt Whitman had been made a member of the Hall of Fame in good standing you could have knocked some of the electors over with a marble bust, and for a time I thought somebody would try it.

* * * *

Backers of Whitman have been trying to get him into the Hall for years. It was generally conceded he had no more chance of making the society than Benny Leonard had of making Skull and Bones. When the votes were counted, though, it was found he had got in by a narrow squeak. You have to get 64 votes to get into the Hall of Fame, and Whitman just made it. An investigation is now being made, and I understand it will show he was elected because one of the electors thought he was Gov. Whitman, who sent Lieut. Becker to the chair.

* * * *

* * * *

I WAS sorry also to see William Penn miss out by six votes. The discovery of Pennsylvania was a big thing, even if it did take Connie Mack and Senator Grundy to put it over, in a big way. Penn got 58 votes, which was a good showing and more than twice as many votes as Noah Webster got. I always thought Noah did a good job with the dictionary and was a very famous man, but from the way he is treated by the Hall of Fame you would suspect he had been seen eating with his knife.

* * * *

Fighting Phil Sheridan and Nathan Hale, two Americans I always imagined amounted to something, got even fewer votes than Webster, which just goes to show the electors don't think much of a hero unless he has invented a self-heating hot-water bottle or something. And Francis Scott Key, who wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner," was an also ran, too, although I understand George Gershwin almost got in.

But the American who got the worst deal was Paul Revere. He got less than 10 votes out of a possible 106. You could get that many votes anywhere in the country for his horse. Yours incontentedly,

ELMER TWITCHELL.

P. S.—I forgot to tell you the three successful candidates who got in with Whitman. They were James McNeil Whistler, the painter; Jimmy Monroe, the big doctrine man, and a Mr. Maury, who was a scientist. Gloria Swanson's name didn't come up this year.

FOOTBALL IN THE RAIN.

The players splash and huddle
And slam and slide and slip;
But I sit in a puddle
And get a load of grip.

MAYBE THEY WANTED TO BE SURE.

"WHAT'RE they marching around the field for?" demanded Ima Dodo as she watched the Army cadets in the bowl after the Yale game. "Booth isn't under them now!"

A Texas woman married an Oklahoma man by long-distance phone the other day, and their chances of claiming it was all a misunderstanding are perfect.

She is now on her way to Oklahoma to meet him, and it will be pretty humiliating if he gives her a cold look and says: "What was it you said? I couldn't hear a thing over the wire."

Flo Zeigfeld proposes that Calvin Coolidge be made censor or czar of the American theater. Now and then Zeigfeld gets off something real funny.

Wall street now finds the greatest line in all literature, Quince's line in Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream": "Bottom! O most courageous day! O most happy hour!"
